Asian Development Bank Recognises Kellton with Excellence Award for Technology Partnership

Hyderabad, India – 18th August, 2026: Kellton, an AI-led digital transformation and technology consulting company, today announced that it has received the Emerging Excellence Award from the Asian Development Bank (ADB) at its 5th IDIQ Vendor Summit. The recognition acknowledges Kellton's performance and growing contribution as a technology partner to ADB's Information Technology Department under the Bank's Indefinite Delivery/Indefinite Quantity (IDIQ) framework. Kellton expects to expand this partnership into a $5 million strategic account.

The recognition reflects Kellton's performance under ADB's IDIQ framework and the rapid scaling of its engagement during 2025–26. Leveraging its Centres of Excellence across AI, data and product engineering, Kellton mobilised specialist technology talent to meet ADB's technical and institutional requirements. The company was also recognised among ADB's fastest-growing vendors under the framework.

Kellton continues to support ADB's Information Technology Department with specialist capabilities aligned with the Bank's evolving digital and technology priorities.

Commenting on the recognition, Mr. Karanjit Singh, CEO – APAC, Kellton, said:

“ADB is our first engagement with a premier multilateral development agency, where technology delivery is underpinned by rigorous governance, procurement and institutional standards. This recognition is an important validation of our ability to operate and deliver in complex, high-trust environments. More importantly, it reflects the confidence we are building with ADB and reinforces our commitment to becoming a long-term technology partner as its digital priorities evolve.”
