E-COMMERCE SUPPLY CHAIN BACK ON TRACK

BigBasket, Grofers go on hiring spree

Both firms are understaffed amid crisis that has disrupted supply chain

SAMREEN AHMAD
Bengaluru, 3 April

Online grocery start-ups BigBasket and Grofers have launched campaigns to hire executives for their warehouses and last-mile delivery to clear backlogs and serve new orders.

While Bengaluru-based BigBasket is looking to hire 10,000 staff, Gurugram-based Grofers is looking to employ an additional 2,000 people from the industries that have been deeply impacted by the coronavirus disease (Covid-19) crisis such as textile, manufacturing, and services. The hiring by BigBasket will be done across 26 cities where the company delivers.

Since the nationwide lockdown to check the spread of the Covid-19 was announced, BigBasket has seen around 50 per cent shortage of delivery and warehouse staff, most of whom preferred to stay indoors initially because of police highhandedness and fearing for their safety.

"With many workers staying home or going back to their villages and towns, we now require people to service this demand. This is why we are hiring delivery and warehouse personnel, and this will work two ways. We will be able to service more customers and also provide employment to those who need it the most at the moment," said Tanuja Tewari, vice-president of Human Resources at BigBasket.

For Grofers, currently 65 per cent of its warehouse staff is operational. "To address the issue of lack of public transport for our warehouse staff, we have sought permission from authorities to start our own bus service for our workforce, wherever required. Buses are sanitized every day and utmost hygiene standards are followed for the staff," said Rohit Sharma, head of supply chain, Grofers. The start-up said it is collaborating with other platforms such as Zomato to get their delivery fleet on board.

BigBasket is promising attractive salaries and benefits like health insurance, assurance of safe working environment, including disinfecting and sanitizing warehouses, delivery crates, and other equipment on a regular basis, apart from the provision of gloves and masks, and regular thermal scanning.

It has been working with cab aggregators, retailers and restaurant associations for hiring to increase delivery frequency. It has already partnered with Uber India to deliver essentials to customers at their doorsteps. In this partnership, Uber's driver partners will help BigBasket with last-mile delivery in four cities — Bengaluru, Hyderabad, Chandigarh and Noida.

BIGBASKET: CURRENT SITUATION

- 75,000 orders fulfilled every day
- 40% current operating capacity
- 50% shortage of staff
- 50% current server capacity
- 7–9 days Cancellation refund time

Amazon Pantry resumes services in select cities

Amazon Pantry, the company's daily essentials store for Prime members, is back online and accepting orders in a few cities after temporarily shutting down last week.

It's now open in Bengaluru, Hyderabad, and Pune for select pin codes. It offers essentials including food, beverages, household supplies, health, and beauty products at discounted rates.

"We are prioritising deliveries of existing orders. Deliveries of new orders could take 7-10 days," said the firm.

Amazon Pantry was delivering essentials in over 100 cities before suspending services temporarily when the country entered the lockdown. Earlier, it had temporarily suspended new orders and disabled shipment for lower-priority products. Amazon India is now delivering existing orders of essential products that were purchased using prepaid payment methods.

"We are single-mindedly focused on getting essentials to you. We continue to work with state governments to get clearance and with district authorities to get curfew passes," said Amit Agarwal, country head of Amazon India, on Twitter.

The company is also building the Alexa experience during the crisis. "With guidance from the Ministry of Health and Family Welfare, and the Indian Council for Medical Research, our Alexa team built a India-specific experience that lets you use Alexa to check your symptoms for Covid-19 at home," said the firm. Just ask: "Alexa, what do I do if I think I have coronavirus?" or "Alexa, how do I know if I have coronavirus?", and Alexa will ask a series of questions and provide guidance from the ICMR and Ministry of Health, given the user's risk level and symptoms.

It is also providing e-books for free to read on Kindle apps and devices to Amazon customers. SAMREEN AHMAD

Hyderabad lab in global pact to test Covid-19 vaccine CoroFlu

Hyderabad-based vaccine maker Bharat Biotech announced on Friday that it is a part of an international collaboration of virologists and vaccine companies that has started the development and testing of a unique intranasal vaccine called CoroFlu to fight coronavirus (Covid-19).

FluGen, a company that makes vaccines, will use its flu vaccine resources to develop the remedy against coronavirus by tweaking the existing genetic code.

FluGen's lab will insert gene sequences from SARS-CoV-2, the novel coronavirus that causes Covid-19, so that the new vaccine can also induce immunity against coronavirus.

Sharing details about the collaboration, Raches Ella, head of business development at Bharat Biotech, said, "Bharat Biotech will manufacture the vaccine, conduct clinical trials, and prepare to produce almost 300 million doses of vaccine for global distribution. Under the collaboration agreement, FluGen will transfer its existing manufacturing processes to Bharat Biotech to enable the vaccine to undergo clinical trials.
