New army chief set to keep up multi-domain capability drive

BHASWAR KUMAR
New Delhi, 14 June

Chief of the Army Staff-designate Lieutenant General Dhiraaj Seth, set to take charge on June 30, is expected to maintain the momentum behind the army's capability development and modernisation efforts, having played a role in formulating the force's long-term road map for both.

The Centre on Saturday named Lieutenant General Seth, the current vice chief of the army staff (VCoAS), as the next chief of the army staff (CoAS).

He will assume office in the afternoon of June 30, 2026, when the incumbent, General Upendra Dwivedi, retires. Lieutenant General Seth has served as VCoAS since April 1, 2026.

Lieutenant General Seth's appointment as CoAS comes just over a year after Operation Sindoor, the May 7-10 conflict with Pakistan that witnessed the army employ guided artillery and unmanned systems, aided by artificial intelligence (AI) tools, against both terrorist infrastructure and regular Pakistani military targets. The conflict also brought large-scale "kinetic, non-contact warfare"—centred on the use of missiles, drones and long-range precision weapons to engage targets from a distance—and "cognitive warfare"—the use of information and influence to shape, disrupt or degrade an adversary's decision-making—to the subcontinent.

Lieutenant General Dushyant Singh (retired), director-general of the Centre for Land Warfare Studies, identified accelerating the country's defence transformation as a key objective for Lieutenant General Seth as CoAS.

"As the Indian Army enters a decisive phase of its modernisation journey, Lieutenant General Seth takes over from General Dwivedi, who has set an impressive pace in driving far-reaching reforms. A key architect of this ongoing transformation, Lieutenant General Seth brings proven leadership to steer the army towards a future defined by seamless jointness, Amaninbharata (self-reliance) in equipment and capabilities, and innovation," he said.

Chief of the Army Staff-designate Lieutenant General Dhiraaj Seth will assume office in the afternoon of June 30, 2026

Announcing his appointment, an official release said Lieutenant General Seth's nearly four-decade career had spanned the "operational, strategic, capability development and institutional domains", and that he had contributed "significantly" to enhancing the army's combat effectiveness and furthering its long-term transformation.

Lieutenant General Seth's involvement in the army's capability development and modernisation efforts is evident from the key appointments he has held in the Strategic Planning and Capability Development Directorates, including Colonel Capability Development for Mechanised Forces, Brigadier Perspective Plans and Acquisition, and Additional Director General Capability Development. He has also played a role in shaping the Army's Long Term Perspective Plan (LTTP) and modernisation road map.

The service-specific LTTPs are integrated into the Long Term Integrated Perspective Plan, which spans 15 years and is divided into three five-year Service Capital Acquisition Plans, also known as Defence Plans. These set out the equipment to be acquired by the Service to meet their operational requirements, taking into account resource availability.

The Defence Plans are further broken down into two-year roll-out Annual Acquisition Plans.

Lieutenant General Seth's (retired) said Lieutenant General Seth's vision centred on building a world-class, battle-ready force capable of dominating the multi-domain battlespace. "At the core of his agenda is human resource preparedness—ensuring our officers and soldiers are equipped, trained and empowered to tackle both current and emerging defence and security challenges with agility and resilience."

Multi-domain operations involve the integrated employment of capabilities across the land, air, maritime, cyber, space, electromagnetic, information and cognitive dimensions to achieve military objectives.

Lieutenant General Seth's appointment as CoAS comes months after the government approved the army's long-pending proposal to raise integrated battle groups (IBGs), one of more than three dozen organisational reforms elevated over the 15 months leading up to January 2026.

He has previously served as General Officer Commanding-in-Chief of the South Western Command and Southern Command, gaining the rare distinction of commanding operational commands along the Western Front.

