FY30 vision may give wings to IndiGo stock

Analysts expect expansion in international routes to drive growth

PUNEET WADHWA
New Delhi, 9 June

Despite near-term challenges related to fuel price, analysts remain bullish on the InterGlobe Aviation (IndiGo) stock, and expect expansion in long-haul international routes to drive growth for the carrier over the next few years.

In the near term, however, higher costs, especially of fuel, due to the West Asia conflict, could keep sentiment in check.

IndiGo, in its recently held analyst meet, reiterated its ambition to raise international capacity share to around 40 per cent by 2030, from FY30 from the current 30 per cent, according to a note by Elara Capital.

The management intends to leverage its dominant domestic franchise to build a globally relevant aviation platform with a significantly larger international presence, broader customer segments, higher ancillary monetisation, and greater infrastructure ownership.

It expects growth engines such as A321XLR and wide-bodies to increase from 4 per cent of capacity in FY26 to 10-15 per cent by FY30, while the core ATR/A320/A321 will still remain the majority at 85-90 per cent.

The A321XLR aircraft is central to this strategy, the note said, with an approximate 8.5-hour flying range, enabling routes such as Athens, Istanbul, Bali, and Seoul. Nine A321XLR deliveries are expected in FY27. This, their analysts said, allows the airline to expand internationally without diluting its low-cost advantage.

"The fleet ownership model is targeted to rise to 30-40 per cent of the total fleet by FY30, compared with the current 8 per cent owned and 12 per cent finance lease model. This should improve asset control and may reduce long-term dependence on expensive operating leases," wrote Gagan Dixit of Elara Capital in a recent note.

Flying high

At current levels, the stock, he believes, appears to price in crude and rupee-related headwinds, but not the positive impact of supply-led fare strength.

"We expect investor focus to gradually shift from near-term cost pressure to the durability of higher airfares. Our target price of ₹6,000 is based on 9.2x FY28E EV/Ebitda," he said.

International traffic
The airline's strategy seems aligned with the growth in international passenger traffic. Over FY15-FY26, India's air traffic rose from 116 million to 246 million, according to reports with international/domestic passenger mix at 32 per cent/68 per cent in FY26 (versus 40 per cent/60 per cent in FY15).

Going ahead, Indian air traffic is expected to more than double by FY35 from 246 million in FY26, a Motilal Oswal Financial Services (MOSL) note said. However, in contrast to the previous decade, they believe the share of international passengers is expected to expand due to higher disposable income and an increase in first-time international travel, which should lead to 3x growth in outbound trips.

At the current, meanwhile, shares of InterGlobe Aviation have lost over 13 per cent last year (till June 8) in calendar year 2026

(CY26), compared to around an 11 per cent fall in the Nifty50. On June 9, the stock gained close to 1.5 per cent to trade at ₹4,431 levels. The FY30 road map

By FY30, IndiGo targets 200 million passengers (versus 123 million in FY26), nearly 3,000 daily departures (versus the current around 2,200), over 550 aircraft (versus around 400 now), and around 40 per cent international capacity mix (versus low-30s currently).

Over the last few years, IndiGo international destinations have gained traction — from just five in FY16 to 44 in FY26 — while international routes have expanded from 12 to over 150 now, reports suggest. The management now sees the next leg of growth coming from out-bound leisure and business travel, inbound tourism, and eventually India-to-India transit traffic.

Analysts at JM Financial said the road map is ambitious and crucially remains anchored to IndiGo's core strengths: cost leadership, fleet commonality, and disciplined execution.

If executed successfully, IndiGo could emerge as one of the few airlines globally combining low-cost economics with international scale, JM Financial said. It has maintained an "add" rating on the stock with a price target of ₹5,000 per share.

Eyeing SpaceX stock? Tap into global platforms

SANJAY KUMAR SINGH

Three high-value initial public offerings (IPOs) expected in the United States (US) market — SpaceX, Anthropic and OpenAI platform, has an allocation to equity investors worldwide. Several platforms now allow Indian investors to buy foreign stocks through the Liberalised Remittance Scheme (LRS) route. Investors should do thorough due diligence when selecting a platform.

IPO access could be difficult
SpaceX has a 30 per cent quota for retail and is accepting investments from several countries, including India. But getting access may not be easy.

