Will write Supreme Court in lower case, says Trump

POTUS cites 'complete lack of respect' over tariff ruling

President Donald Trump on Monday said he would refer to the Supreme Court in lowercase, citing a "complete lack of respect" following a recent tariff ruling that he described as both "ridiculous" and "internationally divisive."

In a post on Truth Social, Trump claimed the court's decision accidentally granted him as president more authority than he previously had, particularly regarding the use of licenses on foreign countries.

He criticized the ruling for not allowing the United States to charge licence fees, while arguing that all licences normally include fees.

"The supreme court will be using lower case letters for a while based on a complete lack of respect of the United States" can't the United States do so? You do a license, get a fee! The opinion doesn't explain that, but I know the answer!"

Trump also praised the court's approval of other tariffs, saying they can now be applied "in a much more powerful and obnoxious way" than before, while accusing the justices of doing a "great job for the wrong people."

"The court has also approved all other Tariffs, of which there are many, and they can all be used in a much more powerful and obnoxious way, with legal certainty, than the Tariffs as initially used."

He further wrote, "For one thing, I can use Licenses to do absolutely "terrible" things to foreign countries, especially those countries that have been RIPPING US OFF, for many decades, but incomprehensibly, according to the ruling, can't charge them a License fee - but all licences charge fees, why day the next round of US-Iran talks would take place on Thursday in Geneva.

US orders non-essential diplomats to leave Lebanon as Iran tensions soar

In a phone call, Frank Foreign Minister Seyed Abbas Araghchi and IAEA Director General Rafael Grossi stressed on the importance of "constructive engagement and using the path of dialogue" to achieve a sustainable nuclear agreement, Iran's foreign news agency IRNA reported.

In a CBS News interview broadcast, Araghchi reiterated Teheran's willingness to settle its differences with Washington through negotiations. Also, Iranian President Masoud Pezeshkian said talks with the US had "yielded encouraging signals", while cautioning Iran is prepared for "any potential scenario".

Meanwhile, Iran has agreed to accept a 600 million air deal with Russia to acquire thousands of advanced shoulder-fired missiles in a major effort to rebuild air defenses damaged during last year's war with Israel.

The Financial Times reported, The deal signed in Moscow in December, commits Iran to supply Russia with 600 million air launch units and 2,500 cruise missiles over three years.
