FIRM HAS TO STRIKE BALANCE BETWEEN PRESTIGE & PROFITABILITY

Zee plays football World Cup's toughest match: Monetisation

VIVEAT SUSAN PINTO
Mumbai, June 1

ZEE ENTERTAINMENT'S ACQUISITION OF FIFA tournament rights for the next eight years marks a significant addition to its sports portfolio. But media industry executives say the firm may need to balance prestige with profitability as it seeks to monetise football audiences in India.

The discussion inevitably turns to the FIFA World Cup 2022, which was streamed on JioCinema and broadcast on Sports18 channels, both owned by Viacom18 at that time. While the tournament delivered substantial reach and visibility, executives say the rights were deployed as a broader customer-acquisition and brand-building exercise, rather than a conventional sports-rights investment aimed at immediate returns.

According to industry estimates, Viacom18 spent about ₹480-500 crore ($60-62 million) to secure the FIFA World Cup 2022 rights. Advertising revenues, however, were estimated at nearly Rs 300 crore, leaving a sizeable gap between investment and direct monetisation.

While JioStar opted to stick to a valuation of $20-25 million for the 2026 FIFA World Cup, prompting the football body to go with Zee, which was willing to put a higher amount on the table ($30-35 million), executives argue that evaluating JioCinema's 2022 World Cup bet purely through an advertising lens misses its strategic value.

JioCinema streamed the matches free of charge, dramatically lowering entry barriers for viewers and helping the platform attract millions of users at a time when India's streaming market was becoming intensely competitive.

"The objective was never restricted to recovering the rights fee through advertising alone," Sajal Gupta, chief executive officer, Kiaos Marketing, a Gurugram-based media marketing firm, said. "The FIFA World Cup 2022 had become a testing ground for scale for JioCinema ahead of the IPL 2023-2027 media rights cycle which it acquired for ₹20,500 crore," he said.

The football tournament enabled JioCinema to sharpen critical capabilities including live-streaming infrastructure, audience measurement tools, ad-serving technology and content delivery networks. These capabilities would later prove crucial as the company prepared for significantly larger sports properties, including the IPL.

More than 110 million viewers watched the FIFA World Cup 2022 digitally, while the Argentina-France final attracted a record 32 million concurrent viewers on JioCinema. Combined watch time across digital and television crossed 40 billion minutes, demonstrating that large-scale live sports streaming in India could rival traditional television audiences. For Zee, the challenge will be different.

Unlike the acquisition-focused strategy pursued by JioCinema in 2022, the broadcaster is expected to pursue a more balanced monetisation model spanning television advertising, digital revenues, sponsorships and distribution partnerships.

"After the merger of Star India and Viacom18 under JioStar, there is room for a second player in sports broadcasting in India. While Sony Pictures Networks India is there, it tends to be selective with its choice of properties amid a heightened focus on profitability, leaving Zee which is willing to look at sports events with a broader lens," Gupta says.

The FIFA property still offers considerable value. Global football events continue to attract premium advertisers and younger urban audiences, a combination highly sought after by broadcasters and streaming platforms.

Anant Raj lines up ₹25,000 cr for Haryana data centre

REAL ESTATE FIRM Anant Raj said on Monday it will invest ₹25,000 crore ($2.6 billion) to develop data centre and cloud services in Haryana.

The New Delhi-based firm entered into a memorandum of understanding (MoU) with the Haryana Enterprises Promotion Centre, an agency under the state government. Anant Raj said the MoU aims to support investment in and development of data centre and cloud services in Haryana.

India's data centre market, valued at $5.55 billion in 2025, is projected to reach $13.11 billion by 2034, according to consulting firm IMARC Group. The company will expand its digital infrastructure business operations in the state, while the Haryana government will facilitate ease of doing business. The partnership is part of the state government's 'Make in Haryana Policy' aimed at boosting development.

Third-party logistics firms bet big on vertical q-comm

S SHANTHI
Bengaluru, June 1

THIRD-PARTY LOGISTICS FIRMS are accelerating their focus on vertical quick commerce — where specialised categories such as fashion, beauty, pet care, gourmet, childcare, and others engage in direct fast deliveries — to drive growth. They expect the segment to be their next growth lever.

The shift in focus is also reflected in their recent financial results. Shadowfax recorded a remarkable Q4 FY26, with operating revenue increasing 74% year-on-year to ₹1,237 crore. It also reported a net profit of ₹56 crore as against a net loss of nearly ₹10 crore in the year-ago period. "Vertical quick commerce platforms operate at lower order density, which makes building in-house logistics uneconomical. So, third-party logistics (3PL) becomes the natural answer, much as it did for horizontal e-commerce," Praharsh Chandra, co-founder

GROWTH LEVER

■ India's Third-party logistics Market size is estimated at $38.18 billion in 2026

■ According to Mordor Intelligence, the sector is likely to grow at a CAGR of 5.78% to reach $50.55 bn by 2031

■ Vertical q-comm is creating demand for managed dark stores, inventory operations, and dedicated last-mile fleets and CBO of Shadowfax, told FE. "We believe the vertical segment will keep growing as brands compete on speed and customer experience," he said.

Legacy and large players are also tapping into the segment. For Q4 FY26, Allcargo Logistics reported a 41% rise in operational profit, driven by express distribution and contract logistics. This month, Amazon launched its own 3PL service in India, which will allow D2C brands to use Amazon's massive logistics network for their direct deliveries.

Vertical quick commerce is creating demand for managed dark stores, inventory operations, and dedicated last-mile fleets, something that 3PL firms are catering to. "For 3PLs, this is no longer just a delivery business; it is becoming an infrastructure business with significantly higher monetisation layers," said Paramdeep Singh, founder, Long Tail Ventures, and an early investor in Zippee.

AI-driven biz shifts spur FulcrumQ's India entry

URVI MALVANIA
Mumbai, June 1

GLOBAL LEADERSHIP ADVISORY firm FulcrumQ is entering India with a model aimed at helping companies execute large strategic pivots, betting that AI disruption, global expansion plans and shifting business models are forcing firms to rethink how talent is deployed across organisations. The New York-headquartered firm positions itself between traditional strategy consultants and executive search firms, arguing that companies often fail not because of weak strategies, but because they do not identify which roles and teams are critical to executing those strategies quickly.

"We help businesses move their strategy faster," co-founder Shefali Vaidya said in an interaction, describing India as the "mother of pivots" because of the pace at which companies are being forced to adapt to changing technologies, evolving consumer markets and competitive pressures.

FulcrumQ emerged from its founders' work with Unilever, where they developed "talent-to-value" frameworks to help companies execute strategic pivots more effectively.

The firm said it typically works with companies after a new strategy has already been formulated, helping identify "critical roles" that can disproportionately influence execution outcomes. It focuses less on succession planning or traditional talent management and more on aligning decision-making authority, budgets and organisational structures around high-impact roles. The company is also bringing an academy-led model to India, under which organisations can train internal teams in its proprietary "talent-to-value" methodology instead of relying indefinitely on external consultants.

According to the firm, large companies increasingly want to build in-house capabilities and reduce long-term dependence on third-party advisers.

FulcrumQ said private equity firms are expected to remain a major growth driver globally and in India.
