STATES CANNOT SHIRK RESPONSIBILITY, SAYS PRADHAN

Panel set up to probe Delhi coaching centre deaths

Treasury, Opposition benches indulge in blame game in Rajya Sabha

NIKHILA HENRY & ANONNA DUTT
New Delhi, July 29

THE SHORT DURATION discussion in the Rajya Sabha on Monday over the death of three UPSC aspirants due to flooding of the basement of a coaching centre in Delhi saw a blame game between the Treasury and Opposition benches, with the BJP ministers and MPs accusing the Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) government over the incident.

Hitting back, the AAP and the Opposition INDIA bloc targeted the Centre over the incident that occurred at Rau's IAS Study Circle in Delhi's Old Rajinder Nagar following heavy rains on July 27.

Education minister Dharmendra Pradhan and minister for housing and urban affairs Manohar Lal Khattar spoke during the debate in the Upper House, which was allowed by chairman Jagdeep Dhankar after the Question Hour.

Pradhan said that while education is in the Concurrent List, states cannot shirk their responsibility when it comes to cracking down on illegal coaching institutes.

The education minister told the House that the Union government had sent directives to all states in 2017, 2019, 2020 and 2024 to regulate coaching institutes. The directives were aimed at registration of coaching institutes and prescribing minimum standards that the coaching institutes must follow, he said. The directives also made it clear to the states that they should monitor the functioning of such coaching institutes and penalise them for any lapses, he added.

"Centre has sent an advisory to all states about coaching centres. If that was followed this incident would not have done. It is the state's responsibility. You cannot shirk the responsibility," Pradhan said, adding, "We must pin responsibility to prevent such incidents from recurring."

Minister Khattar, who spoke after Pradhan, accused the AAP-led Delhi government of "carelessness". He said the government's alleged negligence led to the deaths of three students. Those who were responsible for these deaths is the AAP-run Municipal Corporation of Delhi (MCD) or the Delhi government, he said, accusing the AAP government of not maintaining sewerage lines that extend even up to Haryana.

Khattar said that the errant coaching institute was given a No Objection Certification (NOC) by the MCD despite having no clearance to run classes in the basement of the building. He said that on the complaints portal of the MCD a student of the errant institute had lodged a complaint pointing to the poor condition of the institute. This too was

"ignored", he said. AAP member Sanjay Singh, however, defended the Delhi government, stating that the Delhi government has managed the sewers well. The AAP government has provided piped water to 99.6% people in unregulated colonies, installed over 4,000 km sewer lines in 1,000 plus unregulated colonies, changed 3,500 km of water pipeline and 3,100 km sewer lines, and installed 7,300 km new water pipeline, he said.

On why the errant coaching centre was allowed to operate, Singh said that such coaching centres have been functioning for the last 20-25 years, during which the BJP was largely running the MCD. He added that the Delhi minister in-charge had asked the officers to carry out desilting activities in the city, but "they were not listening with the control of services being with the Lt Governor", who reports to the Centre.

The debate also witnessed several Opposition leaders accusing the Union government of allowing coaching institutes to mushroom in the country. Treading with care, the INDIA bloc MPs tried to steer clear of blaming the AAP, their alliance partner, in the process.

While some like Tiruchi Siva of the DMK placed the blame squarely on the L-G for not allowing the elected AAP government to function, leaders of the Congress, RJD, CPI(M), CPI and IUML were of the opinion that the coaching institutes should be blamed and that the Union government, under whom education falls, should be held responsible for the mushrooming of these institutes.

Meanwhile, the ministry of home affairs (MHA) has constituted a committee to inquire into the incident. The committee will enquire about the reasons, fix responsibility, suggest measures and recommend policy changes.

The author and emotional mother recites a verse as a message to her son post the heart-breaking finish at the Chateauroux range.

"Sab toh khatarnak hunda hai sade supnaye da mar jana (The most dangerous thing is the death of our dreams). It's just the start of Arjun's Olympic dream and a fourth place can't end his journey as a shooter or his dream to win an Olympics medal for India some day," Deepti, whose short story collection Bhukh Eon Sah Laindi Hai (Hunger breathes like this) has won the Dhahan Prize for Punjabi International Literature last year, said.

While Arjun's father Neeraj was cheering for the youngster during the eight-shooter final, where Arjun was among the top three for the major part, the retired station superintendent kept himself in his room after the near-miss for his son. Arjun's fascination with shooting began when his father read an article about a shooter winning multiple medals in 2012. A teenager Arjun would approach Olympic gold medalist Abhinav Bindra's coach JS Dhillon for training in 2013. He would accompany her mother on a scooter with his equipment in an auto-rickshaw.

Arjun would win a bronze medal at the ISSF Junior World Cup and an Asian Championships silver in 2016. But he suffered a setback in 2018 when he fell during practice at the Mohali range.

Paris cheers for Rafa's 'last dance'

MIHIR VASAVDA
Paris, July 29

INSIDE THE MEGA kitchen of Paris's biggest, most famous patisserie, the chef is overcome by bittersweet emotions.

The last dance of the man whose birthday cakes he's made, designed and delivered, for a better part of the last two decades could be near. And chef Marc Riviere fears it'll be here. "The thought of it makes me sad," says Riviere, who was also the pastry chef for the Ambani wedding last month, adding, "very, very sad."

About 6 km away, inside the centre court of Roland-Garros, the sentiment is the same. A Frenchman has a Spanish flag draped around his shoulders. On it is a request: "Rafa, please don't retire." Monday's biggest draw at the Paris Olympics wasn't the medal events at the gymnastics arena or the pool. It was a second-round tennis match.

Rafael Nadal and Novak Djokovic, who have 46 Grand Slams between them, have played each other 60 times — no two players have faced one another more.

The result, in a way, was a foregone conclusion. Djokovic won 6-1, 6-4 in a little under two hours. But the thousands in Court Philippe-Chatrier weren't there for the outcome. They sat under the harsh sun just to pay homage to a player who has won more matches and more titles than any other player on this court — Nadal.

Rafael Nadal and Novak Djokovic during their second round match in Paris on Monday. Djokovic won 6-1, 6-4 in a little under two hours

The first Sunday of the Games saw many first shows.

Simone Biles, the pioneering American gymnast, made a dazzling return to the Olympic platform after mental health problems paralysed her first flight in Tokyo. It was a performance to see, and the venue — buzzing with A-listers — was a place to be seen. The LeBron James-led US basketball side — 'Dream Team' — made its first recital, beating a team with another NBA superstar, Serbia's Nikola Jokic. Two of the many superheroes from the NBA universe who have descended upon Lille.

It was a celebrity catwalk in the world's fashion hub. But in this constellation of stars, one burnt the brightest — Nadal. He was the biggest storyline of the first weekend of the Games.

Right from the opening ceremony — in the rarest of rare moments, the honour of receiving the torch from French legend Zinedine Zidane in the last stretch of the relay was given to him. Most countries would have chosen one of their own. Here in Paris, however, Nadal is one of their own. "Rafa belongs to Paris," Riviera says. "And Paris is Rafa's."

