New Delhi
Emphasising that the joint statement on India-US trade deal is "framework of an interim deal", Oil Minister Hardeep Singh Puri said on Wednesday that India is committed to its consumers and will procure energy products from "wherever" it has to in order to satisfy consumer demand.

Addressing a press conference at the BJP headquarters to counter comments made by Rahul Gandhi in the Lok the trade deal is concerned, there is a lot of clarification going on there. You see, it is not the commitment or something, it's that intent."

ON US PRODUCTS

Asked about India purchasing $500 billion worth of US products including energy products, the Minister said, "Please have a look at the Foreign Secretary's detailed presentation to the Standing Committee of the Ministry of External Affairs. I think Vikram Misri (Foreign Secretary) has done a fantastic job."

DEFENDING US DEAL. Oil Minister Hardeep Singh Puri addressing a press conference in New Delhi SHIV KUMAR PUSHPAKAR

He further said, "The trade deal is a top-class deal.

The world's situation has changed. Earlier, you were dealing with multilaterally negotiated trade agreeunilaterally come and changed the ground rules, within that you've been able to bring them (tariffs) down from 50 per cent to 18 per cent, and this is the framework of an interim deal."

Foreign Secretary Misri had said "very categorically" that India is committed to its consumers. During the last 10 years, in the midst of global turmoil, there has never been a shortage of energy. Availability has been there all the time.

India has had some of the

Bangladesh-US zero-duty fears overstated; Indian cotton farmers safe: AEPC

T E Raja Simhan
Chennai

The perceived threat of Bangladesh gaining disproportionate advantage through zero-duty access to the US market is largely overstated. India's expanding export commitments, rising domestic consumption and strategic trade negotiations ensure that Indian cotton farmers remain protected.

The cotton sector stands to benefit from higher demand and expanded cultivation opportunities, says a detailed Impact Assessment Report prepared by Apparel Export Promotion Council Chairman A Sakthivel.

This is a phase of opportunity — not risk — for Indian cotton and the broader textile ecosystem, says the report.

CURRENT SCENARIO

Bangladesh imports approximately 85 lakh bales of cotton annually to service nearly 500 spinning mills. Its cotton sourcing is predominantly from Brazil, India and African origins, with no significant imports from the US in recent years. India, on average, exports around 12 lakh bales of cotton annually to Bangladesh.

Domestic cotton yarn production in Bangladesh is insufficient to meet the requirements of its garment manufacturing industry. Consequently, Bangladesh also imports substantial volumes of yarn and fabrics, alongside maintaining a strong and growing presence in MMF (Man-Made Fibre) production.

India produces approximately 370 lakh bales of cotton per annum. However, India does not have a cotton surplus due to strong domestic consumption, obligations to export cotton, yarn, and fabrics, and structural demand from the textile value chain. India imports nearly 50 lakh bales annually.

ARE INDIAN FARMERS AT RISK?

Concerns have been raised regarding whether Bangladesh's evolving trade engagement with the US could adversely impact Indian cotton farmers.

Based on current and projected fundamentals, India is not at a losing edge. On the contrary, with FTAs signed with the UK, advanced negotiations with the US, and fresh trade deals with the
