ch, we'll be able to bids for IDBI Bank'

involves a two-stage process, wherein potential bidders will require to pass the Reserve Bank of India's fit and proper criteria and after that, they will be made good for financial bids. By March, we will be in a position to invite financial bids. There is work to be done after financial bids too, such as regulatory approvals, vetting of criteria being met, lenders' approval and open offer, and then only the transaction can be closed. We expect the deal to be completed in the next fiscal year as the process shall at least take nine months.

Will the acquirer of IDBI Bank be required to make an open offer?

We have made it clear that an open offer will be made and there will be no exemption. Open offer exemptions were made in deals where strategic buyers weren't changing, like in the case of HPL and ONGC, as both were part of the same group. But in most cases, there are non-government buyers, there is no such exemption given.

In the upcoming Budget, are we expecting a more pragmatic and achievable divestment target?

In government, as far as receipts are concerned, you can actually receive more than budgeted and unlike expenditure, you don't have to seek Parliamentary approval when the numbers are more than budgeted targets. The thing is you cannot have just one hard number. You have a target but you also have the reality of the markets and geopolitics which just keeps changing.

For example, LIC, we were very clear that we would do it last March, we were preparing everything, and it was going as clockwork, but we had a major catalytic event — the war in Europe. So these black swan events have been coming one after the other. You had the Covid lockdown, the Delta wave, the Omicron wave, and now the current geopolitical situation.

Which are the companies from non-sectoral sectors that the government is looking to privatise?

There is a PSE policy. The Department of Public Enterprises is leading that along with NITI Aayog and us, in identifying what can be the next wave of candidates for privatisation.

In Pawan Hans, the deal was put on hold as one of the bidders in the winning consortium had an adverse observation in a legal case. What is the status of Pawan Hans' privatisation now?
The issue has gone to the appellate court. And there are some more orders which are expected. There is no issue with respect to our transaction. It is in relation to another IBC deal. They were in the resolution plan, which they agreed to fund and there has been a delay because of an adverse court order. The issue is that there have been adverse observations against one of the consortium partners and we feel that a particular observation hits the terms and conditions. We also want that such a kind of order should not be there against an acquirer. So, if they get some reprieve in the appeal, only then we can go ahead with the Pawan Hans sale.

Running airline in JV tougher: Air India CEO

Similarly, in the domestic market, the carrier will increase market share from 10 per cent to 30 per cent in five years, Wilson added.

Wilson said in addition to the 30 planes that the airline recently leased, it is open to leasing more to expand operations quickly. Air India's current fleet comprises 70 narrow-body planes and 43 wide-body planes. The 30 recently-leased planes will join its fleet by December 2023.

Air India is in touch with aircraft manufacturers to place an order that will help grow its fleet threefold in the next five years, he added. He said Air India has become an 'employer of choice' and it received overwhelming response from professionals, when it opened hiring recently for various posts.
