Man loses 20kg due to 'mental cruelty', granted divorce

Ajay.Sura@timesgroup.com

Chandigarh: The Punjab and Haryana high court has upheld the decision of a Hisar family court granting a divorce to a physically challenged man with 50% hearing loss (he uses a hearing aid) who had claimed that he had lost 21 kilos due to his wife's mental cruelty.

Dismissing the appeal filed by the man's wife against the family court order, the HC relied mainly on the fact that all criminal complaints and cases filed by the woman against her husband (who said his weight had dropped from 74 kg to 53 kg) and his family members were found to be false, which amounted to mental cruelty.

A division bench comprising Justices Ritu Bahri and Archana Puri passed the orders while dismissing the appeal filed by the woman, from Hisar, seeking quashing of the divorce order dated August 27, 2019.

The couple had married in April 2012 and have a daughter. The man works in a bank and the woman is a teacher in a private school in Hisar. Their daughter lives with her father.

The man's case was that his wife was hot-tempered and a spendthrift and had never tried to adjust with his family.

Scores missing after vessels collide on Brahmaputra river

Prabin.Kalita@timesgroup.com

Guwahati: One woman died and several others were missing after their private motorised country boat going from Majuli island to Nimatighat in Assam's Jorhat district sank in the Brahmaputra after being hit by a bigger ferry coming from the opposite direction on Wednesday afternoon.

The incident occurred around 4.15pm. The country boat was named "Ma Kamala" and the ferry was the "Tripkai".

Boats run by government and private parties are the lifeline for the islanders. Privately run boats do not issue tickets and hence they do not keep count of passengers. Authorities said according to various sources at least 70 people had been on board the boat, and the number of those missing could be around 27. The deceased woman, Parimita Das, from Guwahati, had recently started work as a schoolteacher in Majuli.

Assam CM Himanta Biswa Sarma said 43 people had been rescued so far. "One of them, a woman, died after she was brought to Jorhat Medical College and Hospital". At least seven among the rescued passengers are children, the youngest an infant of three months.

PM Narendra Modi tweeted, "Saddened by the boat accident in Assam. All possible efforts are being made to rescue the passengers. I pray for everyone's safety and well-being". Search operations by the NDRF, SDRF and local youths were on when reports last came in. Divers had found the sunken boat about 200metres downstream from the collision site.

Sarma said, "So far, missing reports of four people have been received through our toll-free numbers, but we would need a couple of hours to ascertain the number of missing people".

Sarma said due to strong currents, divers could not search inside the boat for trapped people. "We will now cut thorough the boat to carry out search operations underneath the upturned boat," he said.

Delhi riots: Courts come down heavily on cops

Usha.Das@timesgroup.com

The Delhi high court said all the five accused people have been in jail for the past 12-18 months

New Delhi: "From a hundred rabbits you can't make a horse, a hundred suspicion don't make a proof," a Delhi court quoted from the Fyodor Dostoevsky classic Crime and Punishment while discharging two persons of the offence of attempt to murder in a case related to the riots in northeast Delhi in February 2020. The courts have been getting more impatient and caustic while hearing the cases in the 755 riot FIRs filed since March last year. Their complaint is the "very poor" level of police investigation in a large number of cases.

Additional sessions judge Vinod Yadav, one of the four dealing with riot cases, has been particularly taken aback by the casualness with which cops have registered FIRs, investigated cases and filed chargesheets. TOI analysed the bail orders of the three other trial courts and of Delhi High Court and found out how they similarly cited shoddy investigative work in their decisions. Delhi Police offered no comment to TOI on the courts pulling it up on so many occasions.

In the past month, ASJ Yadav has passed several orders in which he has described the police probe as "callous", "farcical", "indolent", "unproductive", "absurd" and "inefficient". Of the 150 or so cases heard by this court, TOI has noted such remarks in over 50. He said when history looked back at the capital's worst communal riots since Partition, the deficiency in proper, scientific investigation would "surely torment the sentinels of democracy".

