Persistent Systems Strengthens Leadership with Appointment of New Chief Technology Officer, Dr. Sid Chatterjee

January 14, 2015, Santa Clara, CA and Pune, India

Persistent Systems (BSE & NSE: PERSISTENT) today announced the appointment of Dr. Siddhartha (Sid) Chatterjee to the position of Chief Technology Officer. He is based in the U.S.

Quote from Dr. Anand Deshpande, CEO of Persistent Systems

"Technology is what has always set Persistent Systems apart. Sid brings extensive technology depth and experience that will be key in helping us further formulate and drive our technology-centric business strategy. After all, without technology, there is no going digital and certainly no digital transformation. Sid's vision will be instrumental in helping our customers achieve their success, which in turn is what drives our growth."

Quote from Sid Chatterjee, Chief Technology Officer of Persistent Systems

"This is an exciting time to join Persistent. The company has strong leadership, a great vision and the proven ability to deliver on it. The innovation and collaboration that defines Persistent Systems is the type of culture in which I thrive and have built my career on."

Dr. Chatterjee received his undergraduate degree in electronics and electrical communications engineering from the Indian Institute of Technology, Kharagpur in 1985 and his Ph.D in computer science in 1991 from Carnegie Mellon University. Prior to joining Persistent, he was vice president for development and delivery integration of IBM's SoftLayer acquisition. During his 13-year career at IBM, he held multiple technical, strategic, managerial and executive positions across IBM Research, IBM Systems & Technology Group and IBM Global Technology Services. Prior to that, Dr. Chatterjee was an assistant and associate professor of computer science at The University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill from 1994 through 2001, and a postdoctoral scientist at the Research Institute for Advanced Computer Science (RIACS) at Moffett Field, California from 1991 through 1994.
