Putin Accuses US of Trying to Lure Russia into War

Kyiv | Moscow: Russian President Vladimir Putin accused the West on Tuesday of deliberately creating a scenario designed to lure it into war and ignoring Russia's security concerns over Ukraine.

In his first direct public comments on the crisis for nearly six weeks, a defiant Putin showed no sign of backing down from security demands that the West has called non-starters and a possible excuse to launch an invasion, which Moscow denies.

"It's already clear now ... that fundamental Russian concerns were ignored," Putin said at a news conference with the visiting prime minister of Hungary, one of several NATO leaders trying to intercede with him as the crisis has intensified.

Putin described a potential future scenario in which Ukraine was admitted to NATO and then attempted to recapture the Crimea peninsula, territory Russia seized in 2014.

"Let's imagine Ukraine is a NATO member and starts these military operations. Are we supposed to go to war with the NATO bloc? Has anyone given that any thought? Apparently not," he said.

FB, Google Should Refund Scam Victims: UK Lawmakers

Bloomberg

A group of UK lawmakers is urging the government to "seriously consider" forcing technology companies including Facebook's owner Meta Platforms Inc. and Google's parent Alphabet Inc. to refund victims of fraud on their sites.

"Placing a responsibility on online companies to reimburse consumers who are victims of online fraud could rapidly transform their approach," the Treasury Committee's report on economic crime said. "The government should seriously consider whether online companies should be required to contribute compensation when fraud is conducted using their platforms."

The report also called for changes to the draft Online Safety Bill to make platforms more responsible for combating financial fraud. The UK government should also consider requiring them to "conduct Know Your Customer checks on advertisers" to block potential fraudsters, according to the report.

Online fraud in the UK is surging while platforms, banks, regulators and law enforcement are often unclear about who should tackle these crimes.

Consumers reported 30,000 potential scams to the Financial Conduct Authority in the year to March 2021, up 77% in a year. The boom in cryptoassets has bred a new generation of scams, and analysis carried out last year by UK Finance, a lobby group for the finance industry, found that fraudulent advertising through search engines and social media was snaring a growing number of victims.

The report also called for changes to the draft Online Safety Bill to make platforms more responsible for combating financial fraud

Social media companies have previously told the committee they are ramping up efforts to block potentially dangerous advertising, but that scammers frequently adapt their methods to evade detection.

"For too long, pernicious scammers have acted with impunity, ripping off innocent consumers with fraudulent online adverts, impersonation scams and dodgy crypto investments," committee Chair Mel Stride said.

Other recommendations of the report include:

Â©2022 Bloomberg L.P.Creation of a single law enforcement agency with responsibility for fighting economic crimeRegulation to protect consumers from fraud and money laundering in the cryptoasset industryIncrease the cost of company formation in the U.K. to 100 pounds ($135) to deter those who wish to "set up large numbers of companies for dubious purposes."

Alphabet Inches Closer to $2 Trillion M-cap After Blowout Results

New York: Google-parent Alphabet Inc inched closer to joining peers Apple and Microsoft in the elite $2 trillion market valuation club as the search giant's shares surged 10% on Thursday after another blowout quarter.

The gains, if they hold, could be the biggest single-day gain for the stock since 2015, easing some of the concerns around Big Tech valuation that triggered a sector-wide selloff in the past few days.

"The technology sector started 2022 with some of the biggest question marks over it since the dotcom crash more than two decades ago," said Russ Mould, investment director at AJ Bell. "However, the largest and highest quality US tech names continue to deliver the answers the market wants with big earnings beats."

The stock rose as much as 10.8% to $3,049.5 in trading before the opening bell. At least 20 brokerages raised their price targets on the stock, lifting the overall Wall Street median target to $3,450. — AFP

No Immediate Effects: Execs

"It is a huge relief to see that our government is adopting the progressive stance of going ahead in the direction of innovation," said Shetty of WazirX.

On Tuesday, ET reported that the proposed tax rules — a 30% tax on gains and 1% tax deductible at source on every crypto transaction, with no concessions allowed — could hurt active traders in India. But industry executives said the effects of the proposal were not immediately apparent and would only become clear in the coming financial year.

"The negative impact in this case is not immediate as people have some time to respond to it," said Sathvik Vishwanath, cofounder of Unocoin, which onboarded more than 2,000 users on Tuesday. "The budget announcement did give some clarity on taxation at least, even though it did not spell out full regulation. The taxation rules have caused many people who were on the fence to jump on to the bandwagon."

A spokesperson from CoinSwitch Kuber said a 30% jump in user sign-ups on its platform on Tuesday was due to the company's ongoing investor education initiative, and that it cannot be viewed as a reaction to the budget announcement.

JUMPING THE GUN

After the minister's budget speech, a handful of crypto company chief executives, social media influencers who work with crypto exchanges and crypto evangelists claimed that the digital assets had effectively been legalised in India, or could not be banned.

But several legal experts and government officials ET spoke to termed this interpretation as wrong. Sitharaman herself then denied giving any legitimacy to crypto trade.

Still, one of the world's largest exchanges, Binance, which owns WazirX, published a blog post on how crypto was now legal in India. Its founder, Changpeng Zhao, reiterated the claim in a tweet. Binance did not immediately respond to ET's queries.

Finance Minister Sitharaman herself denied giving any legitimacy to crypto trade

Balaji Srinivasan, a former general partner at Andreessen Horowitz who has been actively involved in promoting crypto and blockchain technology in India, also tweeted that India was legalising crypto assets. He later posted a clarification saying it was "highly unlikely that they (Indian authorities) are going to veer backward from this announcement towards a ban."

Meyyappan N, leader (international tax), Nishith Desai Associates, said the government was probably moving towards regulating crypto.

