Ending universe ram brands

It's fast turning into a magnet for brands of all is driving it up the popularity charts?

New labels were launched via Instagram at the Lakme Fashion Week; the platform's video feature is a big hit with brands to this demo-

time the plat-
features that brands discover easily. For that are visi-

with the cause of the weaver community and post images that draw attention to both.
This gives its messages greater currency and the brand gets access to key influencers within the target community.

Also popular is the Masterclass route that lets brands to get close to the customer without encroaching on her space. At the recently concluded Lakme Fashion Week for instance, several new labels found a way to talk to bloggers, buyers and enthusiasts using this format. According to an Instagram spokesperson, "In India and around the world Instagram has become the fashion community's home for discovery, inspiration and visual storytelling, and a way for all of us to get an inside look into upcoming trends."

Equal opportunity, high reach

Brands are drawn to the platform because product discovnesses and democratises opportunity, giving individuals, creators and emerging brands the ability to reach a global audience," says Bhushan. All a brand needs is a good story and an engaging influencer.

Dhimaan Shah, founder of StyleCracker, an online community of personal stylists that is popular among young women says, "In terms of organic reach it (Instagram) is far higher than other platforms which results in higher engagement. In fact, we've seen Instagram stories have even higher metrics than the Instagram feed."
Advertising ROI on Instagram is also higher.

Influencers play a big role in helping brands expand their reach. The trick is finding the right person. Brands look for someone who fits the product/service and is aligned to the ethos of the brand.

"Audiences have learnt to distinguish between genuine