So, the Parisians turned out in unprecedented numbers on Saturday to watch his doubles opener partnering Carlos Alcaraz. It was the king of clay sharing the court with the crown prince, set to succeed the throne. When Nadal said he was unsure about his participation in the singles, they held their breath. And after he complained about the scheduling of matches, calling it "outrageous", they firmly stood behind him.

Paris has taken care of Nadal from the time he first came here as a muscular teenager in those capris and sleeveless shirts, with that signature bandana strapped around his forehead.

It's taken a city to raise a star. Everyone at Roland-Garros has a Rafa story.

Shooter Arjun misses medal

Rafael Nadal and Novak Djokovic, who have 46 Grand Slams between them, have played each other 60 times — no two players have faced one another more.

The result, in a way, was a foregone conclusion. Djokovic won 6-1, 6-4 in a little under two hours. But the thousands in Court Philippe-Chatrier weren't there for the outcome. They sat under the harsh sun just to pay

Rafael Nadal and Novak Djokovic during their second round match in Paris on Monday. Djokovic won 6-1, 6-4 in a little under two hours

homage to a player who has won more matches and more titles than any other player on this court — Nadal.

The first Sunday of the Games saw many first shows.

Simone Biles, the pioneering American gymnast, made a dazzling return to the Olympic platform after mental health problems paralysed her first flight in Tokyo. It was a performance to see, and the venue — buzzing with A-listers — was a place to be seen. The LeBron James-led US basketball side — 'Dream Team' — made its first recital, beating a team with another NBA superstar, Serbia's Nikola Jokic. Two of the many superheroes from the NBA universe who have descended upon Lille.

It was a celebrity catwalk in the world's fashion hub. But in this constellation of stars, one burnt the brightest — Nadal. He was the biggest storyline of the first weekend of the Games.

Right from the opening ceremony — in the rarest of rare moments, the honour of receiving the torch from French legend Zinedine Zidane in the last stretch of the relay was given to him. Most countries would have chosen one of their own. Here in Paris, however, Nadal is one of their own. "Rafa belongs to Paris," Riviera says. "And Paris is Rafa's."

So, the Parisians turned out in unprecedented numbers on Saturday to watch his doubles opener partnering Carlos Alcaraz. It was the king of clay sharing the court with the crown prince, set to succeed the throne. When Nadal said he was unsure about his participation in the singles, they held their breath. And after he complained about the scheduling of matches, calling it "outrageous", they firmly stood behind him.

Paris has taken care of Nadal from the time he first came here as a muscular teenager in those capris and sleeveless shirts, with that signature bandana strapped around his forehead.

It's taken a city to raise a star. Everyone at Roland-Garros has a Rafa story.

Shooter Arjun misses medal

NITIN SHARMA
Chandigarh, July 29

AS AN ALMOST teary-eyed Arjun missed a medal in the death of our dreams. It's just the start of Arjun's Olympic dream and a fourth place can't end his journey as a shooter or his dream to win an Olympics medal for India some day.

Deepti, whose short story collection Bhukh Eon Sah Laindi Hai (Hunger breathes like this) had won the Dhahan Prize for Punjabi International Literature last year, said.

While Arjun's father Neeraj was cheering for the youngster during the eight-shooter final, where Arjun was among the top three for the major part, the retired station superintendent kept himself in his room after the near-miss for his son.

Arjun's fascination with shooting began when his father read an article about a shooter winning multiple medals in 2012. A teenager Arjun would approach Olympic gold medalist Abhinav Bindra's coach JS Dhillon for training in 2013. He would accompany her mother on a scooter with his equipment in an auto-rickshaw.

Arjun would win a bronze medal at the ISSF Junior World Cup and an Asian Championships silver in 2016. But he suffered a setback in 2018 when he fell during practice at the Mohali range.

STATES CANNOT SHIRK RESPONSIBILITY, SAYS PRADHAN

Panel set up to probe Delhi coaching centre deaths

Treasury, Opposition benches indulge in blame game in Rajya Sabha

NIKHILA HENRY & ANONNA DUTT
New Delhi, July 29

THE SHORT DURATION discussion in the Rajya Sabha on Monday over the death of three UPSC aspirants due to flooding of the basement of a coaching centre in Delhi saw a blame game between the Treasury and Opposition benches, with the BJP ministers and MPs accusing the Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) government over the incident.

Hitting back, the AAP and the Opposition INDIA bloc targeted the Centre over the incident that occurred at Rau's IAS Study Circle in Delhi's Old Rajinder Nagar following heavy rains on July 27.

Education minister Dharmendra Pradhan and minister for housing and urban affairs Manohar Lal Khattar spoke during the debate in the Upper House, which was allowed by chairman Jagdeep Dhankar after the Question Hour.

Pradhan said that while education is in the Concurrent List, states cannot shirk their responsibility when it comes to cracking down on illegal coaching institutes.

The education minister told the House that the Union government had sent directives to all states in 2017, 2019, 2020 and 2024 to regulate coaching institutes. The directives were aimed at registration of coaching institutes and prescribing minimum standards that the coaching institutes must follow, he said. The directives also made it clear to the states that they should monitor the functioning of such coaching institutes and penalise them for any lapses, he added.

"Centre has sent an advisory to all states about coach-

ing centres. If that was followed this incident would not have done. It is the state's responsibility. You cannot shirk the responsibility," Pradhan said, adding, "We must pin responsibility to prevent such incidents from recurring."

Minister Khattar, who spoke after Pradhan, accused the AAP-led Delhi government of "carelessness". He said the government's alleged negligence led to the deaths of three students. Those who were responsible for these deaths is the AAP-run Municipal Corporation of Delhi (MCD) or the Delhi government, he said, accusing the AAP government of not maintaining sewerage lines that extend even up to Haryana.

Khattar said that the errant coaching institute was given a No Objection Certification (NOC) by the MCD despite having no clearance to run classes in the basement of the building. He said that on the complaints portal of the MCD a student of the errant institute had lodged a complaint pointing to the poor condition of the institute. This too was

"ignored", he said.

AAP member Sanjay Singh, however, defended the Delhi government, stating that the Delhi government has managed the sewers well. The AAP government has provided piped water to 99.6% people in unregulated colonies, installed over 4,000 km sewer lines in 1,000 plus unregulated colonies, changed 3,500 km of water pipeline and 3,100 km sewer lines, and installed 7,300 km new water pipeline, he said.

On why the errant coaching centre was allowed to operate, Singh said that such coaching centres have been functioning for the last 20-25 years, during which the BJP was largely running the MCD. He added that the Delhi minister in-charge had asked the officers to carry out desilting activities in the city, but "they were not listening with the control of services being with the Lt Governor", who reports to the Centre.

The debate also witnessed

several Opposition leaders accusing the Union government of allowing coaching institutes to mushroom in the country.

Treading with care, the INDIA bloc MPs tried to steer clear of blaming the AAP, their alliance partner, in the process.

While some like Tiruchi Siva of the DMK placed the blame squarely on the L-G for not allowing the elected AAP government to function, leaders of the Congress, RJD, CPI(M), CPI and IUML were of the opinion that the coaching institutes should be blamed and that the Union government, under whom education falls, should be held responsible for the mushrooming of these institutes.

