ASCI Slams Brands Using Olympics Winners in Ads without Permission

Ratna.Bhushan
@timesgroup.com

New Delhi: The Advertising Standards Council of India (ASCI) has said brands piggybacking on athletes winning medals in the Tokyo Olympics in their advertising without permission are in violation of its code.

"When ads refer to or showcase celebrities without their explicit permission, such ads are in potential violation of the ASCI code," said ASCI secretary general Manisha Kapoor. She said such ads could be misleading to consumers, who may think that these celebrities genuinely endorse these products. ASCI guidelines are not legally enforceable, but violations of the council's guidelines are treated as violation of government's rules. Indian athletes, like weightlifter Mirabai Chanu, badminton player PV Sindhu, boxer Lovlina Borgohain and wrestler Ravi Kumar Dahiya, have won medals, while the hockey teams have created history at Tokyo, leading to a surge of brands putting out ads and messages on social media, some directly leveraging the athletes' names without permissions or contracts.

Such ads could be misleading to consumers, who may think that these celebrities genuinely endorse these products, says ASCI secretary general

On Thursday, the men's hockey team defeated Germany to claim the bronze-medal match, which many brands and corporate chief executives said "felt like a gold". Team captain Manpreet Singh dedicating the medal to Covid-19 warriors too became a trend.

The athletes' names are being leveraged and linked to brands across corporates such as Aditya Birla Group, Apollo Hospitals and Perfetti Van Melle, to agencies such as BrandOnWheelz to out-of-home media agency The Brand Sigma.

RIL-BP Forays into Battery Swapping for EVs

RBML AIMS TO CREATE ecosystem that will help accelerate EV adoption, says top exec; co inks pact with Swiggy to deploy EVs for food delivery

Our Bureau

Mumbai | Bengaluru: Reliance Industries has forayed into the electric vehicle (EV) space with its fuel retailing joint venture with UK energy firm BP signing an agreement with Swiggy to deploy electric vehicles for the food delivery platform, the companies said on Thursday.

Reliance BP Mobility (RBML) said it aims to be India's largest network of battery swapping stations by setting up "multiple thousand" stations over the next five years at its fuel retail outlets, and other commercial and residential locations.

"Leveraging the best of BP's global learnings in electrification, RBML is setting up a robust and sustainable infrastructure comprising EV charging hubs and battery swapping stations, offering digitally-enabled services to all stakeholders," Harish C Mehta, chief executive officer of RBML, said in a statement.

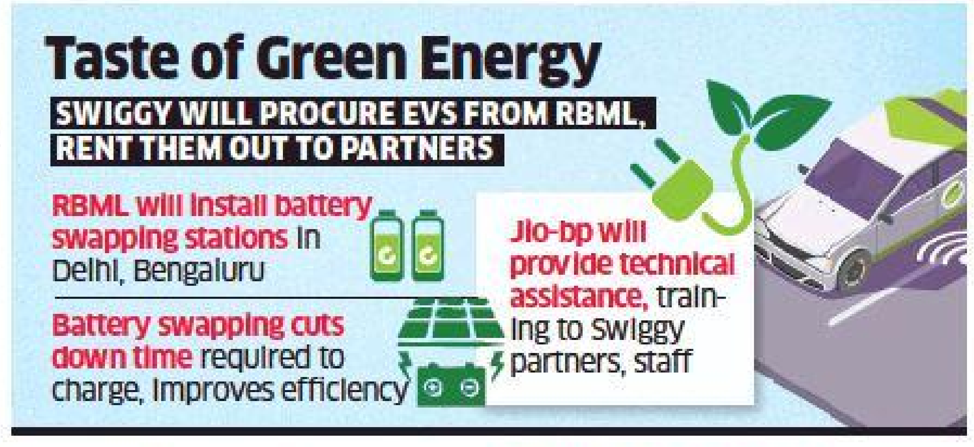
He said the company "is committed to creating an ecosystem which will help accelerate the adoption of electric vehicles in the country" to support the government's vision of electric mobility.

RBML has tied up with Swiggy to start trials for a project to deploy EVs that will be supported by Jio-bp's network of battery swap stations and Swiggy's network of delivery partners. The RIL-BP fuels and mobility business operates under the 'Jio-bp' brand.

In the EV space, Jio-bp will initially set up battery swapping stations at various locations assisted by Swiggy and provide all required technical assistance and training to Swiggy delivery partners and designated Swiggy staff related to battery swapping.

Swiggy said it will procure EVs from RBML and rent them out on a monthly basis to its partners. The food delivery company said RBML will install battery swapping stations every few kilometres in several locations in Delhi and Bengaluru.

The battery swapping model cuts down the time required to charge an EV and improves efficiency.



SWIGGY'S E-CYCLE TIEUP

Swiggy on Thursday also said it has partnered with electric cycle manufacturer Hero Lectro and Fast Despatch Logistics, a last-mile delivery player in the UK, to enable end-to-end delivery of orders through cargo e-cycles.

It has begun trials in Bengaluru, New Delhi and Hyderabad.

"Today's announcement comes on the back of almost two years of pilots, during which Swiggy explored various models to determine what would make EV adoption easier and more profitable for its delivery partners,"

The Bengaluru-based company, which delivers millions of orders each month across cities with its partners traveling an average of 80-100 kms daily, has committed to covering deliveries spanning 800,000 kilometres everyday through electric vehicles by 2025.

"Transitioning to EVs is an important step in this direction," said Sriharsha Majety, chief executive officer of Swiggy. "It will have a positive impact not only on the environment but also empower our delivery partners to earn more."

Making deliveries through EVs is expected to lower the vehicle running cost of its delivery partners by up to 40%, the company said.

Earlier in June, Swiggy's rival Zomato had said it will join the Climate Group's global electric mobility initiative, EV100, committing to 100% adoption of electric vehicles by 2030.
