Worst growth in decade
corp bond market fuel

BLOOMBERG

Mumbai, June 20

THERE'S YET ANOTHER sign that India's push to quickly expand its corporate debt market is faltering, as borrowers turn more to banks already struggling with one of the world's worst bad debt ratios.

India's bond market remains small compared with other major economies, frustrating policy makers who champion it as a way of diffusing credit risks that have stacked up at banks.

While the amount of outstanding rupee corporate notes, excluding banks, has been expanding for years, the pace of growth has generally been slowing since 2017 and marked its lowest rate in over a decade in May at 9.7%, according to a Bloomberg Economics index. In contrast, bank lending grew 12.7% in the twelve months through May 24, RBI data show. Risks in India's credit markets resurfaced earlier this month after a lender delayed bond interest payments,

Bagchi expects gross bond sales to remain weak due to a slowdown in the economy and officer. It is trading "opportunistic" in the long end, where it sees concerns over fiscal slippage limiting further gains after a strong rally.

"Sovereign debt is looking like the best option in an environment of risk aversion," Mumbai-based Jhingan said in an interview. "There could be up to two more rate cuts. So short-term state-government bonds and gilts are core portfolios."
