Adani Energy eyes ₹1,300 cr tariff boost from new projects

RAGHAVENDRA KAMATH
Mumbai, October 25

ADANI ENERGY SOLUTIONS (AESL) expects to commission three to four transmission projects in the second half of the current financial year, adding around ₹1,300 crore to its annualised transmission tariff, CEO Kandarp Patel told analysts during a post-results call.

The projects are WRSR Transmission, Halvad Transmission, Khavda IV-A Transmission and Navinal Transmission, according to the company's investor presentation.

AESL has 15 transmission projects under construction, with a combined capital outlay of ₹87,000 crore.

During the quarter, the company won two projects — the ₹4,700-crore Satara Transmission project and the ₹8,500-crore Vizag Transmission project.

The company remains on track to invest ₹6,000 crore in transmission capital expenditure in the second half of FY27, over and above the ₹5,500 crore invested in the first half, Patel said. On the proposed acquisition of smart metering company IntelliSmart Infrastructure, Patel said AESL expects to receive approval from the Competition Commission of India

The company would then begin integrating the business into its operations.

New safety rules may push up car prices

AKBAR MERCHANT
Mumbai, October 25

NEW CAR PRICES are expected to rise from April 2027 as stricter vehicle safety standards covering crash protection, pedestrian safety and anti-theft systems are rolled out in phases.

According to a recent circular, a separate rear-impact requirement, effective April 2029, will require vehicles to prevent fuel leakage or battery damage in rear-end collisions, potentially increasing manufacturing costs.

The Ministry of Road Transport and Highways (MoRTH) has staggered the implementation timelines to give manufacturers time to incorporate the changes.

"Automakers will have to reassess vehicle structures and safety equipment to comply with the new requirements. Any additional material, engineering or validation costs could push up prices by at least Rs 10,000 for an entry-level hatchback," said an industry executive familiar with vehicle development.

Under the rear-impact requirement, all new cars manufactured in India from April 2029 must pass a crash test demonstrating that petrol and diesel models do not suffer fuel leakage, while electric vehicles must avoid battery damage.

Manufacturers have traditionally prioritised high-strength steel (HSS) in vehicle front structures, given the prevalence of frontal collisions. Its use in rear sections has generally been lower across several models.

Compliance could require additional HSS at critical structural points.
