Nykaa's Focus Stays on Own Broader Network, says Nayar

Co will not get into additional categories for the sake of quick commerce

Pranshu Mukul & Digvijay Mishra

New Delhi | Bengaluru | Falguni Nayar, founder and chief executive of beauty and fashion retailer Nykaa, said quick commerce has impacted offline channels such as general and modern trade within the personal care category, and that the Mumbai-based company would not get into multiple categories of quick commerce.

formats - including e-commerce - is impacted by the rapid rise of platforms like Blinkit, Zepto and Zepto (Instamart) besides new entrants such as Flipkart Minutes, offering deliveries as fast as 10 minutes. Beauty is one of the fastest growing segments on quick commerce, but Nayar said her focus remains on enhancing speed across the country through her own network.

Zepto or Instamart, is running a 10-minute delivery pilot in Mumbai's Borivali suburb, ET reported on October 9. The reality for us is that we will not get into additional categories for the sake of quick commerce and what we will do well is in our category where we have long-term interest and a long-term position to play, she said.
