Brookfield's Tower InvIT Acquires Space Teleinfra for Over ₹900 cr

Kolkata: Brookfield-sponsored Tower Infrastructure Trust (Tower InvIT) has acquired space teleinfra (STI) from a private company, for ₹900 crore and other milestones, including the acquisition of cash-cum-units deal.

Under the deal, STI's shareholders will receive a combination of cash and units in Brookfield-owned Tower InvIT, a professional asset management unit, the two companies said.

A joint statement on Tuesday said, "Tower Infrastructure Trust (Tower InvIT) has acquired STI from a private company, for ₹900 crore and other milestones, including the acquisition of cash-cum-units deal."

STI, a leading Indian coverage provider, is a subsidiary of the old India Infrastructure Manager, said in

The company unveiled a 1,000 megawatt (MW) greenfield facility in Chennai on Tuesday, taking its total capacity to 1,000 MW and becoming the biggest domestic solar power producer in the country.

"A lot of money is chasing the sector in the cross-corporate space, but we see an opportunity that is available to us, which is why the government's Production-Linked Incentive scheme worth ₹1,60,000 cr, will not meet the requirements to tap into the funds.

The company hopes to capitalise on the Indian solar industry's drive to cut dependence on China. The IECI and issue of an approved list of models and manufacturers for government procurements are incentives that are expected to propel developers to use Indian components.

Brookfield said in the STI acquisition, Tower InvIT will further expand its range of passive telecommunication infrastructure services for customers, from macro towers to indoor solutions.

Closing of the acquisition, it said, is subject to regulatory approvals and is likely in the second half of 2021.

Under the synergies with Tower InvIT, this transaction will further strengthen growth opportunities for STI.

With the onset of 5G and data consumption, passive telecommunication services become as essential as end-user services, and this transaction is a new horizon for STI, said Amit Gokul, co-founder, STI.