Meanwhile, the ministry of home affairs (MHA) has constituted a committee to inquire into the incident. The committee will enquire about the reasons, fix responsibility, suggest measures and recommend policy changes.

Paris cheers for Rafa's 'last dance'

MIHIR VASAVDA
Paris, July 29

INSIDE THE MEGA kitchen of Paris's biggest, most famous patisserie, the chef is overcome by bittersweet emotions.

The last dance of the man whose birthday cakes he's made, designed and delivered, for a better part of the last two decades could be near. And chef Marc Riviere fears it'll be here. "The thought of it makes me sad," says Riviere, who was also the pastry chef for the Ambani wedding last month, adding, "very, very sad."

About 6 km away, inside the centre court of Roland-Garros, the sentiment is the same. A Frenchman has a Spanish flag draped around his shoulders. On it is a request: "Rafa, please don't retire." Monday's biggest draw at the Paris Olympics wasn't the medal events at the gymnastics arena or the pool. It was a second-round tennis match.

Rafael Nadal and Novak Djokovic, who have 46 Grand Slams between them, have played each other 60 times — no two players have faced one another more.

The result, in a way, was a foregone conclusion. Djokovic won 6-1, 6-4 in a little under two hours. But the thousands in Court Philippe-Chatrier weren't there for the outcome. They sat under the harsh sun just to pay

Shooter Arjun misses medal

NITIN SHARMA
Chandigarh, July 29

AS AN ALMOST teary-eyed author Deepti Babuta shows her son Arjun Babuta's trophy cabinet moments after the 25-year-old finished fourth in the men's 10m air rifle final at the Paris Olympics, the award-winning author points towards an anthology of poems Sab toh Khatarnak by Punjabi poet Avtaar Singh Paash.

The author and emotional mother recites a verse as a message to her son post the heart-breaking finish at the Chateauroux range.

"Sab toh khatarnak hunda hai sade supnaye da mar jana (The most dangerous thing is the death of our dreams). It's just the start of Arjun's Olympic dream and a fourth place can't end his journey as a shooter or his dream to win an Olympics medal for India some day," Deepti, whose short story collection Bhukh Eon Sah Laindi Hai (Hunger breathes like this) had won the Dhahan Prize for Punjabi International Literature last year, said.

STATES CANNOT SHIRK RESPONSIBILITY, SAYS PRADHAN

Panel set up to probe Delhi coaching centre deaths

Treasury, Opposition benches indulge in blame game in Rajya Sabha

NIKHILA HENRY & ANONNA DUTT
New Delhi, July 29

THE SHORT DURATION discussion in the Rajya Sabha on Monday over the death of three UPSC aspirants due to flooding of the basement of a coaching centre in Delhi saw a blame game between the Treasury and Opposition benches, with the BJP ministers and MPs accusing the Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) government over the incident.

Hitting back, the AAP and the Opposition INDIA bloc targeted the Centre over the incident that occurred at Rau's IAS Study Circle in Delhi's Old Rajinder Nagar following heavy rains on July 27.

Education minister Dharmendra Pradhan and minister for housing and urban affairs Manohar Lal Khattar spoke during the debate in the Upper House, which was allowed by chairman Jagdeep Dhankar after the Question Hour.

Pradhan said that while education is in the Concurrent List, states cannot shirk their responsibility when it comes to cracking down on illegal coaching institutes.

The education minister told the House that the Union government had sent directives to all states in 2017, 2019, 2020 and 2024 to regulate coaching institutes. The directives were aimed at registration of coaching institutes and prescribing minimum standards that the coaching institutes must follow, he said. The directives also made it clear to the states that they should monitor the functioning of such coaching institutes and penalise them for any lapses, he added.

"Centre has sent an advisory to all states about coach-

ing centres. If that was followed this incident would not have done. It is the state's responsibility. You cannot shirk the responsibility," Pradhan said, adding, "We must pin responsibility to prevent such incidents from recurring."

Minister Khattar, who spoke after Pradhan, accused the AAP-led Delhi government of "carelessness". He said the government's alleged negligence led to the deaths of three students. Those who were responsible for these deaths is the AAP-run Municipal Corporation of Delhi (MCD) or the Delhi government, he said, accusing the AAP government of not maintaining sewerage lines that extend even up to Haryana.

Khattar said that the errant coaching institute was given a No Objection Certification (NOC) by the MCD despite having no clearance to run classes in the basement of the building. He said that on the complaints portal of the MCD a student of the errant institute had lodged a complaint pointing to the poor condition of the institute. This too was

"ignored", he said. AAP member Sanjay Singh, however, defended the Delhi government, stating that the Delhi government has managed the sewers well. The AAP government has provided piped water to 99.6% people in unregulated colonies, installed over 4,000 km sewer lines in 1,000 plus unregulated colonies, changed 3,500 km of water pipeline and 3,100 km sewer lines, and installed 7,300 km new water pipeline, he said.

On why the errant coaching centre was allowed to operate, Singh said that such coaching centres have been functioning for the last 20-25 years, during which the BJP was largely running the MCD. He added that the Delhi minister in-charge had asked the officers to carry out desilting activities in the city, but "they were not listening with the control of services being with the Lt Governor", who reports to the Centre.

The debate also witnessed several Opposition leaders accusing the Union government of allowing coaching institutes to mushroom in the country. Treading with care, the INDIA bloc MPs tried to steer clear of blaming the AAP, their alliance partner, in the process. While some like Tiruchi Siva of the DMK placed the blame squarely on the L-G for not allowing the elected AAP government to function, leaders of the Congress, RJD, CPI(M), CPI and IUML were of the opinion that the coaching institutes should be blamed and that the Union government, under whom education falls, should be held responsible for the mushrooming of these institutes.

Meanwhile, the ministry of home affairs (MHA) has constituted a committee to inquire into the incident. The committee will enquire about the reasons, fix responsibility, suggest measures and recommend policy changes.

Paris cheers for Rafa's 'last dance'

MIHIR VASAVDA
Paris, July 29

INSIDE THE MEGA kitchen of Paris's biggest, most famous patisserie, the chef is overcome by bittersweet emotions.

The last dance of the man whose birthday cakes he's made, designed and delivered, for a better part of the last two decades could be near. And chef Marc Riviere fears it'll be here. "The thought of it makes me sad," says Riviere, who was also the pastry chef for the Ambani wedding last month, adding, "very, very sad."

About 6 km away, inside the centre court of Roland-Garros, the sentiment is the same. A Frenchman has a Spanish flag draped around his shoulders. On it is a request: "Rafa, please don't retire." Monday's biggest draw at the Paris Olympics wasn't the medal events at the gymnastics arena or the pool. It was a second-round tennis match.

Rafael Nadal and Novak Djokovic, who have 46 Grand Slams between them, have played each other 60 times — no two players have faced one another more.

The result, in a way, was a foregone conclusion. Djokovic won 6-1, 6-4 in a little under two hours. But the thousands in Court Philippe-Chatrier weren't there for the outcome. They sat under the harsh sun just to pay homage to a player who has won more matches and more titles than any other player on this court — Nadal.

