Castrol drives a social agenda

The brand bets on purpose-led advertising and cricket to engage with its user community, bats for longevity

TE NARASIMHAN
Chennai, 6 June

How does a 100-plus year old brand stay relevant, in the face of evolving technologies and consumer choices? That is the question that automotive lubricants brand Castrol, owned by British oil and gas multinational BP is grappling with, as it looks beyond traditional media narratives to tell a relevant story for the modern consumer. The answer, use purpose-led campaigns to increase its sway on social media while becoming more aggressive with its sports sponsorships.

Castrol is a sponsor for the ongoing ICC World Cup 2019 and was also part of the recently concluded Indian Premier League. It has two online communities called Castrol Cricket and Castrol Biking where the brand engages with customers through a range of activities and promotions. Sports offers a wide platform, allowing the brand to expand its appeal. And by aligning with causes such as the environment, social change and public health, Castrol believes it can build a deeper emotional connection with users.

Omer Dormen, managing director, Castrol India says customer intimacy is key for the brand's longevity. "We understand not only vehicles and machinery, but also the conditions and challenges users face and develop products based on market insights," he adds. He points to the development of a new product that improves the experience for city drivers and another for those driving mini trucks in extreme weather.

"Brand marketers need to stay connected with their customers to identify their concerns and provide relevant solutions," adds Kedar Apte, vice president, Marketing,

"Being a century-old brand, it is important to keep reinventing ourselves to stay relevant and top of mind for our customers and consumers"

OMER DORMEN
MD, Castrol India

Castrol India. He believes that purpose driven campaigns and community engagements have helped establish the brand as a catalyst for change. All of this has come with a growing digital presence and Apte says that even as television walks away with majority of the marketing spends, digital is growing.

India is an important market for Castrol, it is the world's third largest lubricants market, next only to US and China, and Castrol has around 20 per cent market share in the retail automotive lubricants market. Offering tangible product benefits helps build emotional affinity with consumers and influencers said Dormen. This prompted the brand to look at the community of direct users more closely. For example, trucks have unique posture-related health issues such as back/knee pain, muscle issues etc. Castrol along with a leading yoga institute designed customised yoga postures called Castrol Truck Aasana for better posture. The company claims to have engaged with more than 1,80,000 truckers so far.

Another big user community for Castrol is that of bikers; with them the engagement has been around the environment and creating clean open spaces in the cities. The company claims its products have steadily improved to help customers bring down the carbon emissions in their automobiles.

"Being a century old brand, it is important to keep reinventing ourselves to stay relevant and top of mind for our customers and consumers," says Dormen. He sees the brand doing that by crafting emotionally engaging relationships with the customer while delivering new technology that helps the brand walk the talk. "At the bedrock of all this is our focus on pioneering technology and constantly offering technologically superior and differentiated products," added Dormen.

The company is also looking for a larger share of the customer's wallet. Last week, it announced a strategic collaboration with 3M India for vehicle care products to be made available in the automotive after-market. Through this collaboration, Castrol wants to enter into the $200 million vehicle care market in India, hoping to leverage the trust that it has built with lubricants.

The company is also strengthening its distribution network, it has 350 distributors and sub-distributors who reach out to additional outlets in rural markets apart from a wider network of independent workshops. It also serves over 3,000 key institutional accounts.

After third rate cut...

The past 50-bp cut had resulted in the weighted average lending rate to fall by 21 bps in fresh rupee loans by banks. But for old loans, the rate continues to remain high and the average has increased by 4 bps. "Generally, the transmission takes four to six months, but the transmission this time is much faster," Das said. The RBI governor said liquidity would continue to remain comfortable and available at all times for all productive purposes, which should aid transmission too. He expected banks to catch up with cumulative rate cuts. But bankers say transmission is not a straight path, as small savings rates remain elevated, which eat away banks' deposits. Unless banks lower their deposit rates, they cannot cut lending rate too, said bankers. Still, some rate cuts could be expected in the immediate term.

"With its 'accommodative' stance, we expect the RBI to remain supportive, maintaining liquidity at a slight surplus over the next few months. On the margin, this could aid transmission of policy rate cuts," said Pranjul Bhandari, chief economist of HSBC.

Banks may cut lending...

At the same time, bankers pointed out higher interest rates on small savings had become a hurdle to reducing deposit rates further.

