अपनी कमोडिटी सेगमेंट पेशकशों के विस्तार के लिए नैशनल स्टॉक एक्सचेंज (NSE) ने दुनिया के प्रख्यात डेरिवेटिव मार्केटप्लेस सीएमई ग्रुप (CME Group) के साथ लाइसेंसिंग समझौता करने की घोषणा की। एनएसई ने नाइमेक्स डब्ल्यूटीआई क्रूड ऑयल और नैचुरल गैस (हेनरी हब) डेरिवेटिव अनुबंधों के लिए यह समझौता किया है।

इस समझौते से एनएसई को भारतीय बाजार के कारोबारियों के लिए इन वैश्विक बेंचमार्कों के रुपया-आधारित डेरिवेटिव अनुबंधों के निपटान में मदद मिलेगी। एक्सचेंज ने ये अतिरिक्त वायदा अनुबंध शुरू करने की मंजूरी के लिए बाजार नियामक सेबी के समक्ष आवेदन किया है।

एनएसई में मुख्य व्यावसायिक विकास अधिकारी के तौर पर हाल में कमान संभालने वाले श्रीराम कृष्णन ने कहा, 'सेबी से मंजूरी मिलने के बाद एनएसई इन दो वैश्विक बेंचमार्कों के वायदा कारोबार उपलब्ध कराएगा, जिनका निपटान एनएसई प्लेटफॉर्म पर रुपये में किया जाएगा।' शुरू में कृष्णन डॉयचे बैंक इंडिया में ग्लोबल ट्रांजेक्शन बैंकिंग के प्रबंध निदेशक एवं सह-प्रमुख थे।

उन्होंने कहा कि इस समझौते से बाजार कारोबारियों को अपनी कीमत जोखिम प्रबंधन गतिविधियों के साथ साथ कारोबारी उद्देश्य पूरे करने में भी मदद मिलेगी।

इस पेशकश के साथ, एनएसई मल्टी-कमोडिटी एक्सचेंज ऑफ इंडिया (एमसीएक्स) का प्रतिस्पर्धी बनकर भी उभरेगा। अब तक सिर्फ एमसीएक्स ही इन वैश्विक बेंचमार्क की पेशकश कर रहा था।

NSE, CME tie up to launch energy derivatives contracts

KHUSHBOO TIWARI
Mumbai, 15 February

To expand its commodity segment offerings, the National Stock Exchange (NSE) on Wednesday announced a data licensing agreement with the world's leading derivatives marketplace CME Group for NYMEX WTI crude oil and natural gas (Henry Hub) derivatives contracts.

The agreement will let NSE list, trade and settle rupee-denominated derivatives contracts for these global benchmarks for Indian market participants. The new launch will add to the energy basket offerings of NSE.

The exchange has applied to the market regulator Securities and Exchange Board of India (Sebi) for approval to launch these additional futures contracts.

"On receiving approval from Sebi, NSE would make available trading in futures of these two global benchmarks, which will be settled in ₹, on the NSE platform," said Sriram Krishnan, the chief business development officer at NSE. He added that the agreement will help market participants meet their price risk management activities as well as trading objectives.

With this launch, NSE will also emerge as a competitor to Multi-Commodity Exchange of India (MCX), the only exchange that offered these global benchmarks till now.

After the announcement, shares of MCX slipped nearly 4 per cent, settling at around ₹1,348 on Wednesday.

Data shows that the average daily turnover for February future contracts on MCX stood at ₹2,822 crore. The total value for December futures and January futures stood at ₹67,148 crore and ₹47,302 crore, respectively.

In its latest investor call, NSE had stated that it plans to enter carbon trading and to increase its activity in bonds, bond futures, electricity futures, commodities, and mutual funds.

Mumbai: Indians will soon be able to trade in the derivative contracts on WTI Crude Oil, one of the most popular such contracts globally, in the rupee. On Wednesday, the NSE signed a pact with CME Group, world's largest financial derivatives exchange headquartered in Chicago, which will allow the Indian bourse to launch WTI Crude Oil and natural gas contracts on its domestic platform, traded and settled in the rupee.