Six strategic breakthroughs place India among elite missile powers

BHUBAN KUMAR ROUTH
Bhubaneswar, 14 June

India has consolidated its position as a major military power in South and Southeast Asia by notching up six key milestones in a month that make it one of the few countries capable of building both advanced offensive deterrence and sophisticated defensive missile shields.

The latest achievement came over the weekend when the Defence Research and Development Organisation (DRDO) successfully conducted three consecutive flight tests of two world-class next-generation interceptor missiles and the maiden trial of the Naval Anti-Ship Missile-Medium Range (NASAM-MR) from the integrated Test Range of the Odisha coast.

Defence sources said the twin tests of interceptors (AD-I and AD-II) and the anti-ship missile demonstrated a multi-layered Ballistic Missile Defence (BMD) shield and India's ability to neutralise long-range threats, including intercontinental ballistic missile, while simultaneously enhancing maritime strike capabilities. "The interceptors successfully engaged their respective targets. The systems have been designed and developed with the latest technologies to address the emerging missile threats," the Ministry of Defence said in a statement.

Defence minister Rajnath Singh hailed the achievement, stating that the success has put India in elite group of nations having ballistic missile defence capabilities to engage missiles up to ICBMs. "These tests have successfully demonstrated multiple crucial technologies bolstering national defence capabilities against different types of enemy threats," he said on social media platform X.

Describing how a BMD system functions, the sources cited above said targets are first tracked by radars, which continuously monitor their speed, altitude and trajectory before passing commands to launch the interceptors. Interception is executed in one of two ways—the interceptors either use "hit-to-kill" kinetic energy to physically crash into the threat or detonate the target to destroy it and disable it before launch.

Launched in 1999, a year after Pakistan conducted its nuclear test, India's BMD programme has evolved steadily over the last two decades. The DRDO has initiated Phase-II of the programme code named AD-AH and AD-AM following successful completion of the first two phases. The upcoming interceptors will counter cruise missiles, hypersonic glide vehicles and missiles that carry multiple independent nuclear warheads.

LUTYENS' LAND TUSSELE

Jaipur Polo Ground: What the takeover means and what comes next

BS REPORTER
New Delhi, 14 June

The central government's takeover of the 15.20-acre Jaipur Polo Ground has brought into focus a broader set of disputes involving some of Lutyens Delhi's longstanding clubs and associations, with the Delhi Gymkhana Club and Race Course Club facing similar action.

Officials of the Land & Development Office (L&DO) under the Union Housing and Urban Affairs Ministry took physical possession of the Race Course area property on Saturday, acting on a May 20 eviction order that said the land was required for a "larger public purpose". The order, however, did not specify how the land would be used.

The Jaipur Polo Ground is the first among the three properties where the Centre has completed the process of taking possession, making it a closely watched case as related litigation continues elsewhere.

Legal battle not over
The Inland Polo Association (IPA), which challenged the eviction order, has termed the action "wrongful, arbitrary and contrary to law" and said it will pursue legal remedies. "As the matter is sub judice and ongoing, the Association does not propose to comment further on this stage," IPA counsel Maitraj (Retd) Nirvikar Singh further said.

The Delhi High Court had earlier asked a district court to hear the association's plea seeking a stay on the eviction notice. After the district court eviction order, has termed the Centre proceeded to take pos-

May 26 had taken note of the central government's submission that it would not take forcible possession of the colonial-era club by June 5 while proceedings are pending. The court also declined to interfere with the government's decision to terminate the club's perpetual lease of the 27.3-acre plot, with the matter listed for further hearing later this year.

In the Race Course Club matter, the Delhi High Court last month set aside an order that had stayed a showcase notice issued to the proposed eviction of the club from its 84-acre premises.

What happens next?
The Jaipur Polo Ground takeover shows that the Centre is moving beyond notices and court filings to actual possession in at least one case.

The eviction order referred to a "larger public purpose" without elaborating on the government's plans. That question is likely to gain greater prominence as proceedings involving other Lutyens' Delhi properties move through the courts.
