Taking selfies has become a modern social phenomenon

Vinod Chandrashekar Dixit
Free-lance Journalist, Writer & Cartoonist (dixitpatrakar@yahoo.in)

Ahmedabad. The selfie has become a huge part of modern life. It has transformed the simple self-portrait into something more immediate and has grown in cultural importance - it's been linked to identity, self-exploration and narcissism. Millions of people across the world everyday hold up their cameras to snap selfies to share with their friends. The number of people who die each year taking a selfie is on the rise.

Psychiatrists say there is a rise in the number of selfies cases. Doctors have also been warning that taking too many selfies could result in "Selfies", which they describe as a mental disorder. Recently, the American Psychiatric Association actually declared that taking selfies is a mental disorder, going as far as to term the condition "Selfies". The APA has defined as: "the obsessive compulsive desire to take photos of one's self and post them on social media as a way to make up for the lack of self-esteem and to fill a gap in intimacy." Selfies are of two types - group and individual. The individual selfie-addiction is a matter of concern. Alarmed by the trend, Mumbai has already declared 16 no-selfie zones across the city and the authorities warn people against taking unnecessary snaps. The Mumbai police has also declared selfie-off-limits in areas perceived as risky - particularly along the coastline in spots with no railings or barrier risk.

Clicking selfie is a magnified way of seeing oneself in the mirror. Today teenagers are more concerned about how they look and how others perceive them. Generally, individual selfie-clickers are seeking identity and meaning in the world. Despite clear signs denoting the selfie-free zones in most of the risky points in metros, people still continue clicking away, and often going to the edges or standing on ledges to get the most thrilling shots. One must remember that live your own life - don't live before the eyes of others.

The most likely cause of death was falling from a great height, with people going to extreme lengths to take a selfie on cliffs or the top of buildings to impress followers on social media. In India, there are more selfie-related deaths than in any other country.

People suffering from the self-mania could also consider taking pictures of their work achievements rather than just focusing on their physical appearance. However, it is important to not obsess over appearances. This can lead to overlooking other things that really matter. By taking selfies, some people are only looking for the attention and the approval of others. It's really important to remind young people that comparing themselves to others on social media is unhelpful, as they're comparing themselves to something impossible and unattainable - nobody looks fantastic all the time and everyone has bad days. With some mental health professionals believe that taking selfies can become an obsession, especially for people who suffer from body image disorders. Sometimes people try to tweak their looks by downloading mobile applications for getting the perfect selfie result.
