pay but now they have been reworked in favour of the state, he said.

The project, which has been in the works for nearly five years, is projected to cost ₹41,000-42,000 crore, up from the previous estimate of ₹37,320 crore.

HPCL, in March 2013, had signed an MoU with the Rajasthan government for setting up the refinery-cum-petrochemical complex in the Thar desert near the oil discoveries made by Cairn India.

The refinery however never took off as a change of guard in the state led to the Rajasthan government putting on hold the fiscal incentives for the project.

While the size of the refinery remains the same, the unit will cost more because it now has to be built to produce Euro-VI grade petrol and diesel, officials said. Engineers India Ltd (EIL) is doing a feasibility study.

The HPCL board, in March 2013, had approved setting up of the complex at a cost of Rs 37,320 crore. Half of the crude oil requirement at the proposed refinery, but later started soft-peddling the project. In 2012, HPCL entered the fray and proposed to take 51% stake in it.

ONGC, which originally had the authorisation from the government for processing the Barmer crude at the proposed refinery, willingly made way for HPCL.
