SANDIP DAS
New Delhi, June 8

THE INDIA METEOROLOGICAL DEPARTMENT (IMD) on Thursday announced the onset of the southwest monsoon over Kerala, ending uncertainty over the start of the annual phenomenon, which still plays an important role in India's agricultural prospects. This marked the most delayed arrival of monsoon in the last four years.

"While this arrival over Kerala is delayed by more than a week compared to its normal date of June 1, it falls within the error window of IMD's initial onset predictions, which lasted until June 8," according to a Met department statement.

The department had earlier said monsoon normally sets in over Kerala on June 1, with a standard deviation of about seven days. In the last 10 years, the earliest arrival was in 2018 and 2022 (May 29), and the most delayed onset was in 2019 (June 8).

The Met department in its forecast said the advancement of monsoon was likely into more parts of the Arabian Sea, south peninsular India, Bay of Bengal and northeast India during the next 48 hours.

According to the forecast, fairly widespread rainfall with thunderstorms, lightning and gusty winds are likely over Kerala, Lakshadweep, coastal and south interior Karnataka and scattered rainfall activities over Tamil Nadu and Andhra Pradesh during the next five days.

According to IMD, in the last 150 years, the date of monsoon onset over Kerala has widely varied. The earliest monsoon onset was recorded on May 11, 2018 and most delayed arrivals were on June 18, 1972.

Southwest monsoon season (June-September) accounts for 75% of the country's annual rainfall.

After the onset of monsoon covers the entire country by the end of June, farmers begin sowing of kharif crops such as paddy, coarse cereals, pulses and oilseeds.

The private weather forecaster Skymet had predicted the onset to be around June 9. It has earlier predicted the onset of monsoon to be around June 7, with an error of three days.

No change has, however, been made in the IMD's April 11 forecast that the precipitation this year will be in the "normal" range, at the 96% of the long period average (LPA).

Skymet had earlier said monsoon precipitation this year could be "below normal" at 94% of the LPA. Rainfall between 96-104%

No plan yet for mandate on green asset investments

DESPITE LOW 'GREENIUM' on sovereign green bond issuances, the Centre at the moment is not contemplating putting a regulatory mandate for financial institutions (FIs) that would require them to invest a portion of their assets in green assets, an official said.

A mandate to FIs such as pension funds and insurance companies could have generated demand for green bonds at relatively high greenium, analysts have said.

The Centre, however, may tweak sovereign green bond issuances if the 'greenium' on such bonds in FY24 is not attractive.

For the first time, the Centre mobilised ₹16,000 crore through two tranches of green bonds in January-February.

The cut-off yield on the bonds — 5 year and 10 year papers — was 2 to 4 bps lower than traditional G-Secs of comparable maturity in the second tranche of ₹8,000 crore on February 9.

The government was not exactly happy with the outcome as it wanted a higher 'greenium' or cost advantage to the issuer compared to conventional bonds.

The Centre may do a recalibration of sovereign green bond issuances if the 'greenium' to be offered on such bonds in FY24 is not attractive, a senior government source said.

The government will float green bonds close to ₹24,000 crore in the second half of the current fiscal. Despite lower returns, many foreign investors set aside funds for investing in green projects as part of their ESG obligations.