"But I personally don't think we can say taxing something is a step towards legalising it. They have treated it similar to gambling winnings in my view. It's not an attractive tax regime, even if it's clearer (than before)," he said.

"I do not read any favourable view on the legality of it based on yesterday's (Tuesday's) amendment."

5G, Cheaper Internet On Horizon

Elaborating further, he said, "For example, if somebody pays you in digital currency, you will be able to convert it into physical currency. Digital payment, online payment will be more secure and risk-free. This will also facilitate creation of a global digital payment system." Digital currency will create several opportunities for the fintech-related sector and also reduce the burden of printing, handling and distributing cash, he said.

In an hour-long address that touched upon several aspects of the budget, the PM highlighted the 36% increase in government's capital expenditure, allocation of 68% of the defence capital budget to purchase locally produced weapons and systems, the expected surge in mobile gaming innovation, 5G services, cheap internet, the MSME (micro, small and medium enterprises) sector and green jobs.

Prime Minister Modi said several startups, including fintech startups, are expected to come up in the defence and other sectors, and that MSMEs will benefit from the measures proposed in the budget. The government is working towards providing affordable internet even in remote areas and 5G services will be launched soon, he said, adding that these measures will help in various ways such as telemedicine and remote surgery.

The PM asserted that the budget has made sizable allocation for public investment.

"Allocation for public investment in this budget is a big step and its impact will be significant. In 2013-14, public investment was only Rs 187,000 crore. In this budget, it is Rs 750,000 crore. This is a fourfold increase in comparison to the UPA government. This big spending will lead to more investment in the country and more infrastructure development," he said.

Digital Guardrails

This leaves the field open for other technologies to be considered.

India's public digital infrastructure — including universal identification number Aadhaar as well as Unified Payments Interface (UPI) — will act as digital infrastructure rails on which the entire CBDC initiative will run, officials said. This will enable real-time eKYC (through Aadhaar) and automatic money transfer (through the UPI model). Experts are of the view that India is best placed to launch a CBDC, given its rapid adoption of digital banking and e-payment in recent years. Central banks across China, Russia, the Bahamas and the US are developing or researching the use of CBDC.

A survey conducted by the Bank for International Settlements (BIS) in 2021 revealed that 86% of central banks around the world were actively researching the potential for CBDCs but only 14% were deploying pilot projects.

According to a report by audit and consultancy firm PwC, retail CBDC projects appear to be more advanced in emerging economies with financial inclusion stated as an expected outcome.

Mihir Gandhi, partner at PwC India, said RBI is drawing up a blueprint. "There were indications that they were working on this framework. From a tech perspective they seem to have the architecture ready. Getting the technology partners on board is what they will focus on. RBI is likely to pilot the CBDC in a sandbox environment and pick out specific use cases as they did with e-RUPI for Covid vaccinations. The full-fledged launch may happen at a later point," he said.

DOUBTFUL TIMELINE

However, doubts persist over the feasibility of CBDC being launched in 2022-23, as proposed by the finance minister.

"According to various discussions within Niti Aayog, many levers have been operationalised with the 2022-23 timeline in mind," said Samrat Kishor, regional representative at Enterprise Ethereum Alliance. "It is likely that the initial use cases will be centred around business-to-business and business-to-government payments, as it will be difficult to push citizens to digital wallet usage within the timeframe."

'Google, Facebook Should Reimburse Scam Victims'

British lawmakers ask social media companies to make platforms more responsible for combating financial fraud

London: A group of UK lawmakers is urging the government to "seriously consider" forcing technology companies including Facebook's owner Meta Platforms and Google's parent Alphabet Inc. to refund victims of fraud on their sites.

"Placing a responsibility on online companies to reimburse consumers who are victims of online fraud could rapidly transform their approach," the Treasury Committee's report on economic crime said. "The government should seriously consider whether online companies should be required to contribute compensation when fraud is conducted using their platforms."

The report also called for changes to the draft Online Safety Bill to make platforms more responsible for combating financial fraud. The UK government should also consider requiring them to "conduct Know Your Customer checks on advertisers" to block potential fraudsters, according to the report. Online fraud in the UK is surging while platforms, banks, regulators and law enforcement are often unclear about who should tackle these crimes.

Online fraud in the UK is surging while platforms, banks, regulators and law enforcement are often unclear about who should tackle these crimes

Consumers reported 30,000 potential scams to the Financial Conduct Authority in the year to March 2021, up 77% in a year. The boom in cryptoassets has bred a new generation of scams, and analysis carried out last year by UK Finance, a lobby group for the finance industry, found that fraudulent advertising through search engines and social media was snaring a growing number of victims. Tech companies have previously told the committee they are ramping up efforts to block potentially dangerous advertising, but that scammers frequently adapt their methods to evade detection.

"For too long, pernicious scammers have acted with impunity, ripping off innocent consumers with fraudulent online adverts, impersonation scams and dodgy crypto investments," committee Chair Mel Stride said. Bloomberg

US to Send Warship and Fighter Jets to UAE After Yemen Attacks

Dubai: The United States will deploy a guided missile destroyer and state-of-the-art fighter jets to help defend the United Arab Emirates after a series of missile attacks by Yemeni rebels, a US statement said Wednesday.

The deployment, to "assist the UAE against the current threat", follows a phone call between Defence Secretary Lloyd Austin and Abu Dhabi Crown Prince Mohammed bin Zayed Al-Nahyan, the US embassy in the UAE said. The UAE, part of the Saudi-led coalition fighting Yemen's Iran-backed Huthi rebels, suffered its third missile attack in consecutive weeks on Monday.

The guided missile destroyer USS Cole will partner with the UAE Navy and make a port call in Abu Dhabi, the statement said, while the US will also deploy fifth-generation fighter planes. AFP