Rafael Nadal and Novak Djokovic during their second round match in Paris on Monday. Djokovic won 6-1, 6-4 in a little under two hours

The first Sunday of the Games saw many first shows. Simone Biles, the pioneering American gymnast, made a dazzling return to the Olympic platform after mental health problems paralysed her first flight in Tokyo. It was a performance to see, and the venue — buzzing with A-listers — was a place to be seen. The LeBron James-led US basketball side — 'Dream Team' — made its first recital, beating a team with another NBA superstar, Serbia's Nikola Jokic. Two of the many superheroes from the NBA universe who have descended upon Lille.

It was a celebrity catwalk in the world's fashion hub. But in this constellation of stars, one burnt the brightest — Nadal. He was the biggest storyline of the first weekend of the Games.

Right from the opening ceremony — in the rarest of rare moments, the honour of receiving the torch from French legend Zinedine Zidane in the last stretch of the relay was given to him. Most countries would have chosen one of their own. Here in Paris, however, Nadal is one of their own. "Rafa belongs to Paris," Riviera says. "And Paris is Rafa's."

So, the Parisians turned out in unprecedented numbers on Saturday to watch his doubles opener partnering Carlos Alcaraz. It was the king of clay sharing the court with the crown prince, set to succeed the throne. When Nadal said he was unsure about his participation in the singles, they held their breath. And after he complained about the scheduling of matches, calling it "outrageous", they firmly stood behind him.

Paris has taken care of Nadal from the time he first came here as a muscular teenager in those capris and sleeveless shirts, with that signature bandana strapped around his forehead.

It's taken a city to raise a star. Everyone at Roland-Garros has a Rafa story.

Shooter Arjun misses medal

NITIN SHARMA
Chandigarh, July 29

AS AN ALMOST teary-eyed author Deepthi Babuta shows her son Arjun Babuta's trophy cabinet moments after the 25-year-old finished fourth in the men's 10m air rifle final at the Paris Olympics, the award-winning author points towards an anthology of poems Sab toh Khatarnak by Punjabi poet Avtaar Singh Paash.

The author and emotional mother recites a verse as a message to her son post the heart-breaking finish at the Chateauroux range.

"Sab toh khatarnak hunda hai sade supnaye da mar jana (The most dangerous thing is the death of our dreams). It's just the start of Arjun's Olympic dream and a fourth place can't end his journey as a shooter or his dream to win an Olympics medal for India some day," Deepthi, whose short story collection Bhukh Eon Sah Laindi Hai (Hunger breathes like this) had won the Dhahan Prize for Punjabi International Literature last year, said.

While Arjun's father Neeraj was cheering for the youngster during the eight-shooter final, where Arjun was among the top three for the major part, the retired station superintendent kept himself in his room after the near-miss for his son. Arjun's fascination with shooting began when his father read an article about a shooter winning multiple medals in 2012. A teenager Arjun would approach Olympic gold medalist Abhinav Bindra's coach JS Dhillon for training in 2013. He would accompany her mother on a scooter with his equipment in an auto-rickshaw.

Arjun would win a bronze medal at the ISSF Junior World Cup and an Asian Championships silver in 2016. But he suffered a setback in 2018 when he fell during practice at the Mohali range.

STATES CANNOT SHIRK RESPONSIBILITY, SAYS PRADHAN

Panel set up to probe Delhi coaching centre deaths

Treasury, Opposition benches indulge in blame game in Rajya Sabha

NIKHILA HENRY & ANONNA DUTT
New Delhi, July 29

THE SHORT DURATION discussion in the Rajya Sabha on Monday over the death of three UPSC aspirants due to flooding of the basement of a coaching centre in Delhi saw a blame game between the Treasury and Opposition benches, with the BJP ministers and MPs accusing the Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) government over the incident.

Hitting back, the AAP and the Opposition INDIA bloc targeted the Centre over the incident that occurred at Rau's IAS Study Circle in Delhi's Old Rajinder Nagar following heavy rains on July 27.

Education minister Dharmendra Pradhan and minister for housing and urban affairs Manohar Lal Khattar spoke during the debate in the Upper House, which was allowed by chairman Jagdeep Dhankar after the Question Hour.

Pradhan said that while education is in the Concurrent List, states cannot shirk their responsibility when it comes to cracking down on illegal coaching institutes.

The education minister told the House that the Union government had sent directives to all states in 2017, 2019, 2020 and 2024 to regulate coaching institutes. The directives were aimed at registration of coaching institutes and prescribing minimum standards that the coaching institutes must follow, he said.

The directives also made it clear to the states that they should monitor the functioning of such coaching institutes and penalise them for any lapses, he added.

"Centre has sent an advisory to all states about coach-

ing centres. If that was followed this incident would not have done. It is the state's responsibility. You cannot shirk the responsibility," Pradhan said, adding, "We must pin responsibility to prevent such incidents from recurring."

Minister Khattar, who spoke after Pradhan, accused the AAP-led Delhi government of "carelessness". He said the government's alleged negligence led to the deaths of three students. Those who were responsible for these deaths is the AAP-run Municipal Corporation of Delhi (MCD) or the Delhi government, he said, accusing the AAP government of not maintaining sewerage lines that extend even up to Haryana.

Khattar said that the errant coaching institute was given a No Objection Certification (NOC) by the MCD despite having no clearance to run classes in the basement of the building. He said that on the complaints portal of the MCD a student of the errant institute had lodged a complaint pointing to the poor condition of the institute. This too was

"ignored", he said. AAP member Sanjay Singh, however, defended the Delhi government, stating that the Delhi government has managed the sewers well. The AAP government has provided piped water to 99.6% people in unregulated colonies, installed over 4,000 km sewer lines in 1,000 plus unregulated colonies, changed 3,500 km of water pipeline and 3,100 km sewer lines, and installed 7,300 km new water pipeline, he said.

On why the errant coaching centre was allowed to operate, Singh said that such coaching centres have been functioning for the last 20-25 years, during which the BJP was largely running the MCD. He added that the Delhi minister in-charge had asked the officers to carry out desilting activities in the city, but "they were not listening with the control of services being with the Lt Governor", who reports to the Centre.

The debate also witnessed

several Opposition leaders accusing the Union government of allowing coaching institutes to mushroom in the country.

Treading with care, the INDIA bloc MPs tried to steer clear of blaming the AAP, their alliance partner, in the process.

While some like Tiruchi Siva of the DMK placed the blame squarely on the I-G for not allowing the elected AAP government to function, leaders of the Congress, RJD, CPI(M), CPI and IUML were of the opinion that the coaching institutes should be blamed and that the Union government, under whom education falls, should be held responsible for the mushrooming of these institutes.

Meanwhile, the ministry of home affairs (MHA) has constituted a committee to inquire into the incident. The committee will enquire about the reasons, fix responsibility, suggest measures and recommend policy changes.

Paris cheers for Rafa's 'last dance'

MIHIR VASAVDA
Paris, July 29

INSIDE THE MEGA kitchen of Paris's biggest, most famous patisserie, the chef is overcome by bittersweet emotions.

The last dance of the man whose birthday cakes he's made, designed and delivered, for a better part of the last two decades could be near. And chef Marc Riviere fears it'll be here. "The thought of it makes me sad," says Riviere, who was also the pastry chef for the Ambani wedding last month, adding, "very, very sad."