While acquitting Shah Alam, Rashid Saifi and Shadab in an arson incident case registered at Dayalpur police station, ASJ Yadav said on September 2 that the complainant/victim had become a "casualty in the matter" because the case remained unsolved because of "callous and indolent investigation; lack of supervision by the superior officers of the investigation and criminal wastage of the time and money of the taxpayer".

Yadav categorised the cops' failure to conduct a proper investigation as "colossal" and "criminal" waste of taxpayers' time and money. The judge was exasperated at the police putting up only five witnesses, including the victim and the investigating officer, after a lengthy investigation. The late and sudden appearance of constable Gyan Singh made the court remark that the silence and delay of producing the constable in the case gave the impression that he had been "planted or introduced to solve the case".

While discharging the same three men the following day, September 3, in a similar case, the court reiterated there were numerous lacunae in police investigation. It also noted the police's attempt to dispose of or solve the case by clubbing different complaints together, even one of Zeeshan related to February 25, 2020, with those pertaining to February 24.

Afghan Sikhs take tentative steps towards rebuilding

Sidhartha Roy & Ambika Pandit | TNN

New Delhi: Growing up in Kabul, Kulwinder Singh is not unused to the sound of gunshots being fired. August 15, however, was a different day. "I was at my grocery shop. At around 9.30am, there were sounds of gunshots being fired. No one was sure what was happening, but soon enough there was panic and chaos in the market," said the 40-year-old. The Taliban had swept into Afghanistan's capital.

"I closed my shop and shifted my family to a gurdwara near our home for safety," said Singh, sitting with his wife, Kuljeet Kaur, in a room adjacent to Guru Arjan Dev Ji Gurdwara in New Mahavir Nagar in west Delhi. The Singh couple and their four children were among the 78 Afghan evacuees who were airlifted from Afghanistan on August 24 and put in Covid quarantine at the Indo-Tibetan Border Police Centre at Chhawla. They were released from the quarantine centre on Tuesday.

"The situation in Afghanistan is very tense. We left our homes and shops there and almost fled our country in whatever we were wearing," said Himmat Singh, 45, of Ghazni with folded palms. "Thankfully, we managed to bring Sri Guru Granth Sahib Ji with us and we are thankful to the Indian government for helping us."

Himmat said living in Afghanistan had never been completely safe and the situation had only worsened with the Taliban taking control. "I was abducted 30 years ago, along with some others in my neighbourhood. Now the streets are completely deserted," he said, admitting that he hadn't faced problems reaching the airport despite the proliferation of armed Taliban fighters in the streets.

Himmat used to sell medicinal plants and herbs and doesn't know what India holds for his future. "At the moment, I am just thankful that my family has reached India safely. I haven't begun thinking about my next step yet," he said. "All I know is there is no going back," he said.

A tired but hopeful Kailash Kaur is more hopeful of building her life anew. Having lost her youngest son, just 21 years old, in a bomb blast in Kabul a few months ago, she now worries for the two sons stranded in Afghanistan. She holds on to the hope that they will be able to reach India after international flights resume from Kabul.

Soon after they were allowed to leave the quarantine centre, Kaur and 43 other Afghan Sikhs and Hindu were brought by voluntary organisations to the New Mahavir Nagar gurdwara. However, by evening most families, including Kaur's, had chosen to move in with relatives in Delhi or in Punjab.

Before leaving for Ludhiana where her two married daughters live, Kaur shared that she had brought her grandchildren, her slain son's children, to India.

Two cops held for extorting Delhi bizman

New Delhi: Two constables of Delhi Police have been arrested for allegedly extorting money from two businessmen in central Delhi's Karol Bagh. The constables posed as trademark officials and allegedly told the traders that they were using a wrong trademark to extort from them.

Recently, a cloth businessman from Karol Bagh in central Delhi complained to the cops that some men had tried to extort Rs 10 lakh from him. During investigation, it turned out that the accused men were policemen. Another person involved in the crime was also arrested. Initially, a case of kidnapping for ransom was registered, but later other IPC sections were added. TNN
