The old Nisarapur is going to drown. The residents of the area are being rehabilitated. All the displaced people have been given lands by the district administration. Bus facilities will also be provided to the villagers of village Chikhaldia and Nissarpur.

Bus body building is supply of goods and service: Ministry

Indore is major centre for coach building in the region

OUR STAFF REPORTER
Indore

Union Finance Ministry has clarified that in case of bus building it is supply of goods and service both.

It may be mention that the city is a major hub of bus building in the region. Bhargathpura and Gouri Nagar, Mechanic Nagar are major areas where bus body building work carried out on a large scale.

The ministry has issued clarification regarding GST in respect of certain services. These are approved by the Fitment Committee to the GST Council in its meeting held on January 9, January 10, and January 13, 2018.

It was asked whether activity of bus body building is supply of goods or services? The Ministry replied that in case of bus body building, there is supply of goods and services. Thus, classification of this composite supply, as goods or service would depend on which supply is the principal supply which may be determined on the basis of facts and circumstances of each case.

Issuing another clarification, where it was asked whether retreading of tyres is a supply of goods or services, The ministry said that retreading of tyres, which is a composite supply, the predominant element is the process of retreading which is a supply of service. Rubber used for retreading is an ancillary supply which is part of a composite supply is the principal supply must be determined keeping in view the nature of the supply involved. Value may be one of the guiding factors in this determination, but not the sole factor.

The primary question that should be asked is what is the essential nature of the composite supply and which element of the supply imparts that essential nature to Circular issued in August 2018 related to the composite supply.

Supply of retreaded tyres, where the old tyres belong to the supplier of retreaded tyres, is a supply of goods (retreaded tyres under heading 4012 of the Customs Tariff attracting GST @ 28%), the ministry added.

In reply to another query whether Priority Sector Lending Certificates (PSLCs) are outside the purview of GST and therefore not taxable, the ministry clarified that in Reserve Bank of India FAQ on PSLC, it has been mentioned that PSLC may be construed to be in the nature of goods, dealing in which has been notified as a permissible activity under Section 6(1) of the Banking Regulation Act, 1949 vide Government of India notification dated February 4th, 2016. PSLC are not securities. PSLC are akin to freely traceable duty scraps, Renewable Energy Certificates, REP license or replenishment license, which attracted VAT. In GST there is no exemption to trading in PSLCs. Thus, PSLCs are taxable as goods at standard rate of 18%. GST payable on the certificates would be available as ITC to the bank buying the certificates.

Speaker refuses police protection

OUR STAFF REPORTER
BHOPAL

Angry over removal of police protection from his government bungalow during Lok Sabha polls, the speaker N P Prajapati has deputed Assembly's security personnel at his residence.

The decision to remove police protection from his bungalow at Char Imli without his permission has not gone down well with the speaker. Prajapati deputed staff of state assembly as guards at his government bungalow. Despite constant requests by Police department, he has refused to take police protection.

Prajapati said only home minister knew much about that matter. He said he had come from a humble place called Goteagaon and police protection would not make any difference to him.

According to information, DGP VK Singh and IG, law and order, Yogesh Chaudhary have discussed with Prajapati about resuming of police protection at his bungalow but the latter is not ready for it.

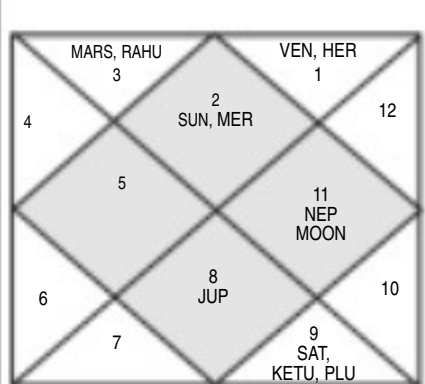

On the other hand, home minister Bala Bachchan said Speaker would be given protection and he would personally talk to him on this issue.

According to information, district Police had put one security guard at Speaker's place due to shortage of police force during elections. The security personnel were removed from his bungalow.