About 6 km away, inside the centre court of Roland-Garros, the sentiment is the same. A Frenchman has a Spanish flag draped around his shoulders. On it is a request: "Rafa, please don't retire." Monday's biggest draw at the Paris Olympics wasn't the medal events at the gymnastics arena or the pool. It was a second-round tennis match.

Rafael Nadal and Novak Djokovic, who have 46 Grand Slams between them, have played each other 60 times — no two players have faced one another more.

The result, in a way, was a foregone conclusion. Djokovic won 6-1, 6-4 in a little under two hours. But the thousands in Court Philippe-Chatrier weren't there for the outcome. They sat under the harsh sun just to pay

Rafael Nadal and Novak Djokovic during their second round match in Paris on Monday. Djokovic won 6-1, 6-4 in a little under two hours

homage to a player who has won more matches and more titles than any other player on this court — Nadal.

The first Sunday of the Games saw many first shows.

Simone Biles, the pioneering American gymnast, made a dazzling return to the Olympic platform after mental health problems paralysed her first flight in Tokyo. It was a performance to see, and the venue — buzzing with A-listers — was a place to be seen. The LeBron James-led US basketball side — 'Dream Team' — made its first recital, beating a team with another NBA superstar, Serbia's Nikola Jokic. Two of the many superheroes from the NBA universe who have descended upon Lille.

It was a celebrity catwalk in the world's fashion hub. But in this constellation of stars, one burnt the brightest — Nadal. He was the biggest storyline of the first weekend of the Games.

Right from the opening ceremony — in the rarest of rare moments, the honour of receiving the torch from French legend Zinedine Zidane in the last stretch of the relay was given to him. Most countries would have chosen one of their own. Here in Paris, however, Nadal is one of their own. "Rafa belongs to Paris," Riviera says. "And Paris is Rafa's."

So, the Parisians turned out in unprecedented numbers on Saturday to watch his doubles opener partnering Carlos Alcaraz. It was the king of clay sharing the court with the crown prince, set to succeed the throne. When Nadal said he was unsure about his participation in the singles, they held their breath. And after he complained about the scheduling of matches, calling it "outrageous", they firmly stood behind him.

Paris has taken care of Nadal from the time he first came here as a muscular teenager in those capris and sleeveless shirts, with that signature bandana strapped around his forehead.

It's taken a city to raise a star. Everyone at Roland-Garros has a Rafa story.

Shooter Arjun misses medal

NITIN SHARMA
Chandigarh, July 29

AS AN ALMOST teary-eyed Arjun Deepti Babuta shows her son Arjun Babuta's trophy cabinet moments after the 25-year-old finished fourth in the men's 10m air rifle final at the Paris Olympics, the award-winning author points towards an anthology of poems Sab toh Khatarnak by Punjabi poet Avtaar Singh Paash.

The author and emotional mother recites a verse as a message to her son post the heart-breaking finish at the Chateauroux range.

"Sab toh khatarnak hunda hai sade supnaye da mar jana (The most dangerous thing is the death of our dreams). It's just the start of Arjun's Olympic dream and a fourth place can't end his journey as a shooter or his dream to win an Olympics medal for India some day," Deepti, whose short story collection Bhukh Eon Sah Laindi Hai (Hunger breathes like this) had won the Dhahan Prize for Punjabi International Literature last year, said.

While Arjun's father Neeraj was cheering for the youngster during the eight-shooter final, where Arjun was among the top three for the major part, the retired station superintendent kept himself in his room after the near-miss for his son.

Arjun's fascination with shooting began when his father read an article about a shooter winning multiple medals in 2012. A teenager Arjun would approach Olympic gold medalist Abhinav Bindra's coach JS Dhillon for training in 2013. He would accompany her mother on a scooter with his equipment in an auto-rickshaw.

Arjun would win a bronze medal at the ISSF Junior World Cup and an Asian Championships silver in 2016. But he suffered a setback in 2018 when he fell during practice at the Mohali range.

Shooter Arjun misses medal

NITIN SHARMA
Chandigarh, July 29

AS AN ALMOST teary-eyed Arjun Deepti Babuta shows her son Arjun Babuta's trophy cabinet moments after the 25-year-old finished fourth in the men's 10m air rifle final at the Paris Olympics, the award-winning author points towards an anthology of poems Sab toh Khatarnak by Punjabi poet Avtaar Singh Paash.

The author and emotional mother recites a verse as a message to her son post the heart-breaking finish at the Chateauroux range.

"Sab toh khatarnak hunda hai sade supnaye da mar jana (The most dangerous thing is the death of our dreams). It's just the start of Arjun's Olympic dream and a fourth place can't end his journey as a shooter or his dream to win an Olympics medal for India some day," Deepti, whose short story collection Bhukh Eon Sah Laindi Hai (Hunger breathes like this) had won the Dhahan Prize for Punjabi International Literature last year, said.

While Arjun's father Neeraj was cheering for the youngster during the eight-shooter final, where Arjun was among the top three for the major part, the retired station superintendent kept himself in his room after the near-miss for his son.

Arjun's fascination with shooting began when his father read an article about a shooter winning multiple medals in 2012. A teenager Arjun would approach Olympic gold medalist Abhinav Bindra's coach JS Dhillon for training in 2013. He would accompany her mother on a scooter with his equipment in an auto-rickshaw.

Arjun would win a bronze medal at the ISSF Junior World Cup and an Asian Championships silver in 2016. But he suffered a setback in 2018 when he fell during practice at the Mohali range.

STATES CANNOT SHIRK RESPONSIBILITY, SAYS PRADHAN

Panel set up to probe Delhi coaching centre deaths

Treasury, Opposition benches indulge in blame game in Rajya Sabha

NIKHILA HENRY & ANONNA DUTT
New Delhi, July 29

THE SHORT DURATION discussion in the Rajya Sabha on Monday over the death of three UPSC aspirants due to flooding of the basement of a coaching centre in Delhi saw a blame game between the Treasury and Opposition benches, with the BJP ministers and MPs accusing the Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) government over the incident.

Hitting back, the AAP and the Opposition INDIA bloc targeted the Centre over the incident that occurred at Rau's IAS Study Circle in Delhi's Old Rajinder Nagar following heavy rains on July 27.

Education minister Dharmendra Pradhan and minister for housing and urban affairs Manohar Lal Khattar spoke during the debate in the Upper House, which was allowed by chairman Jagdeep Dhankar after the Question Hour.

Pradhan said that while education is in the Concurrent List, states cannot shirk their responsibility when it comes to cracking down on illegal coaching institutes.

The education minister told the House that the Union government had sent directives to all states in 2017, 2019, 2020 and 2024 to regulate coaching institutes. The directives were aimed at registration of coaching institutes and prescribing minimum standards that the coaching institutes must follow, he said. The directives also made it clear to the states that they should monitor the functioning of such coaching institutes and penalise them for any lapses, he added.

"Centre has sent an advisory to all states about coach-

ing centres. If that was followed this incident would not have done. It is the state's responsibility. You cannot shirk the responsibility," Pradhan said, adding, "We must pin responsibility to prevent such incidents from recurring."