"Primary-market allocations are touted through investment syndicates that largely serve US institutions and a few domestic retail channels controlled by banks. Indian investors using the LRS route access US markets through a partner broker that does not sit in the IPO allocation chain," says Virendra Shah, founder and chief executive officer (CEO), Vested Finance. Indian investors may, however, take exposure to these stocks once they are listed.

Some ETFs in the US offer exposure to securities of private companies. "The KraneShares AIXG ETF, available on the OpenAI platform, has an allocation to Anthropic and SpaceX shares," says Subho Moulik, founder and CEO, Appreciate.

Why use platforms
Indian mutual funds investing abroad share an industry-wide cap of US$7 billion and a separate $1 billion cap for overseas ETFs. "With the ceiling breached, most fund houses are no longer accepting fresh subscriptions this year," says Moulik.

Many international ETFs offered by Indian fund houses are trading at a premium of 20-25 per cent to their net asset value. "The premium may evaporate when the Reserve Bank of India lifts restrictions," says Moulik.

These platforms offer investors access to sectors and stocks unavailable or under-represented in India. "Indian investors can get exposure to semiconductor, artificial intelligence and electric vehicle

Factor in total cost

- Check account-opening charges and minimum balance requirements
- Factor in forex markup
- Account for SWIFT (Society for Worldwide Interbank Financial Telecommunication) charges
- Take into consideration withdrawal charges, brokerage, and demat fees stocks," says Arnab Pandya, founder, Moneyvishu.com.

A portfolio invested only in India exposes investors to macroeconomic and other risks specific to the country. "Global investing can reduce single-country risk and provide a currency hedge," says Vishal Dhawan, founder and CEO, Plan Ahead Wealth Advisors.

Understand the downsides
International investing is operationally complex. "Banks require specific forms to be filled for transferring money under LRS. Income-tax return (ITR) filing also becomes complicated," says Dhawan. In some geographies, estate or inheritance tax has to be paid.

Assess suitability
This route suits investors who want to manage their global allocation actively. "Sophisticated investors with a large portfolio and the ability to take considerable risk may benefit from this route," says Pandya.

Investors should have a horizon of more than 24 months. "Gains beyond 24 months attract a flat tax rate of 12.5 per cent. If the holding period is less, the income-tax slab rate applies," says Moulik.

Investors making small investments may not find this route ideal. "Below ₹5 lakh, transaction and forex costs may erode returns," says Moulik.

Choose platform carefully
A wide range of instruments should be available. Check the platform's tax-reporting module. "It should offer reports that make it easier for investors to file their ITR correctly," says Dhawan.

Check whether the platform helps with A2 remittance handling, tax collection at source (TCS), and year-end foreign-asset disclosure. "Find out whether the platform works with a regulated US broker-dealer, whether securities are protected by the Securities Investor Protection Corporation (SIPC), and are held in your name," says Shah.

Follow tax norms
TCS of 20 per cent is payable once cumulative remittances cross ₹10 lakh. File ITR accurately. "Resident individuals holding foreign stocks must report them in the ITR under Schedule FA. Dividend income or capital gains from foreign stocks should be reported in Schedule FSI," says Rupali Singhania, founder, Aarete Consultants.

Resident investors can claim credit for taxes paid in another country. "Investors claiming foreign tax credit should furnish Form 67 on the income-tax e-filing portal," says Singhania.

Leave encashment on retirement: How much tax exemption can you claim?

Leave encashment received at the time of retirement provides a significant tax benefit, but the exemption available depends on the type of employee.

Under Section 10(10AA) of the Income-Tax Act, central and state government employees enjoy a complete tax exemption on leave encashment received on retirement or superannuation. There is no upper limit on the exempt amount. For private sector and other non-government employees, the exemption is restricted to the lowest of four amounts — the actual leave encashment received, the cash equivalent of unutilised leave (subject to a maximum of 30 days' leave for each completed year of service), 10 months' average salary preceding retirement, or ₹25 lakh. Any amount above the exempt portion is taxable as salary income. The ₹25 lakh limit, up from ₹3 lakh in 2023, is a lifetime cap and includes exemptions claimed from previous employers. Leave encashment received during service remains fully taxable.

Taxpayers should
■ Check accumulated earned leave balance before retirement.

- Verify whether they have claimed any leave encashment exemption from a previous employer
- Keep records of salary, service terms and leave balance for tax calculations
- Review Form 16 carefully and claim the eligible exemption while filing income-tax return
- Seek professional advice if leave encashment amount is substantial or involves multiple employers.
