Delhi may host next round of India-US talks

MUKESH JAGOTA
New Delhi, May 11

WAY FORWARD

THE NEXT ROUND of trade talks between India and the US could see American officials visiting New Delhi to give final shape to the trade agreement whose framework was finalised in February, a senior official said on Monday.

The interim agreement based on the framework was expected to be finalised by March. However, a US Supreme Court judgment nullified all reciprocal tariffs, which had been the key tool used by the Trump administration to strike trade deals with partner countries.

Following the judgment and the imposition of an additional 10% tariff under other US laws, India and the US are expected to meet physically for the first time from April 20-23. "Now we expect the US team to visit India next for trade talks. No dates have been decided," the official said. With reciprocal tariffs no longer in place and flat additional tariffs applying to all exporters to the US, India is seeking provisions in the trade deal that would give it preferential access over competitors in the American market.

During the April meeting, India and the US discussed the nuts and bolts of the interim trade agreement. The Indian delegation, led by chief negotiator and Additional Secretary in the Department of Commerce Darpan Jain, travelled to the US to finalise details of the agreement and advance negotiations under the broader Bilateral Trade Agreement (BTA).

Multiple areas, including market access, non-tariff measures, technical barriers to trade, customs and trade facilitation, investment promotion, economic security alignment, and digital trade, were discussed during the meetings.