Minister Khattar, who spoke after Pradhan, accused the AAP-led Delhi government of "carelessness". He said the government's alleged negligence led to the deaths of three students. Those who were responsible for these deaths is the AAP-run Municipal Corporation of Delhi (MCD) or the Delhi government, he said, accusing the AAP government of not maintaining sewerage lines that extend even up to Haryana.

Khattar said that the errant coaching institute was given a No Objection Certification (NOC) by the MCD despite having no clearance to run classes in the basement of the building. He said that on the complaints portal of the MCD a student of the errant institute had lodged a complaint pointing to the poor condition of the institute. This too was

"ignored", he said.

AAP member Sanjay Singh, however, defended the Delhi government, stating that the Delhi government has managed the sewers well. The AAP government has provided piped water to 99.6% people in unregulated colonies, installed over 4,000 km sewer lines in 1,000 plus unregulated colonies, changed 3,500 km of water pipeline and 3,100 km sewer lines, and installed 7,300 km new water pipeline, he said.

On why the errant coaching centre was allowed to operate, Singh said that such coaching centres have been functioning for the last 20-25 years, during which the BJP was largely running the MCD. He added that the Delhi minister in-charge had asked the officers to carry out desilting activities in the city, but "they were not listening with the control of services being with the Lt Governor", who reports to the Centre.

The debate also witnessed

several Opposition leaders accusing the Union government of allowing coaching institutes to mushroom in the country.

Treading with care, the INDIA bloc MPs tried to steer clear of blaming the AAP, their alliance partner, in the process.

While some like Tiruchi Siva of the DMK placed the blame squarely on the L-G for not allowing the elected AAP government to function, leaders of the Congress, RJD, CPI(M), CPI and IUML were of the opinion that the coaching institutes should be blamed and that the Union government, under whom education falls, should be held responsible for the mushrooming of these institutes.

Meanwhile, the ministry of home affairs (MHA) has constituted a committee to inquire into the incident. The committee will enquire about the reasons, fix responsibility, suggest measures and recommend policy changes.

Paris cheers for Rafa's 'last dance'

MIHIR VASAVDA
Paris, July 29

INSIDE THE MEGA kitchen of Paris's biggest, most famous patisserie, the chef is overcome by bittersweet emotions.

The last dance of the man whose birthday cakes he's made, designed and delivered, for a better part of the last two decades could be near. And chef Marc Riviere fears it'll be here. "The thought of it makes me sad," says Riviere, who was also the pastry chef for the Ambani wedding last month, adding, "very, very sad."

About 6 km away, inside the centre court of Roland-Garros, the sentiment is the same. A Frenchman has a Spanish flag draped around his shoulders. On it is a request: "Rafa, please don't retire." Monday's biggest draw at the Paris Olympics wasn't the medal events at the gymnastics arena or the pool. It was a second-round tennis match.

Rafael Nadal and Novak Djokovic, who have 46 Grand Slams between them, have played each other 60 times — no two players have faced one another more.

The result, in a way, was a foregone conclusion. Djokovic won 6-1, 6-4 in a little under two hours. But the thousands in Court Philippe-Chatrier weren't there for the outcome. They sat under the harsh sun just to pay

Rafael Nadal and Novak Djokovic during their second round match in Paris on Monday. Djokovic won 6-1, 6-4 in a little under two hours

homage to a player who has won more matches and more titles than any other player on this court — Nadal.

The first Sunday of the Games saw many first shows.

Simone Biles, the pioneering American gymnast, made a dazzling return to the Olympic platform after mental health problems paralysed her first flight in Tokyo. It was a performance to see, and the venue — buzzing with A-listers — was a place to be seen. The LeBron James-led US basketball side — 'Dream Team' — made its first recital, beating a team with another NBA superstar, Serbia's Nikola Jokic. Two of the many superheroes from the NBA universe who have descended upon Lille.

It was a celebrity catwalk in the world's fashion hub. But in this constellation of stars, one burnt the brightest — Nadal. He was the biggest storyline of the first weekend of the Games.

Right from the opening ceremony — in the rarest of rare moments, the honour of receiving the torch from French legend Zinedine Zidane in the last stretch of the relay was given to him. Most countries would have chosen one of their own. Here in Paris, however, Nadal is one of their own. "Rafa belongs to Paris," Riviere says. "And Paris is Rafa's."

So, the Parisians turned out in unprecedented numbers on Saturday to watch his doubles opener partnering Carlos Alcaraz. It was the king of clay sharing the court with the crown prince, set to succeed the throne. When Nadal said he was unsure about his participation in the singles, they held their breath. And after he complained about the scheduling of matches, calling it "outrageous", they firmly stood behind him.

Paris has taken care of Nadal from the time he first came here as a muscular teenager in those capris and sleeveless shirts, with that signature bandana strapped around his forehead.

It's taken a city to raise a star. Everyone at Roland-Garros has a Rafa story.

STATES CANNOT SHIRK RESPONSIBILITY, SAYS PRADHAN

Panel set up to probe Delhi coaching centre deaths

Treasury, Opposition benches indulge in blame game in Rajya Sabha

NIKHILA HENRY & ANONNA DUTT
New Delhi, July 29

THE SHORT DURATION discussion in the Rajya Sabha on Monday over the death of three UPSC aspirants due to flooding of the basement of a coaching centre in Delhi saw a blame game between the Treasury and Opposition benches, with the BJP ministers and MPs accusing the Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) government over the incident.

Hitting back, the AAP and the Opposition INDIA bloc targeted the Centre over the incident that occurred at Rau's IAS Study Circle in Delhi's Old Rajinder Nagar following heavy rains on July 27.

Education minister Dharmendra Pradhan and minister for housing and urban affairs Manohar Lal Khattar spoke during the debate in the Upper House, which was allowed by chairman Jagdeep Dhankar after the Question Hour.

Pradhan said that while education is in the Concurrent List, states cannot shirk their responsibility when it comes to cracking down on illegal coaching institutes.

The education minister told the House that the Union government had sent directives to all states in 2017, 2019, 2020 and 2024 to regulate coaching institutes. The directives were aimed at registration of coaching institutes and prescribing minimum standards that the coaching institutes must follow, he said. The directives also made it clear to the states that they should monitor the functioning of such coaching institutes and penalise them for any lapses, he added.

"Centre has sent an advisory to all states about coach-

ing centres. If that was followed this incident would not have done. It is the state's responsibility. You cannot shirk the responsibility," Pradhan said, adding, "We must pin responsibility to prevent such incidents from recurring."

Minister Khattar, who spoke after Pradhan, accused the AAP-led Delhi government of "carelessness". He said the government's alleged negligence led to the deaths of three students. Those who were responsible for these deaths is the AAP-run Municipal Corporation of Delhi (MCD) or the Delhi government, he said, accusing the AAP government of not maintaining sewerage lines that extend even up to Haryana.

Khattar said that the errant coaching institute was given a No Objection Certification (NOC) by the MCD despite having no clearance to run classes in the basement of the building. He said that on the complaints portal of the MCD a student of the errant institute had lodged a complaint pointing to the poor condition of the institute. This too was

"ignored", he said. AAP member Sanjay Singh, however, defended the Delhi government, stating that the Delhi government has managed the sewers well. The AAP government has provided piped water to 99.6% people in unregulated colonies, installed over 4,000 km sewer lines in 1,000 plus unregulated colonies, changed 3,500 km of water pipeline and 3,100 km sewer lines, and installed 7,300 km new water pipeline, he said.

