Healthcare, BFSI supported IT growth in Q2 as technology, retail remained mixed

UNEVEN MOMENTUM. India's leading IT-services companies reported mixed second quarter growth across business verticals

Sanjana B
Bengaluru

Healthcare and life sciences recorded the strongest weighted growth among key verticals for Indian IT companies in Q2 FY27, followed by BFSI, although demand across technology and retail remained uneven.

Q2 FY27 performance across verticals was mixed for India's leading IT services companies, with growth varying significantly by segment.

According to data from UnearthInsight, retail and consumer emerged as one of the stronger segments for HCLTech, Wipro and Tech Mahindra, which reported year-on-year growth of 14 per cent, 6 per cent and 9.2 per cent, respectively. TCS and Infosys, however, reported declines of 1 per cent and 7.7 per cent in the segment.

In the technology vertical, TCS led with 4.8 per cent growth, followed by HCLTech at 5.9 per cent, Wipro at 7.1 per cent and Tech Mahindra at 6.7 per cent. Infosys was the outlier, reporting a sharp 17.3 per cent decline, indicating continued weakness in technology spending.

STABLE BFSI

BFSI remained a relatively stable growth driver, with all five companies reporting positive growth. HCLTech led the segment with 7.1 per cent growth, followed by Tech Mahindra at 4.6 per cent and TCS at 3.9 per cent. Infosys and Wipro reported more modest growth of 2.1 per cent and 1.3 per cent, respectively.

While in communications and media, most firms saw growth in the 0.5 per cent to 9.5 per cent range, manufacturing and energy saw positive growth in four of the five firms. Healthcare and life sciences recorded the widest divergence.

Infosys posted strong 32.5 per cent growth, well ahead of Tech Mahindra's 6.2 per cent. TCS reported marginal growth of 0.5 per cent, while HCLTech and Wipro saw declines of 2.1 per cent and 6.5 per cent, respectively.

Mohit Joshi, CEO and MD of Tech Mahindra, said that gaining market share and increasing BFSI's contribution to its revenue mix was challenging, given its scale. It has brought in additional leadership and remains confident about the medium-to-long-term opportunities in the segment, citing the significant growth potential.

While BFSI is currently among its slower-growing verticals, the firm said its performance was in line with, or marginally ahead of, larger peers.

AI REVENUE

Aarthi Subramanian, Executive Director, President and COO of TCS, said, "When we look at the $3.1 billion annualised revenues, AI revenue is growing across every vertical. Three verticals are leading in terms of growth rate — BFSI, manufacturing, and life sciences and healthcare. In these verticals, we are seeing the whole agentic control plane and AI governance."

Wipro CEO and MD Srini Pallia said the healthcare sector, particularly in the US, was being affected by policy changes. This had led them to tighten discretionary spending while prioritising AI, automation, compliance-related initiatives, and productivity-led transformation.

"Financial services remained one of the most resilient sectors, supported by ongoing investments in modernisation, digital platforms, and regulatory initiatives," said Biswajit Maity, Senior Principal Analyst at Gartner.

'India a potential global raw material sourcing base for Michelin'

Michelin is looking at India as a potential global sourcing base for raw materials while deepening its engagement with Indian start-ups in areas such as rubber plantation management.

The French tyre maker is initially focusing on strengthening local sourcing for its Indian operations before expanding the initiative to global requirements, said Shantanu Deshpande, Managing Director, Michelin India, on the launch of the X Multi Energy Z2 truck tyre, manufactured at the company's Chennai plant.

"Right now, we are focusing on local-to-local for India. We are also exploring India as a source for supplying raw materials for our own plants outside India," Deshpande said.

Michelin is looking at multiple categories of inputs, including natural rubber, chemicals and other materials used in tyre manufacturing. But the company is yet to identify specific products or countries that could be covered under the global sourcing initiative, he added.

Michelin is working with start-ups to improve the management of rubber tree plantations and is also collaborating with start-ups in non-tyre activities, he said.

Vitor Silva, President, Michelin Africa, India and the Middle East (AIM) Region, said with key markets like the US, Europe and Japan being flat, AIM is the most promising market.

