HK publisher Jimmy Lai sentenced to 20 yrs in jail

AP
HONG KONG

Jimmy Lai, the pro-democracy former Hong Kong media tycoon and a fierce critic of Beijing, was sentenced to 20 years in prison in the longest punishment given so far under a China-imposed national security law that has virtually silenced the city's dissent.

Lai, 78, was convicted in December of conspiring with others to collude with foreign forces to endanger national security, and conspiracy to publish seditious articles. The maximum penalty for his conviction was life imprisonment.

His co-defendants, six former employees of his Apple Daily newspaper and two activists, received prison terms of between 6 months and 3 months, and 10 years on collusion-related charges.

Lai smiled and waved at his supporters when he arrived for the sentence. But before he left the courtroom, he looked serious, as some people in the public gallery cried.

he will die a martyr behind bars," she said.

Hong Kong leader John Lee said Lai's sentence demonstrated the rule of law, citing his serious crime.

UN human rights chief Volker Turk deplored the sentence, saying Lai was punished for "exercising rights protected under international law" and the sentence must be quashed.

The EU reiterated its call for the immediate and unconditional release, citing Lai's advanced age and health.

In Beijing, China's Foreign Ministry spokesperson Lin Jian said Lai was a Chinese citizen, calling him a major planner and participant in a series of anti-China destabilising activities in Hong Kong. The judicial cases are purely Hong Kong's internal affairs.

JUDGES RULED LAI WAS THE MASTERMIND

In their ruling, three government-vetted judges wrote the starting point of Lai's sentence was increased because they found him to be the mastermind of the conspiracies. But they also reduced his penalty because they accepted Lai's age, health, condition and solitary confinement would cause his prison life to be more burdensome than that of other inmates.

DAUGHTER: LAI WILL DIE A MARTYR IN JAIL

The democracy advocate's arrest and trial have raised concerns about the decline of press freedom in what was once an Asian bastion of media independence. The government insists the case has nothing to do with a free press, saying the defendants used news reports as a pretext for years to commit acts that harmed China and Hong Kong. Lai's sentence could heighten Beijing's diplomatic tensions with foreign governments. His conviction has drawn criticism from the US and the UK.

US President Trump, who is expected to visit China in April, said he felt "so badly," noting he spoke to Chinese leader Xi Jinping and "asked to consider Lai's release."

British PM Keir Starmer's government has called for the release of Lai, who is a British citizen. Lai's son, Sebastian, said the "draconian" prison term was devastating for our family and life-threatening for his father. "It signifies the total destruction of the Hong Kong legal system and the end of justice," he said.

His sister Claire called the sentence "heartbreakingly cruel." "If this sentence is carried out,