On why the errant coaching centre was allowed to operate, Singh said that such coaching centres have been functioning for the last 20-25 years, during which the BJP was largely running the MCD. He added that the Delhi minister in-charge had asked the officers to carry out desilting activities in the city, but "they were not listening with the control of services being with the Lt Governor", who reports to the Centre.

The debate also witnessed several Opposition leaders accusing the Union government of allowing coaching institutes to mushroom in the country. Treading with care, the INDIA bloc MPs tried to steer clear of blaming the AAP, their alliance partner, in the process.

While some like Tiruchi Siva of the DMK placed the blame squarely on the L-G for not allowing the elected AAP government to function, leaders of the Congress, RJD, CPI(M), CPI and IUML were of the opinion that the coaching institutes should be blamed and that the Union government, under whom education falls, should be held responsible for the mushrooming of these institutes.

Meanwhile, the ministry of home affairs (MHA) has constituted a committee to inquire into the incident. The committee will enquire about the reasons, fix responsibility, suggest measures and recommend policy changes.

Paris cheers for Rafa's 'last dance'

MIHIR VASAVDA
Paris, July 29

INSIDE THE MEGA kitchen of Paris's biggest, most famous patisserie, the chef is overcome by bittersweet emotions.

The last dance of the man whose birthday cakes he's made, designed and delivered, for a better part of the last two decades could be near. And chef Marc Riviere fears it'll be here. "The thought of it makes me sad," says Riviere, who was also the pastry chef for the Ambani wedding last month, adding, "very, very sad."

About 6 km away, inside the centre court of Roland-Garros, the sentiment is the same. A Frenchman has a Spanish flag draped around his shoulders. On it is a request: "Rafa, please don't retire." Monday's biggest draw at the Paris Olympics wasn't the medal events at the gymnastics arena or the pool. It was a second-round tennis match.

Rafael Nadal and Novak Djokovic, who have 46 Grand Slams between them, have played each other 60 times — no two players have faced one another more.

The result, in a way, was a foregone conclusion. Djokovic won 6-1, 6-4 in a little under two hours. But the thousands in Court Philippe-Chatrier weren't there for the outcome. They sat under the harsh sun just to pay

Rafael Nadal and Novak Djokovic during their second round match in Paris on Monday. Djokovic won 6-1, 6-4 in a little under two hours

homage to a player who has won more matches and more titles than any other player on this court — Nadal.

The first Sunday of the Games saw many first shows.

Simone Biles, the pioneering American gymnast, made a dazzling return to the Olympic platform after mental health problems paralysed her first flight in Tokyo. It was a performance to see, and the venue — buzzing with A-listers — was a place to be seen. The LeBron James-led US basketball side — 'Dream Team' — made its first recital, beating a team with another NBA superstar, Serbia's Nikola Jokic. Two of the many superheroes from the NBA universe who have descended upon Lille.

For the home nation, Leon Marchand gave the packed La Defense Arena a reason to go back smiling and wake up with a sense of pride; the Monday morning papers splashing the swim sensation's photo on their front pages.

It was a celebrity catwalk in the world's fashion hub. But in this constellation of stars, one burnt the brightest — Nadal. He was the biggest storyline of the first weekend of the Games.

Right from the opening ceremony — in the rarest of rare moments, the honour of receiving the torch from French legend Zinedine Zidane in the last stretch of the relay was given to him. Most countries would have chosen one of their own. Here in Paris, however, Nadal is one of their own. "Rafa belongs to Paris," Riviera says. "And Paris is Rafa's."

So, the Parisians turned out in unprecedented numbers on Saturday to watch his doubles opener partnering Carlos Alcaraz. It was the king of clay sharing the court with the crown prince, set to succeed the throne. When Nadal said he was unsure about his participation in the singles, they held their breath. And after he complained about the scheduling of matches, calling it "outrageous", they firmly stood behind him.

Paris has taken care of Nadal from the time he first came here as a muscular teenager in those capris and sleeveless shirts, with that signature bandana strapped around his forehead.

It's taken a city to raise a star. Everyone at Roland-Garros has a Rafa story.

Shooter Arjun misses medal

NITIN SHARMA
Chandigarh, July 29

AS AN ALMOST teary-eyed author Deepti Babuta shows her son Arjun Babuta's trophy cabinet moments after the 25-year-old finished fourth in the men's 10m air rifle final at the Paris Olympics, the award-winning author points towards an anthology of poems Sab toh Khatarnak by Punjabi poet Avtaar Singh Paash.

The author and emotional mother recites a verse as a message to her son post the heart-breaking finish at the Chateauroux range.

"Sab toh khatarnak hunda hai sade supnaye da mar jana (The most dangerous thing is the death of our dreams). It's just the start of Arjun's Olympic dream and a fourth place can't end his journey as a shooter or his dream to win an Olympics medal for India some day," Deepti, whose short story collection Bhukh Lon Sah Laindi Hai (Hunger breathes like this) had won the Dhahan Prize for Punjabi International Literature last year, said.

While Arjun's father Neeraj was cheering for the youngster during the eight-shooter final, where Arjun was among the top three for the major part, the retired station superintendent kept himself in his room after the near-miss for his son.

Arjun's fascination with shooting began when his father read an article about a shooter winning multiple medals in 2012. A teenaged Arjun would approach Olympic gold medalist Abhinav Bindra's coach JS Dhillon for training in 2013. He would accompany her mother on a scooter with his equipment in an auto-rickshaw.

Arjun would win a bronze medal at the ISSF Junior World Cup and an Asian Championships silver in 2016. But he suffered a setback in 2018 when he fell during practice at the Mohali range.

Pradhan said that while education is in the Concurrent List, states cannot shirk their responsibility when it comes to cracking down on illegal coaching institutes.

The education minister told the House that the Union government had sent directives to all states in 2017, 2019, 2020 and 2024 to regulate coaching institutes. The directives were aimed at registration of coaching institutes and prescribing minimum standards that the coaching institutes must follow, he said. The directives also made it clear to the states that they should monitor the functioning of such coaching institutes and penalise them for any lapses, he added.

"Centre has sent an advisory to all states about coach-

ing centres. If that was followed this incident would not have done. It is the state's responsibility. You cannot shirk the responsibility," Pradhan said, adding, "We must pin responsibility to prevent such incidents from recurring."

Minister Khattar, who spoke after Pradhan, accused the AAP-led Delhi government of "carelessness". He said the government's alleged negligence led to the deaths of three students. Those who were responsible for these deaths is the AAP-run Municipal Corporation of Delhi (MCD) or the Delhi government, he said, accusing the AAP government of not maintaining sewerage lines that extend even up to Haryana.

