Rupee weakens

to intervention by the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) through dollar sales.

Adding to the pressure was renewed strength of the US dollar amid rising uncertainty over trade policies. Market caution intensified as the 90-day extension on tariff suspensions is set to expire on Wednesday, with no formal trade agreements signed so far. The lack of clarity on future trade arrangements has made investors more risk-averse, contributing to the rupee's decline, said dealers.

Additionally, there was a strong dollar demand from a major private bank, which further added pressure on the local currency. The rupee's fall below the 85.80 per dollar level triggered stop-loss orders, leading to further decline, said dealers.

In the absence of positive develop-it could potentially touch 86.50 per dollar in the near term. The dollar index was trading at 97.36, against the previous day's 96.95. It measures the strength of the greenback against a basket of six major currencies.

"Dollar has strengthened and there was a lack of inflows in the market. The RBI has intervened around 86 levels," said a dealer at a state-owned bank. President Trump's declaration, made via a social media post, stressed that there would be "no exceptions" to the proposed tariffs. This announcement has added fresh uncertainty to global trade dynamics, with emerging markets like India bearing the brunt of investor nervousness.

Given the heightened volatility, the RBI is expected to keep a close watch and may
