As per Executive Director of The Solvent Extractors' Association of India (SEA) Mr. B V Mehta, the exchange traded derivatives contracts are a very useful tool that make price risk management convenient and easy for the industry. With this announcement the industry expects Indian commodity markets to develop further on the back of availability of a convenient and cost-effective on shore hedging product. Currently NCDEX has the leading participation in the edible oil derivatives and till now the price discovery mechanism in edible oils and oilseeds segment has been the best, when compared with the other Agricultural commodities, traded at the NCDEX.
