Centre may ask tech giants for access to anonymised data

SOUMYARENDRA BARIK
New Delhi, November 14

THE CENTRE IS considering issuing a directive to big tech companies like Facebook, Google and Amazon to share anonymised personal data in their possession with a government-backed database, The Indian Express has learnt.

The move, if finalised, could see these companies claim intellectual property rights over such data, and initiate discussions around the ownership of such data. The government has long been interested in this issue since such datasets form the bedrock of artificial intelligence (AI) models.

ON THE TABLE

■ The move, if finalised, could see firms claim intellectual property rights over such data and start talks around the ownership of such data

■ The IT ministry is likely to have added a provision to the Digital India Bill which will mandate tech giants to deposit all the non-personal data they hold to the India datasets platform

■ The government has long been interested in this issue since such datasets form the bedrock of AI models

Under the upcoming Digital India Bill, the successor to the Information Technology Act, 2000, the IT Ministry is understood to have added a provision which will mandate big tech companies to deposit all the non-personal data they hold to the India datasets platform, a senior government official said requesting anonymity since the draft is not public yet.

In its most basic form, anonymised personal data, or non-personal data, is any data set that does not contain personally identifiable information. It could include aggregated information, such as the overall health data of a particular demographic, weather and climate data of an area, and traffic data, among others.

these companies when we join their platform, which includes their terms of service and privacy policy.

The Digital India Bill will propose that under the terms of service, when a user agrees that a company can use their anonymised personal data, that particular information will mandatorily have to be deposited to the India datasets platform," the official said.

The Centre's idea is that big tech companies have reaped dividends by building algorithms on the basis of Indians' non-personal data, and that they can not claim exclusive ownership over it.

'India will keep up with energy demand'

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA
New Delhi, November 14

UNION POWER AND NEW & Renewable Energy Minister R K Singh on Tuesday said India will not compromise on meeting growing energy demands of the Indian economy, but will develop generation capacity with responsibility. Addressing an inauguration of a power pavilion set up by Ministry of Power at the ongoing India International Trade Fair 2023 here, he said it is the developed countries who need to cut down their emissions first.

The minister spoke about India's position in the wake of the upcoming COP28, the 2023 United Nations Climate Change Conference. Singh said it is the developed countries who need to cut down their emissions first. Even now, our per capita emissions are one-third of world average, while that of developed countries is three times the world average, he said.
