Industry Overview

Yarn costs are eroding India's FTA gains

Market access is widening, but a cotton shortage is squeezing margins across the textile chain

+60%
Cotton yarn price, ₹250 to ₹400 per kg since start of 2026

~15%
Rise in Tiruppur production costs, as estimated by exporters

4–6 wks
Cotton stock held by spinning mills; shortfall of ~10 lakh bales

–17%
Cotton output, 290.9 lakh bales in 2025-26 vs 352.5 in 2020-21

Why margins are tightening

- Farmers shifted acreage to higher-return crops
- Downstream makers cannot pass costs to price-sensitive buyers
- Procurement lag means exporters absorb the first hit

What the industry is asking for

- Longer cotton import duty exemption and Cotton Mission push
- Stable cotton and yarn prices; possible curbs on yarn exports
- Investment in technology, productivity and turnaround times

Higher raw material costs, crude oil prices and supply-chain disruptions are increasing cost pressures across the textile value chain.

Indian shoppers are choosing brands over unbranded

Branded spend is set to cross half the market by CY30, driven by five trends moving together

Growth pace (unbranded = 1x)

Consumers choose to pay for a brand name over an unbranded item at a similar price point.

of total apparel spend expected to be branded by CY30

41%

organised share of apparel retail, growing 10–13% a year

Five trends behind the shift

- Brandification. Branded apparel is the demand-side foundation: shoppers will pay for the name, and the other four trends turn that into revenue.
- New brand openness. Zudio, Uniqlo, H&M and homegrown D2C labels all found footing within a decade.
- Wardrobe expansion. Weddings, sports, travel and social events each need a purchase
- Trend-first choices. Quality and price still lead, but shoppers now ask if a product is current, which rewards frequent newness.
- Formal distribution. EBOs, MBOs and organised retail let brands reach buyers without years of building a footprint.

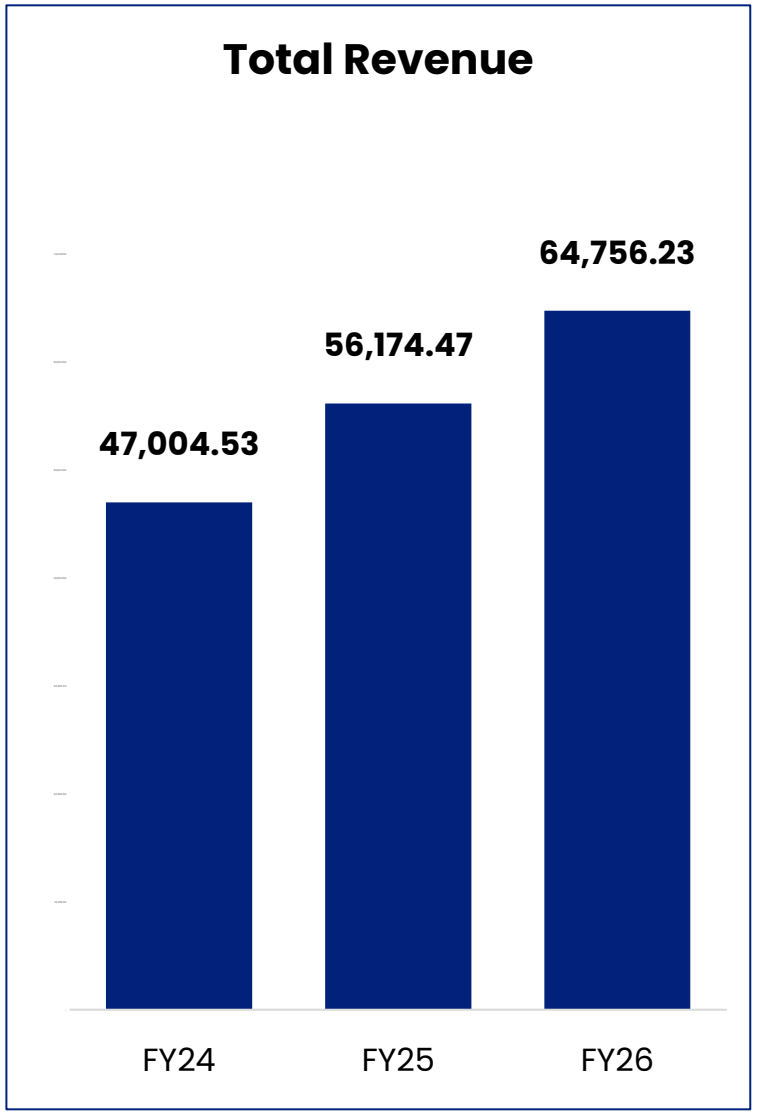

Note: Exclusive brand outlets (EBOs), multi-brand outlets (MBOs)
