Limit Internet Shutdowns by States: Telcos Urge Govt

About 3,711 hours (154 days) of Net shutdowns have taken place across 11 telecom circles, say telcos

Kiran Rathee

New Delhi: Telecom operators have urged the government to discourage states from issuing directions to temporarily suspend internet services, saying it inconveniences citizens and cripples critical functions like money transfer, subsidy transaction and online education. To address law and order concerns, state governments at times issue orders barring internet services in certain areas.

In a letter dated December 3 to the Department of Telecommunications (DoT), a copy of which ET accessed, the telcos said that since April, about 3,711 hours (154 days) of internet shutdowns have taken place across 11 telecom circles.

"It has been observed that state governments frequently impose internet shutdowns at various locations within the states by simply citing the Temporary Suspension of Telecom Services (Public Emergency or Public Safety) Rules, 2017,

Telecom operators said that about 90% of essential and, on occasion, lifesaving services rely on online connectivity depriving the general public of essential telecommunication services during such periods," Cellular Operators Association of India (COAI) wrote to DoT secretary Neeraj Mittal. COAI represents all three private telecom firms — Reliance Jio, Bharti Airtel and Vodafone Idea.

The telecom industry has suggested that instead of temporary suspensions, alternative methods for addressing law and order concerns should be examined.

It wants that for matter like conducting examinations, etc., internet services should not be barred.

Talking about the north-east, where 1,458 hours (60+ days) of internet shutdowns have already taken place, COAI said while it was understandable that the law and order situation in parts of Manipur warrants temporary suspension, the state's Imphal West, Imphal East, Bishnupur, Thoubal, Kakching, Kangpokpi, Churachandpur, Jiribam and Pherzawl districts too were deprived of mobile internet/data services for around 23 days.

"It is important to note that as per the new temporary suspension of telecommunication services rules, 2024, the duration of suspension order shall not exceed fifteen (15) calendar days," COAI said. The new rules on temporary suspension under the Telecommunications Act have already been notified.

The telcos said internet services have evolved into the backbone of communities, with about 90% of essential and, on occasion, lifesaving services relying on online connectivity. This includes crucial aspects such as transportation services, e-commerce deliveries (even for essential purchases), food delivery, navigation through maps, pharmaceutical needs, online education and digital payments for utilities and other bills, as well as point-of-sale transactions.

Banks Asked to Ease Compliances for Exports up to $1,000

Kirtika Suneja

New Delhi: In a relief to small exporters, the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) has asked banks to simplify a process for exports of up to $1,000.

In a directive issued last week, which ET has seen, banks have been asked to do away with a compliance related to the realisation of exports for which exporters have to pay a fee. The move will benefit e-commerce shipments, most of which are less than $1,000.

At present, routing of courier shipping bills is done through Export Data Processing and Monitoring System (EDPMS), which allows banks to match inward remittances against the shipping bills of exporters.

This closure process is cumbersome and costly as banks charge ₹1,000-2,000 per shipping bill for reconciliation.

For small-value packages, these charges erode profits. "With the routing of courier shipping bills through the EDPMS, the outstanding entries for small-value shipping bills has increased considerably and is now the major component of the outstanding shipping bills in the EDPMS," RBI said.

An email sent to RBI didn't elicit a response till press time.

The simplification will help close the export reconciliation process based on exporters' statements without banks having to issue an Electronic Bank Realisation Certificate.

"This is a welcome move as it will bring great relief to all small exporters particularly e-commerce exporters as it lowers compliance costs," said Ajay Sahai, director general, Federation of Indian Export Organisations.

The revised dispensation, applicable until March 31, 2025, includes verification of the transaction's legitimacy, receipt of export funds and adherence to know your customer, anti-money laundering and combating the financing of terrorism regulations.

PRE-BUDGET MEET WITH FM Economists Bat for New Mfg Policy, Pvt Investments Push

Banikinkar Pattanayak

New Delhi: Economists on Wednesday rooted for a comprehensive manufacturing policy and steps to further bolster private investments when they met finance minister Nirmala Sitharaman for the customary pre-budget consultations, people aware of the deliberations told ET.

Some of them also recommended measures to boost farm sector growth, curb inflationary pressure and promote innovative climate mitigation measures, they said.

The manufacturing policy should include a strategy on import tariffs, taxation, technology transfer and other related aspects to cover the entire spectrum of potential policy interventions, they are learnt to have told the minister. The share of manufacturing has remained almost stagnant at 15-17% of gross domestic product (GDP) for decades now and attempts by successive governments to raise it to 25% of GDP haven't quite yielded results.

While private investments have gained traction in many sectors, the government needs to incentivise companies to ensure broad-based and sustained growth in their capital spending, the economists have recommended. They acknowledged the central government's efforts to crowd in private investments through sustained hikes in its own capital spending and expected it to keep up the public capex momentum in 2025-26 as well. The government has sharply raised its capex outlay in the range of 17% to 39% annually since FY22, as it sought to use the high multiplier effect of such expenditure to nurse a Covid-hit economy back to health amid flagging private investments.