Senior public sector bank executive said better liquidity conditions would be conducive for passing on benefits to borrowers. For better transmission, the government also has to revise (read: reduce) interest rates on small savings deposits. They are linked to yields on government bonds, which have declined substantially in response to the RBI's rate cuts.

Sameer Narang, chief economist, Bank of Baroda, said they expected the RBI to reduce the policy rate by another 25 bps in August or October. Further reduction in interest rates will lead to lower real rates and thus kick-start private sector investment cycle. R K Gurumurthy, head of treasury at Lakshmi Vilas Bank, said more measures could be seen in the coming days which would help achieve faster and sizeable rate transmission.

The RBI has decided to revise the existing liquidity management framework. It will constitute an internal working group to review the framework and suggest measures to simplify it. The group is expected to submit its report by mid-July 2019.

Karthik Srinivasan, group head, financial sector ratings, Icria, said, "There is a need for greater clarity on the usage of various tools or liquidity levels at which various triggers for liquidity infusions get activated to improve the transparency of the liquidity framework."

Contagion fear...

"Challenges faced by accounts like DHFL have already been factored in when we have given our estimate for the stress that the bank would have to deal with in FY20 and included in our estimates for slippage and loan loss provisioning for the current financial year," the statement said.

The fear of a contagion was highlighted by CARE Ratings on Wednesday when it said there had been a deterioration in the liquidity profile of DHFL, with cash and liquid investments decreasing within a month from ₹4,668 crore (including reserve requirement) as on March this year to ₹2,775 crore on April 30. DHFL is expecting a negative cumulative mismatch of around ₹4,180 crore between June and August in its cash inflows and outflows, CARE said.

Indian banks will have to take a significant haircut and make provisions as they gave loans worth ₹50,000 crore by way of loans and bonds to DHFL. Besides, life insurers, including Life Insurance Corporation (LIC), and pension funds have an exposure of another ₹30,000 crore to the company. Dewan Housing also raised deposits of ₹10,000 crore, or 10 per cent of its total liability, from retail investors. It raised another ₹10,000 crore from mutual funds and via external commercial borrowings.

"Mutual funds, with an exposure of ₹5,000 crore, or 0.4 per cent of debt AUM, will be the first to take mark-to-market (MTM) hits of as much as 75 per cent. Banks will also face similar MTM risks on bond books, but for loans they will follow 90 days past overdue for NPLs (non-performing loan) and time-based provisioning that starts from 15 per cent," CLSA said. On Thursday, DHFL fell 16 per cent to close at ₹94 a share on the BSE.

SFIO spots lapses...

The ₹105-crore repayment by ABG International (ABGIL), in turn, was made from a ₹220-crore loan extended to Onaway Industries, another ABG company. Both PFS Shipping and ABG Cement Holdco are fully owned subsidiaries of ABG International.

A detailed questionnaire sent to the ABG group remained unanswered.

Rishi Agarwal was in direct touch with Parthasarathy on email. The SFIO charge sheet has detailed Bawa's involvement in extending credit to various ABG group entities. "The whistleblower in its letter dated March 3, 2017, has pointed out the connivance of the management of IFIN and also of Ravi Parthasarathy and Ramesh Bawa to release the security cover in the case of ABG," said the SFIO.

PFS Shipping India had a very high loan-to-value ratio with "inadequate asset cover", the SFIO said its first charge sheet filed in the IL&FS case. Besides, there was non-availability of no-objection certificates from the existing lenders of the company.

In another account, IFIN subscribed to debentures worth ₹160 crore of ABGIL in June 2012, with the objective of acquiring shares of ABG Shipyard and other corporate purposes. Though ABGIL's provisional net worth was ₹800 crore on March 31, 2012, corporate guarantees issued were over ₹2,400 crore, which were three times its net worth.

There were group companies like Pallav Trading and Parlay Infrastructure that had just ₹1 lakh as paid-up capital. IFIN extended loans of ₹280-crore to Pallav Trading and ₹180 crore in December 2016.

Azim Premji...

According to industry watchers, unlike many family-run business houses in India, Wipro has been working on succession planning for some time, with Rishad being groomed to step into Premji's shoes.

As chief strategy officer, Rishad drives the company's mergers and acquisition strategy, apart from leading Wipro's $100-million venture capital fund, which invests in start-ups that develop new-age technologies. As former chairman of the IT industry association Nasscom, Rishad is aware of the dynamics of the trade, and proved his mettle by raising issues the industry faced.
