whether the same would fall within related party transactions? If yes, whether the same is done at "arm's length".	Not a related party transaction

Commenting on the order, Mr. Sheshadri Srinivas, Chief Executive Officer (CEO) of the Company, said that

"Tenpoint's subscription to Auryis is a defining moment for Canarys. It is the first commercial sale of our own product, and it marks our move from a services-led company to one that also builds and sells its own AI products.

This win carries two endorsements at once. Tenpoint, a pharmaceutical company, has chosen Auryis for its operations/compliance. Eversana, a global CRO and life sciences services firm, has chosen to take Auryis to its clients. When both the end customer and an established partner in the industry back a product, it shows real confidence in its capability, compliance readiness and value. This matters all the more in pharma, one of the most regulated industries in the world.

Pharma companies face a growing challenge. Patient experiences, possible adverse events and brand conversations are spread across social platforms in huge volumes and in real time. Auryis' "AI-Enabled Social Media Monitoring" module helps them find, sort and act on these signals faster and more accurately, which supports both patient safety and compliance.

Our partnership with Eversana gives Auryis a strong channel to reach life sciences companies around the world. We see this first win as the foundation of long-term relationships with both Tenpoint and Eversana, and as the start of a scalable, recurring-revenue product business for Canarys."