"Within AIM, India is the most promising and fastest growing. AIM currently accounts for about 3 per cent of Michelin's global business but has considerable potential in the next five to 15 years, with India leading the growth," he added. The group is targeting a sustained low double-digit annual growth for AIM, he said.

NEW TYRES POTENTIAL

Deshpande said the new tyres can deliver up to 6 per cent fuel savings compared with competing tubeless tyres and up to 13 per cent compared with tube-type tyres, besides offering 25 per cent longer tyre life.

The Chennai facility manufactures truck and passenger car tyres. While passenger car tyre production is primarily meant for the Indian market, nearly half of its B2B production is exported. The plant ships truck tyres to North America, West Asia, Africa and Europe. Exports account for 30-40 per cent of the Chennai plant's sales, he said.

The unit has an annual installed capacity of 54,000 tonnes, catering to both B2B and B2C segments.

Omron India Automation targets doubling of revenue by FY30

Aishwarya Kumar
Bengaluru

Omron India Automation is targeting to double its revenue by FY30 from the FY25 levels. The industrial automation business reported sales of ₹513.3 crore in FY25, which rose to ₹649.2 crore in FY26. The company said sales grew at a CAGR of around 20 per cent over the last three years.

Junta Tsujinaga, President and CEO of Omron Corporation, said India is moving from "Make in India" to "Innovate in India", creating opportunities for the company to develop technologies that make factories safer and smarter, improve healthcare and contribute to sustainability.

"Our ambition is very clear: To be India's long-term partner in creating a better society for India and for the world," he added.

Junta Tsujinaga, President and CEO of Omron Corporation

GROWTH IN INDIA

Omron sees opportunities in India's semiconductor, battery and electronic components industries, which Tsujinaga said were expected to grow around three-fold, ten-fold and more than five-fold, respectively.

These industries require highly precise manufacturing and inspection technologies, areas in which the company believes it can leverage its expertise.

Omron began its industrial automation business in India in 1996 and entered the healthcare market in 2010. Currently, it has six manufacturing centres in India.

Sameer Gandhi, Managing Director of Omron Automation India, said the company's decision to treat India as a separate region, rather than as part of the broader Asia-Pacific region, reflected the market's strategic importance to its future growth.

Omron's industrial automation business serves sectors, including FMCG, healthcare and pharmaceuticals, automotive, infrastructure and digital industries.

Flipkart kickback probe puts vendor oversight under scrutiny

Our Bureau
Bengaluru

Flipkart's investigation into nearly 150 employees over alleged kickbacks from vendors in its smartphones and luggage and travel accessories (LTA) categories has brought internal controls and governance practices under scrutiny, particularly as the e-commerce company prepares for a potential public listing.

The employees are alleged to have exploited Flipkart's business-to-business (B2B) operations by accepting payments from vendors in exchange for preferential treatment, including better visibility and placement of products on the platform.

The investigation is ongoing, and the quantum of the alleged kickbacks is yet to be established, a person familiar with the matter said.

INTERNAL OVERSIGHT

Shriram Subramanian, Founder of corporate governance advisory firm InGovern, said financial controls and internal oversight mechanisms were important to prevent such practices, which were not uncommon across organisations.

"There are proper internal risk control mechanisms out there. This is not happening for the first time, and it will not be the last time either," Subramanian said.

The alleged employees are understood to have facilitated preferential treatment for select sellers through Flipkart's B2B channel, potentially affecting the visibility of competing vendors and the level playing field on the marketplace.

THIRD INVESTIGATION

The probe marks the third internal investigation. Walmart has conducted business within Flipkart in less than three years, one of the persons cited above said.

Flipkart operates its B2B business through Flipkart Wholesale, which caters to kirana stores, retailers and MSMEs, and a separate B2B sales programme for marketplace sellers.

The development comes as Flipkart Internet reported an 18 per cent year-on-year increase in revenue from operations to ₹1,45,880 crore in FY26. Its consolidated net loss narrowed marginally to ₹8,468 crore from ₹8,646 crore in the previous financial year.