Khattar said that the errant coaching institute was given a No Objection Certification (NOC) by the MCD despite having no clearance to run classes in the basement of the building. He said that on the complaints portal of the MCD a student of the errant institute had lodged a complaint pointing to the poor condition of the institute. This too was

"ignored", he said. AAP member Sanjay Singh, however, defended the Delhi government, stating that the Delhi government has managed the sewers well. The AAP government has provided piped water to 99.6% people in unregulated colonies, installed over 4,000 km sewer lines in 1,000 plus unregulated colonies, changed 3,500 km of water pipeline and 3,100 km sewer lines, and installed 7,300 km new water pipeline, he said.

On why the errant coaching centre was allowed to operate, Singh said that such coaching centres have been functioning for the last 20-25 years, during which the BJP was largely running the MCD. He added that the Delhi minister in-charge had asked the officers to carry out desilting activities in the city, but "they were not listening with the control of services being with the Lt Governor", who reports to the Centre.

The debate also witnessed several Opposition leaders accusing the Union government of allowing coaching institutes to mushroom in the country. Treading with care, the INDIA bloc MPs tried to steer clear of blaming the AAP, their alliance partner, in the process. While some like Tiruchi Siva of the DMK placed the blame squarely on the L-G for not allowing the elected AAP government to function, leaders of the Congress, RJD, CPI(M), CPI and IUML were of the opinion that the coaching institutes should be blamed and that the Union government, under whom education falls, should be held responsible for the mushrooming of these institutes.

Meanwhile, the ministry of home affairs (MHA) has constituted a committee to inquire into the incident. The committee will enquire about the reasons, fix responsibility, suggest measures and recommend policy changes.

Paris cheers for Rafa's 'last dance'

MIHIR VASAVDA
Paris, July 29

INSIDE THE MEGA kitchen of Paris's biggest, most famous patisserie, the chef is overcome by bittersweet emotions.

The last dance of the man whose birthday cakes he's made, designed and delivered, for a better part of the last two decades could be near. And chef Marc Riviere fears it'll be here. "The thought of it makes me sad," says Riviere, who was also the pastry chef for the Ambani wedding last month, adding, "very, very sad."

About 6 km away, inside the centre court of Roland-Garros, the sentiment is the same. A Frenchman has a Spanish flag draped around his shoulders. On it is a request: "Rafa, please don't retire." Monday's biggest draw at the Paris Olympics wasn't the medal events at the gymnastics arena or the pool. It was a second-round tennis match.

Rafael Nadal and Novak Djokovic, who have 46 Grand Slams between them, have played each other 60 times — no two players have faced one another more.

The result, in a way, was a foregone conclusion. Djokovic won 6-1, 6-4 in a little under two hours. But the thousands in Court Philippe-Chatrier weren't there for the outcome. They sat under the harsh sun just to pay

Rafael Nadal and Novak Djokovic during their second round match in Paris on Monday. Djokovic won 6-1, 6-4 in a little under two hours

homage to a player who has won more matches and more titles than any other player on this court — Nadal.

The first Sunday of the Games saw many first shows.

Simone Biles, the pioneering American gymnast, made a dazzling return to the Olympic platform after mental health problems paralysed her first flight in Tokyo. It was a performance to see, and the venue — buzzing with A-listers — was a place to be seen. The LeBron James-led US basketball side — 'Dream Team' — made its first recital, beating a team with another NBA superstar, Serbia's Nikola Jokic. Two of the many superheroes from the NBA universe who have descended upon Lille.

For the home nation, Leon Marchand gave the packed La Defense Arena a reason to go back smiling and wake up with a sense of pride; the Monday morning papers splashing the swim sensation's photo on their front pages.

It was a celebrity catwalk in the world's fashion hub. But in this constellation of stars, one burnt the brightest — Nadal. He was the biggest storyline of the first weekend of the Games.

Right from the opening ceremony — in the rarest of rare moments, the honour of receiving the torch from French legend Zinedine Zidane in the last stretch of the relay was given to him. Most countries would have chosen one of their own. Here in Paris, however, Nadal is one of their own. "Rafa belongs to Paris, Riviera says. "And Paris is Rafa's."

So, the Parisians turned out in unprecedented numbers on Saturday to watch his doubles opener partnering Carlos Alcaraz. It was the king of clay sharing the court with the crown prince, set to succeed the throne. When Nadal said he was unsure about his participation in the singles, they held their breath. And after he complained about the scheduling of matches, calling it "outrageous", they firmly stood behind him.

Paris has taken care of Nadal from the time he first came here as a muscular teenager in those capris and sleeveless shirts, with that signature bandana strapped around his forehead.

It's taken a city to raise a star. Everyone at Roland-Garros has a Rafa story.

Shooter Arjun misses medal

NITIN SHARMA
Chandigarh, July 29

AS AN ALMOST teary-eyed author Deepthi Babuta shows her son Arjun Babuta's trophy cabinet moments after the 25-year-old finished fourth in the men's 10m air rifle final at the Paris Olympics, the award-winning author points towards an anthology of poems Sab toh Khatarnak by Punjabi poet Avtaar Singh Paash.

The author and emotional mother recites a verse as a message to her son post the heart-breaking finish at the Chateauroux range.

"Sab toh khatarnak hunda hai sade supnaye da mar jana (The most dangerous thing is the death of our dreams). It's just the start of Arjun's Olympic dream and a fourth place can't end his journey as a shooter or his dream to win an Olympics medal for India some day," Deepthi, whose short story collection Bhukh Eon Sah Laindi Hai (Hunger breathes like this) had won the Dhahan Prize for Punjabi International Literature last year, said.

While Arjun's father Neeraj was cheering for the youngster during the eight-shooter final, where Arjun was among the top three for the major part, the retired station superintendent kept himself in his room after the near-miss for his son. Arjun's fascination with shooting began when his father read an article about a shooter winning multiple medals in 2012. A teenager Arjun would approach Olympic gold medalist Abhinav Bindra's coach JS Dhillon for training in 2013. He would accompany her mother on a scooter with his equipment in an auto-rickshaw.

Arjun would win a bronze medal at the ISSF Junior World Cup and an Asian Championships silver in 2016. But he suffered a setback in 2018 when he fell during practice at the Mohali range.

STATES CANNOT SHIRK RESPONSIBILITY, SAYS PRADHAN

Panel set up to probe Delhi coaching centre deaths

Treasury, Opposition benches indulge in blame game in Rajya Sabha

NIKHILA HENRY & ANONNA DUTT
New Delhi, July 29

THE SHORT DURATION discussion in the Rajya Sabha on Monday over the death of three UPSC aspirants due to flooding of the basement of a coaching centre in Delhi saw a blame game between the Treasury and Opposition benches, with the BJP ministers and MPs accusing the Aam Aadmi Party (AAP) government over the incident.

Hitting back, the AAP and the Opposition INDIA bloc targeted the Centre over the incident that occurred at Rau's IAS Study Circle in Delhi's Old Rajinder Nagar following heavy rains on July 27.

Education minister Dharmendra Pradhan and minister for housing and urban affairs Manohar Lal Khattar spoke during the debate in the Upper House, which was allowed by chairman Jagdeep Dhankar after the Question Hour.

Pradhan said that while education is in the Concurrent List, states cannot shirk their responsibility when it comes to cracking down on illegal coaching institutes.

The education minister told the House that the Union government had sent directives to all states in 2017, 2019, 2020 and 2024 to regulate coaching institutes.
