Vikram Singh Mehta is IndiGo Chairman

Vikram Singh Mehta

Our Bureau
Mumbai

IndiGo has named Vikram Singh Mehta as its new Chairman.

Mehta, who has been on the board of the airline since 2022, will succeed Venkataramani Sumantran, who helmed the airline through the Covid-19 period. Sumantran exited the airline after completing a five-year term as a board member.

A former bureaucrat, Mehta served as Chairman of the Shell group of companies between 1994 and 2012. Later, he became Executive Chairman of Brookings India and was also the senior fellow at Brookings Institution. Currently, he is Chairman of the public policy think tank Centre for Social and Economic Progress.

REVIEW OVER COFFEE
Mehta's colleagues from Shell said he had an interesting approach at the workplace. "He believed in deliverables and, if by any chance, he felt there was a slip somewhere, a message from the team concerned would go asking them to come for a cup of coffee, which essentially meant come for review," said a person who has worked closely with Mehta.

A mathematics graduate from the University of Delhi, Mehta holds two master's degrees — one from Oxford University in politics and economics and the other in energy economics from Tufts University.

IndiGo also announced the appointment of former KLM executive Ton Dortmans to support the technical entry into service of IndiGo's Airbus A350 aircraft as well as building up the airline's overall maintenance, repair and overhaul capabilities.

IndiGo has ordered 30 widebody A350 aircraft as part of its international expansion; these are due for 2027. Dortmans worked 40 years at KLM, of which the last 13 he served as Executive Vice-President of engineering and maintenance.
