Dear Madam/Sir

On June 22 and June 23, 2021, we disclosed to the exchanges that the National Company Law Tribunal approved the resolution plan concerning the company further to the provisions of the IBC. We also collated on our website for the consumption of stakeholders, a list of media articles and interviews relevant to the development.

At this time, we do not have a copy of the order of the NCLT and are not aware of the terms and conditions (if any) subject to which the NCLT has granted approval to the plan.

With reference to the publication by MoneyControl.com in question, we confirm that neither us nor any of our employees has authorised the publication. No statements in the report have been attributed to us. Media houses participated in the video conference hearing held on June 22, 2021, and to our limited understanding, have reported those proceedings as they understood. Under these circumstances, we are not in a position to either confirm or deny the correctness of the statements in the publication.

There is, to the company's knowledge, no material information concerning the approval of the plan that has not been disclosed. As and when the order of the NCLT is available, we will provide such additional disclosures as are necessary, consistent with our reporting obligations under the LODR.

Please be assured that in my capacity as resolution professional, I can speak for the company that we intend to comply fully with all our obligations under the LODR.

Thanking you

Yours sincerely,

Ashish Chhawchharia
