SAIBABA & SWAMI SAMARTH MESSAGE FOR THE DAY

We know that you are being brave on the outside but inside you are disturbed and broken. We didn't grant you the wish that you asked for but still you showed faith. You consoled yourself that our rejection is our way of protecting you. Yes, you are right. We value your faith in us.

Let the past go. Get up and take action towards your dreams. You will receive good news today. Cherish it even if it is small.

Tip for the day: Think about a wish that is taking a long time to manifest and say "Baba and Swami, please make my wish come true for my highest good, this or better than you".

Lots of divine miracles your way, Sheetal Sapan Mhatre.

The Hippopotamus

The Hippopotamus is the world's third-largest land animal. It weighs around 1,600 kg and is 3.5 m long. In spite of its barrel-like body, massive head and fat legs, it is surprisingly agile and can run fast at a speed of 30 km per hour.

The hippo spends the entire day submerged in water. Its eyes, ears and nose are positioned in such a way that it is able to see, hear and breathe even with most of its head under water. It is able to close its ears and nose when swimming or diving and can stay underwater for as long as 6 minutes.

A hippopotamus does not sweat. It does not have sweat glands. As it lies in water all day, it has no problem in keeping cool. Special glands under its skin give out an oily secretion and prevents its skin from getting dry.

Territorial fights are common. When a hippopotamus opens its huge mouth and yawns, it means that it is ready for a fight. It sometimes opens its mouth as wide as 90 to 120 cm. If the challenged hippopotamus bows its head in submission, the fight does not take place. Only if it yawns in return, the two begin to slash each other with their long tusk-like canines (side teeth) and fight till one of them gets killed or gets a broken leg.

The front teeth of a hippopotamus are long and curved. The canines are even longer. The teeth grow throughout its life. But as the upper and lower jaws grind together, they wear each other away and the teeth never grow too long.

During the day a hippopotamus feeds on water plants, but at night it eats fruits, grass, leaves or vegetables that grow on land. It eats about 60 kilos of food everyday, using its thick lips to pluck food. A hippopotamus' lips can be as broad as 50 cm.

The baby hippopotamus (calf) weighs 45 kg at birth. It can swim soon after it is born. For the first four to six months, it drinks only its mother's milk, after which, it begins to feed on grass. The calf lives with its mother and other female hippopotamuses in a central territory. The males live a solitary life around its periphery. No animal attacks an adult hippopotamus, but the young are sometimes attacked by crocodiles, hyenas and lions.

GUIDING LIGHT

Fly a kite across the river — Rajyogi Brahmakumar Nikunj ji

The recent cases of violence that took place in one of the Eastern States of India, shocked the whole nation and has once again, brought into focus the problem of violence in our society. For a country whose birth was inspired by the concept of nonviolence, it is indeed very sad and shameful to note that violent behaviour in our society, especially among youth is increasing day by day. One, however, feels disappointed to note that even today as ever before, the cases of violence are treated mainly, if not exclusively, as a law-and-order or a security problem and the governments generally take only punitive measures against all such cases.

However, research done by social scientists and psychologists, in our day, on various groups and various cross-sections of the society, both rural and urban, amply suggests that all kinds of violence are, in fact, due to personality disorder. It is now a clear conclusion of this research that a person's quarrelsome behaviour or his inability to get along with others or his nefarious way of solving his problems by use of force or violence is a kind of deviant behaviour that has to be dealt with at psychological level rather than to be looked upon as a merely law-and-order problem.

We all must realize that good or evil are in fact the traits of the human soul and even after death these traits or sanskars are carried on to the next birth. These sanskars may change or become stronger as per the person's karma in the next life. Hence, it follows that one may kill an evil person but one cannot destroy the evil in that person. It would instead increase due to feelings of hatred and revenge. Remember! An evil act is bound to be punished as per the Law of Karma in the present or the next birth, because there is a natural justice system that works infallibly and eternally. Hence, one must never think that if someone avenges a wrong by doing wrong in turn, he/she will not suffer. No! The truth is that in this case, both the persons will have to pay for their respective wrong actions by undergoing some suffering, because any act done with ill will towards others is violence and it is bound to bring sorrow for the doer. Hence, a person may escape the laws of the land but his karma will catch up with him sooner or later for sure.
