POLICE IN Ahmedabad rural Tuesday arrested a 32-year-old man for allegedly murdering his seven-year-old daughter by injecting her with pesticide and then throwing her into a Namada canal.

According to police, Dharmesh Devpaul, a resident of Khoda in Sanand of Ahmedabad rural, was held for the murder of his daughter Priyanka (7) on July 8 evening. According to police, Dharmesh was a divorcee and used to stay with his daughter.

"Dharmesh Devpaul initially approached the police on July 9 with a complaint stating that his daughter is missing... He told us a fake story that on July 8 morning, he left his village Khoda to send her to school with his daughter to buy her a bicycle. He then claimed he didn't purchase the bicycle and only had lunch with her and then boarded a state transport bus. He said that midway his daughter created a scene demanding bicycle and the bus boarded the bus in Vasna. He then claimed that a Maruti Eco van arrived at the spot and offered him lift till Khoda. According to him, the Eco driver offered chocolate to him and his daughter due to which he slept off. He then claimed that his daughter was missing when he woke up on Lahbar. Think a road side," said HB Gohil, inspector, Sanand town police station.

"We started checking CCTV footage of bus stands and also with the state transport bus that crossed the Vasna but couldn't get any details then travelling. Then we cross questioned Dharmesh and he confessed to have done it. He told us that he has had two divorces in the past and he wanted to marry again. According to him, due to the daughter, he was finding it difficult to get a divorce. So, he decided to kill her," said Gohil.

The accused purchased pesticide from a shop around seven days ago and injected her but the child died the next day. On July 8, he took her to Sanad town and then to Hansapur from where he took an autorickshaw to a Namada Canal. He pushed the child from a small bridge on the canal around 2.30 pm," said Gohil.
