Space startups share their trajectory with PM

UDISHA SRIVASTAV
New Delhi, 21 August

Founders and chief executive officers (CEOs) of 20 home-grown space startups met Prime Minister Narendra Modi in New Delhi on Friday.

The companies, which are working across areas such as rockets, reusable launch vehicles, satellites, avionics, advanced propulsion, space intelligence, space debris removal and artificial intelligence-powered weather and climate intelligence, shared their progress and vision for the sector. The startups included Skyroot Aerospace, Agnikul Cosmos, Pixxel, Dhruva Space, GalaxEye, Piersight, Bellatrix Aerospace, Digantara, SatSure, Suhora Technologies, Manastu Space, Astrobase, TakeMe2Space, Vyoma, CosmoSense Space, OrbitAD Aerospace, SkyServe (Hyspace), Serendipity Space, Vassar Labs and mistEO.

National Security Advisor Ajit Doval and IN-SPACE Chairperson Pawan Goenka were present at the meeting.

Modi congratulated the entrepreneurs on taking the lead and said the confidence shown by the private sector had strengthened the vision behind opening up the space sector to private participation.

He added that the country's space sector could attract global talent, companies and investment. The founders acknowledged the government support and greater collaboration within the industry. They also noted growing interest on the part of companies in adopting technologies developed by India's private space industry.

The Prime Minister also urged space companies to explore new applications of their technologies and called for greater collaboration with sectors such as agriculture, and environmental organisations.

He also encouraged closer engagement with Atal Tinkering Labs to foster an interest in space among young students.

Commenting on the meeting, Sanjay Neelkanti, CEO and co-founder of Dhruva Space, said, "It was a privilege to share Dhruva Space's work with the Prime Minister and discuss the direction of India's growing private space ecosystem. As India's first private space-technology startup, we have seen the sector evolve significantly. We also discussed our vision to build an indigenous space infrastructure backbone from India for a globally connected space economy."

Dhruva Space also showcased the constellation-scale platforms it is designing, developing and manufacturing indigenously, including its space-qualified P-30, which is set to launch again soon; its upcoming 500-kg communication satellite platform under Project Garuda, which is supported by the Research, Development, and Innovation Fund, and its Ground Station antenna.

Krishanu Acharya, cofounder and CEO of Suhora Technologies, said: "The Prime Minister's continued engagement with India's space startups is a reminder of how far the private space ecosystem has come and how much further it can go. For us, this is validation of the work we're doing in space data and geospatial intelligence. We will keep pushing on solutions that matter for agriculture, infrastructure, and disaster preparedness from India while building for the global market. We're grateful for the government's continued support and excited to keep contributing to India's journey as a global space technology hub."

INDIA'S NEW SUPERSUTAR

CONCERNS OF DRUG ABUSE

Centre imposes strict curbs on sale of four nerve-relaxing drugs

SANJAY KOUJAL
New Delhi, 21 August

India's apex drug regulator has tightened controls on the sale of four popular central nervous system (CNS) medications after expert bodies expressed concerns over their potential abuse for intoxication.

In a gazette notification released on Friday, the Ministry of Health and Family Welfare inserted medications such as Flupentixol (for schizophrenia), Zopiclone (for insomnia), Gabapentin (nerve pain reliever) and Carisoprodol (muscle relaxant) into Schedule H1 of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act.

Drugs listed under Schedule H1 require retailers and pharmacists to keep detailed records of their sales, such as the patient's details, the name and address of the prescribing doctor, and the quantity of the drug supplied. According to the rules, these records must be preserved for three years and made available for inspection by authorities.

The notification, dated

August 19, will be finalised after the completion of a 30-day period, until which stakeholders can give their feedback on the move. The step comes five months after the Drugs Consultative Committee (DCC) of the Central Drugs Standard Control Organisation (CDSCO) first recommended the inclusion of these four drugs in Schedule H1.

The recommendation was based on a report submitted by an expert committee constituted to examine proposals for listing certain drugs under Schedule H1 and Schedule X of the Drugs Rules, 1945, in light of misuse and intoxication.

The CDSCO has been taking such action on neurology and CNS drugs, a therapy segment that registered sales worth ₹17,439 crore on a moving annual turnover (MAT, or last 12 months' revenue) basis between August 2025 and July 2026. The drug regulator had recently put another popular CNS drug, pregabalin, in Schedule H1 after similar concerns over potential substance abuse.

Three new business dailies set to hit the stands

SHINE JACOB
Chennai, 21 August

Three new business dailies are set to launch over the next three to four months. This will also break an 18-year hiatus in the country's financial print media industry.

Express Publications (Madurai), which owns the New Indian Express, plans to come up with a new national business paper based out of Kochi by the end of October. Tamil media group Kumudam will launch a Chennai-based business newspaper in Tamil and English in mid-September. This comes as one of the largest circulated Tamil-language daily newspapers Dinamalar is also planning to launch a business daily in Tamil by the end of this year.

The last major business daily to launch in India was Financial Chronicle in April 2008, preceded by Mint on February 1, 2007. Financial Chronicle shut down in February 2019, leaving the Economic Times, Business Standard, Mint, Financial Express and Business Line as the country's primary business papers.

Two government sources aware of the developments said Express Publications' newspaper will be titled Financial Standard, while the Chennai-based publication will launch as Kumudam Business and News. Officials from both media houses, however, declined to confirm the titles.

Lakshmi Menon, chief operating officer of Express Publications (Madurai), said the new product's editorial focus will be around sectors where much of India's next decade of growth is being built. It will be the sixth national financial daily in India.

"We are not merely reporting on the Indian economy; we are chronicling the new geography of Indian growth — the financial daily for India's growth story," she said.

"We intend to report on the businesses, industries, policies and people driving economic transformation across the country's expanding growth corridors — from manufacturing hubs and logistics networks to innovation ecosystems, family-owned enterprises, regional champions and high-growth cities," Menon said in response to Business Standard's questions.

Anto T Joseph, resident editor of The New Indian Express for Tamil Nadu, is set to lead the group's new business paper in Kochi. Senior journalist I. Ranganathan will be the editor of the new daily by Kumudam.

Though the exact number of editions for the Express Publications (Madurai) paper is not yet known, market sources say it could launch at least a dozen nationwide by leveraging its existing printing press network. Menon said India's economic story is being shaped by entrepreneurs in emerging cities, manufacturers in industrial clusters, expanding consumer markets, digital businesses reaching every district, and ambitious enterprises scaling from across the country. "We see a significant opportunity to build a financial daily that reflects this changing economic landscape. The established financial centres will, of course, remain integral to our coverage," she said in response to a question on choosing Kochi as its headquarters.

"We also recognise that the regional reporting in Tamil, with major national and international news in English. On the other hand, the Dinamalar product will be a 16-page business newspaper.

"We have already started making dummy pages, and our team is ready to go. Waiting for the market to pick up," said Krishnamurthy Ramasubbu, associate editor, Dinamalar. The new newspaper will be printed in all the 10 cities with Dinamalar presence.

Industry sources say the Kumudam Group paper will launch at least four editions across Tamil Nadu. Its parent publication, Kumudam, is a popular Tamil news and entertainment weekly founded in 1948 by S A P Annamalai and P V Parthasarathy in Chennai.

Many view the two launches as a sign of broader media expansion across South India. Just on Monday, Tamil Nadu Chief Minister C. Jeyaraj recently launched his Today Tamil, a new local reporting digital initiative.
