Coal sector facing some headwinds from financial mkts: Govt

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, June 10

THE GOVERNMENT ON Thursday said the coal sector is facing a bit of headwind from the financial markets and that could be one of the reasons for global players not participating in commercial coal mine auctions.

This comes after Coal Minister Pralhad Joshi earlier exuded confidence that in the next round of auctions, there would be participation from global players.

The process for the second round of auctions for commercial mining—in which 67 blocks are up for sale—is underway.

"We had couple of participation with industries in the US and also Indonesia and some other places. We reached out to many people...maybe because the coal is facing little bit of headwinds from the financial markets for investment and so that could be one of the reasons (for global players not participating in the auction)," Additional Coal Secretary M Nagaraju said.

He was replying to a query during the first stakeholders' consultation on the second round of auction of coal mines for commercial mining, organised by industry chamber Ficci.

Retiring old coal plants can help Maha save ₹16k crore in five years: Report

Maharashtra can save up to ₹16,000 crore in the next five years by shutting down old coal-fired power plants, along with other measures, an environmental advocacy group said on Thursday. The savings can go up to ₹75,000 crore over a decade if the state follows a set of recommendations, the report by Climate Risk Horizons said pushing for more reliance on renewable sources of power and calling them cheaper as well.

ESIC to cover casual, contractual employees of municipal bodies

FE BUREAU
New Delhi, June 10

THE CENTRE HAS decided to bring all casual and contractual workers working in municipal bodies under the social security schemes run by the Employees' State Insurance Corporation (ESIC).

"The ESIC Corporation has been directed to take up the matter with the states/UTs, being the appropriate government(s) under the ESIC Act, for the issue of notification for coverage of casual and contractual workers in the municipal corporation(s)/council(s) in their respective jurisdictions," an official statement quoting labour minister Santosh Kumar Gangwarsaid.

The statement said that for the National Capital Region of Delhi, the Central Government being the appropriate government under the ESIC Act, the labour ministry has already issued such 'intention' notification on June 7.

Gangwarsaid that ESIC coverage of casual and contractual employees working with municipal bodies shall go along way in providing social security cover to a very vulnerable segment of the workforce. This shall contribute to the social upliftment of this segment of the workforce and their families. Once notifications in this are issued by states, the casual and contractual workers working with municipal bodies will be able to avail the full gamut of benefits available under the ESIC Act such as sickness benefit, maternity benefit, disablement benefit, dependent's benefit etc. These workers will be eligible to avail of medical services through ESIC's 160 hospitals and over 1,500 dispensaries spread over the country.

For the NCR of Delhi, the Central Government being the appropriate under the ESIC Act, the labour ministry has already issued such 'intention' notification on June 7

The ESIC scheme is currently applicable to non-seasonal, manufacturing establishments employing 10 or more workers. For health and medical institutions, the threshold limit is 20 or more workers. In the contributory scheme, an employee needs to pay 3.25% of the monthly wages paid to an employee while the employee requires to pay 0.75% of the wages.

INTERVIEW: RAHUL WALAWALKAR, president, India Energy Storage Alliance

'PLI to help India catch up with storage manufacturing race'

Even though the country has missed out on manufacturing opportunities in the past, as it happened with the solar sector, storage is one of the emerging areas which is also critical for the national energy security programme. The government recently approved the PLI scheme on ACC battery storage for achieving manufacturing capacity of 50 GWh with an outlay of ₹18,100 crore. Rahul Walawalkar, president of the India Energy Storage Alliance, tells FE's Anupam Chatterjee he believes the scheme can provide the right platform for the industry to turn India into a global storage manufacturing hub. Excerpts:

The incentive is contingent on the domestic value capture and in the initial years, this domestic value capture is expected to be around 50% and the companies will be incentivised accordingly. However, we feel that it is sufficient to help the industry get through some of the teething inefficiencies which we will have when we start the plants. The scheme structure provides higher incentive for companies manufacturing advanced cells.

How about the market for storage products in the country? The government is giving five years to scale up manufacturing capacity to 50 GWh and we do expect that the domestic demand itself will cross this capacity by 2026 or 2027. We think the stationary market (mostly power sector) will contribute to most of the demand growth till 2025, and beyond that, the electric vehicle market will start taking up the larger share. In other parts of the world such as the US, Europe and Australia, GWh scale storage deployment has been happening for the last couple of years because policy makers in these countries did detailed cost-benefit analysis back in 2012-13. Unfortunately in India, policy makers had been looking for cheaper solutions and while waiting for it, cost has fallen down by around 50% in the last five years.

Does that mean we have missed out the opportunity?

We are definitely late. But the good part is, there has been a lot of changes in the technology front. Right now China is the dominant player and the US has less than 40 GWh of manufacturing capacity, while Europe has around 20-30 GWh. The other countries do not have a huge lead, so if we move fast right now, we can catch up. We are late by 2-3 years, but if we now run, we can still catch the train.

Will locally manufactured products be cheaper than imports? There are companies which are setting up 100 GWh storage manufacturing units outside, so it is impossible for domestic players with much lower capacities to match their rates. It will take some time to build the capacities and achieve the economies of scale for local companies to become competitive without any government support.

How do you expect the manufacturing industry to react to the PLI scheme? We expect the government to receive bids for 70-100 GWh and anticipate around five to seven companies to benefit from the scheme. Right now it is easier to name the handful of large companies which have not shown any interest in the energy storage sector. Currently, we do not have the entire supply chain in India.
