DGCA launches 48-hr free cancellation window

Passengers can now cancel or change air tickets without paying additional charge

DEEPAK PATEL
New Delhi, 26 February

The Directorate General of Civil Aviation (DGCA) has overhauled airline ticket rules, introducing a 48-hour free cancellation and amendment window, capping cancellation charges, mandating strict refund timelines, and allowing passengers to opt for vouchers in case of cancellations.

The new regulation, dated February 24, will take effect from March 26. The DGCA said the changes were necessary as ticket refunds have become "a major source of grievance" among airline passengers, with complaints largely centred on delays, partial refunds, and the practice of offering vouchers instead of returning money.

The regulator added that while it does not usually interfere in airlines' commercial practices, the rising volume of complaints required "some affirmative action to safeguard the interests of the travelling public".

Under the new rules, passengers who book tickets directly on an airline's website can cancel or amend their tickets within 48 hours without

Refund reset

- Flight should be at least 7 days away for domestic travel and 15 days for international travel
- Airlines to refund money within 14 days for tickets booked online or through agents
- For credit card users, airlines to initiate refund process within seven working days
- With growing volume of complaints, DGCA made this announcement to safeguard public interest paying extra fees, provided the flight is at least seven days away for domestic travel and 15 days away for international travel. The DGCA clarified that "beyond 48 hours of the initial booking, this option is not available and the passenger has to pay the applicable cancellation fees for amendment".

Refund timelines have been standardised to curb delays. Airlines must process refunds for credit card payments within seven working days. For tickets purchased through travel agents or online portals, airlines remain responsible for completing refunds within 14 working days. Cash payments must be refunded immediately at the airline office where the ticket was purchased.

The DGCA has also capped cancellation charges. "Under no circumstances shall the airline or its agent levy a cancellation charge exceeding the basic fare plus fuel surcharge," the rule said, adding that any agent fees must be fully disclosed at the time of booking.

Airlines must clearly indicate the refund amount and its breakdown, either on the ticket or through a separate form, and display this information on their websites.

Passengers will also have the option to choose a credit shell — a voucher for future travel — if they prefer it over a refund. Airlines cannot charge for correcting a spelling error in a passenger's name if it is reported within 24 hours of booking directly on the airline's website.

Special provisions have been introduced for medical emergencies. If a passenger or an immediate family member on the same passenger name record is hospitalised during the travel period, airlines must offer either a refund or a transferable credit shell valid for at least one year. In other cases, refunds will be processed after an airline or a DGCA-empanelled aerospace medicine specialist certifies the passenger's fitness to travel.

The DGCA said the revisions are aimed at making ticket cancellations and refunds "more transparent, timely, and passenger-friendly", and warned that non-compliance will attract penalties under the Aircraft Rules, 1937.

SC bans Class 8 social science textbook

Book contains 'offending' content on corruption in judiciary

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, 26 February

The Supreme Court on Thursday imposed a "complete blanket ban" on any further publication, reprinting or digital dissemination of NCERT's Class 8 social science book as it contains "offending" content on corruption in the judiciary, saying they have fired a gunshot and the judiciary is "bleeding".

Observing that there appeared to be a "deep-rooted conspiracy" and "calculated move" to undermine the institution and demean the dignity of judiciary, the apex court directed that all copies of the book — physical and digital — currently in circulation be immediately seized and removed from public access without any delay.

A bench headed by Chief Justice Surya Kant issued show cause notices to the NCERT director and the secretary of the department of school education asking them to explain why suitable action, including that of contempt, be not initiated against those found responsible for introducing the "offending" chapter.

"As an abundant precaution, a complete blanket ban is hereby imposed on any further publication, reprinting or digital dissemination of the book titled 'Exploring Society: India and Beyond' (Vol II)," the bench, which also comprised justices Joymalya Bagchi and Vipul M Panchohi, said.

The bench warned that any attempt to circumvent its order through electronic medium or alternative titles containing the same content shall be treated as a direct interference, willful breach and defiance of its directions. "They have fired a gunshot. The judiciary is bleeding," CJI said during the hearing in a suo motu matter over the book.

"It is my duty as the head of the institution to find out who is responsible; heads must roll," the CJI said, adding, "We would like to have a deeper probe."

The bench said it was "nearly shocked" when one of the newspapers published an article regarding release of the social science textbook having the chapter.

"Given the serious consequences and an everlasting adverse impact on the independence and autonomy of judiciary, such a misconduct would fall within the definition of criminal contempt under section 2(c) of the Contempt of Courts Act, 1971..." the bench said.

The bench asked the director of NCERT to produce the original records of minutes of meetings where the offending chapter was deliberated and finalised, and the names and credentials of textbook development team responsible for drafting the chapter.

Solicitor General Tushar Mehta tendered an unconditional and unqualified apology on behalf of the department of school education.

Necessity for judicial intervention has arisen not from a desire to suppress criticism but from the imperative to safeguard the pedagogical integrity of the national curriculum, the bench added.

Govt to soon launch grade-based driving licence system: Gadkari

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, 26 February

To promote responsible driving and prevent road mishaps, the government is planning to introduce a grade-based driving licence system with stricter provisions, including licence cancellation for certain traffic rule violations.

Union Minister for Road, Transport and Highways Nitin Gadkari on Thursday while addressing the National Conclave on Road Safety organised by industry body Confederation of Indian Industry (CII) said every year, around 0.8 million people die across the country due to factors such as using a mobile phone while driving, over speeding, wrong-side driving and drunken driving.

The government has already increased penalties for traffic violations, but the biggest issue is the enforcement, Gadkari said, adding that there is no fear or respect for the law.

"We are bringing a graded point system in driving licences," he said. "We are going to launch the scheme soon."

Explaining the concept, Gadkari said some points may be deducted for traffic offences. When all the points are deducted, the driving licence of the offender may be suspended for six months or even cancelled for repeat offences.