Currently, Indians have limited access to trade in these contracts since the RBI doesn't allow leveraged positions using money taken out of the country through its popular liberalised remittance scheme (LRS) route. In India, derivatives contracts on crude oil are traded on MCX.

The data licensing agreement between CME Group and the NSE will allow "the exchange to list, trade and settle rupee-denominated NYMEX WTI Crude Oil and Natural Gas (Henry Hub) derivatives contracts," a release noted.

In a move to expand its commodity segment offerings, the National Stock Exchange (NSE) on Wednesday announced a data licensing agreement with the world's leading derivatives marketplace CME Group for NYMEX WTI Crude Oil and Natural Gas (Henry Hub) derivatives contracts.

The agreement will allow NSE to list, trade and settle rupee-denominated derivative contracts in these global benchmarks for Indian market participants. The new launch will add to the energy basket offerings of NSE.

The exchange has applied to the market regulator Securities and Exchange Board of India (Sebi) for approval to launch these additional futures contracts.

"On receiving approval from Sebi, NSE would make available trading in futures of these two global benchmarks, which will be settled in INR on the NSE platform," said Sriram Krishnan, who has just taken over as the chief business development officer at NSE. Earlier, Krishnan was the Managing Director & Co-Head, Global Transaction Banking, at Deutsche Bank India.

He said the agreement will help market participants meet their price risk management activities and trading objectives.

With this launch, NSE will also emerge as a competitor to Multi-Commodity Exchange of India (MCX), the only one offering these global benchmarks currently.

After the announcement, shares of MCX slipped nearly four per cent, settling at around Rs 1,348 on Wednesday.

Data shows that the average daily turnover for February future contracts on MCX stood at Rs 2,822 crore. The total value for December futures and January futures stood at Rs 67,148 crore and Rs 47,302 crore, respectively.

In its latest investor call, NSE had stated that the bourse has further plans to enter carbon trading and to increase its activity in bonds, bond futures, electricity futures, commodities, and mutual funds. However, it will have to seek Sebi's approval for each of the new launches.

The expansion is a part of the efforts to move away from non-core businesses and increase more offerings from what is allowed by the regulator.

The National Stock Exchange (NSE) will list, trade and settle rupee denominated NYMEX WTI Crude Oil and Natural Gas (Henry Hub) derivatives contracts for Indian market participants. It has signed a data licensing agreement with derivatives marketplace CME Group to allow this trading in India.

The futures contracts will be listed on the stock exchange, bolstering its commodity segment, once the Securities and Exchange Board of India (SEBI) gives their approval. This agreement will help NSE broaden their energy basket. The exchange stated that it is hopeful that these contracts will be beneficial for the Indian market participants to meet their price risk management activities as well as trading objectives.

Shri Sriram Krishnan, Chief Business Development Officer, NSE said, "On receiving approval from SEBI, NSE would make available trading in futures of these two global benchmarks, which will be settled in INR, on the NSE platform. The NYMEX WTI Crude Oil and Natural Gas (Henry Hub) contracts are amongst the world's most traded commodity derivatives contracts generating interest from across the globe."

Will traders move from MCX?

However, some analysts predict that the MCX will continue to hold the favor of non-agro commodity traders. "For Indian participants who want to trade in commodities, MCX is already offering MCX Crude oil and MCX Natural Gas derivatives on their platform. Majority of the participants who trade in non-agro commodities choose MCX platform, while for agro commodities, NCDEX is their preferred exchange. So NSE is offering these products to lure commodity participants to their exchange,” said Bhavik Patel, Commodity and Currency Analyst, Tradebull Securities.

“Introduction of WTI Crude oil and Natural Gas (Henry Hub) derivatives will certainly give Indian participants more choice to trade but we believe MCX will still hold their market share in Crude and Natural Gas despite NSE offerings. MCX is also offering options derivatives in both Crude and Natural Gas future contracts and participants have embraced it as we can see high volumes. Habits are also hard to change and traders who prefer to trade in one exchange seldom shift to another exchange. So in essence, MCX Crude and Natural Gas will continue to remain the preferred trade for commodity traders,” he added.
