Vighnharta removes all obstacles and sorrows from our lives

Year after year, Ganesh's devotees look forward to his annual coming, "GANESH CHATURTHI". Ganesh Chaturthi falls every year on the fourth day Bhadrapad (August-September). This year Ganesh Chaturthi falls on September 7th. .

Who does not know Ganesha ? Ganesha, the pot-bellied figure with rounded, childish limbs and an elephant's head with one tusk broken, has four arms holding a goad, a noose, a broken tusk and a bowl of sweets. He is well-known deity not only because it has been ordained that before beginning any puja or worshipping any other God, one must first pray to Him. Apart from Krishna, Ganesha is the only other God in whom we find childlike innocence. A prayer in the Rig Veda invoking Ganesha shows that he has been worshipped since very ancient times. The sacred symbol "Om", as written in Sanskrit is said to represent him. He is praised at the beginning of any ceremony or undertaking and has a thousand names, including Ganesh, Ganapati, Gajendra, Siddhadata, Vinayaka, Ekadanta etc. all of which should recited to avert evil and ensure success and well-being.

Now let us see how Ganesh got his name (title) Ganapati ? Once Gods were to select a leader amongst themselves and for this, they had a race. They were to go round the universe thrice and in this race the God who return first would be a winner. The Gods, including Kartikeya (Ganesha's younger brother) set out on their swift mounts and the fat Ganesha was left behind with his vehicle mouse. Ganesha went round his parents Shiva-Parvati thrice and returned to the finishing point and was declared first. All the Gods who had competed agreed that after all Ganesha had been round his universe and thus he deserved to win. Thus Ganesh became 'GANANAYAK', "the leader of Shiva's 'GANAS'" and it was decreed that people must offer him worship as the remover of all obstacles, before they begin any suspicious work or offer puja to any other God.

Ganesha today is worshipped with prayer and meditation but is rarely the primary deity of devotion, except in Maharashtra where puja is offered to him and colorful procession are taken out. The history of Maharashtra since the last two hundred years is recounted and eminent, Maharashtrian politicians remembered. Ganesha Chaturthi festival has provided that symbol for Hindu regeneration in Maharashtra. Ganesha lends power in the world of action and offers protection, opens doors and given success to other Gods and Goddesses.

Now let us see what Ganesha embodies within his frame and what his name signifies: "Ganesha's potbelly or "lambda" signifies that the entire universe or "Brahma" is within Gnash. The ever-moving trunk teaches us to be active. In his four hands "Chaturbhuj", Ganesha carries the pasha (rope), ankusha (Curved weapon), the modaka (sweets ladoos) an offering which his devotees must make to him, if they wish to please him. His fourth hand is folded in beneficence to his devotees, assuring them of his help and protection. Now, you all might be wondering why Ganesha the all-dynamic Number One God should ride a rat. There is a reason. The rate is traditionally associated with emotions like anger, pride and selfishness. Ganesha's riding rat means, the God keeps these feelings under control. Lord Ganesha's BIG HEAD inspires us to think big and think profitably, the BIG EARS prompt us to listen patiently to new ideas and suggestions, the NARROW EYES point to deep concentration need to finish tasks in hand well and quickly, the LONG NOSE tells us to poke around inquisitively to learn more and the SMALL MOUTH reminds us to speak less and listen more.

Today, Lord Ganesha is still with us. He stays with us for complete ten days every year, before his idol is immersed in water with the prayer, "Please come soon next year." (B-15 Jyoti-Kalash Society, Jodhpur Tekra, Satellite, Ahmedabad - 380 015)

Union Minister Shri Shivraj Singh Chouhan inspects the flood affected areas in Telangana, meets the people and farmers and discussed the problems

Union Minister for Agriculture and Farmers' Welfare and Rural Development Shri Shivraj Singh Chouhan is on a two-day visit to Andhra Pradesh and Telangana. Shri Chouhan visited today first Kesarpalli of Gannavaram Assembly Constituency in Vijayawada, Andhra Pradesh and interacted with farmers. The Minister conducted an aerial survey of crop damage of flood affected areas in Meenavali, Peddagopavaram, Mannur, Kattleru of Telangana and an aerial survey of Khammam and Munneru flood affected areas. The Union Minister met the people in Khammam and discussed their problems. Shri Chouhan said that we are working to provide immediate help. No one needs to be disappointed, we will work together and the Central Government will take the people out of this crisis.

The Central Government is standing with the State Government and we will take the farmers out of every crisis. The Union Minister said that he discussed with the farmers in Khammam district of Telangana about their losses. During this, a farmer was telling about the loss of his crops in the floods, then Agriculture Minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan called him and hugged him, wiped his tears and encouraged him. He said, Prime Minister Narendra Modi has sent me to understand your pain, you have lost your crops, but he will not let you lose your life. He further said, I am from a farmer family, I can feel the pain of my farmer brother, but this pain, these tears will not remain, we will provide appropriate compensation. The farmer told the Union Minister that you have done a lot for the farmers in Madhya Pradesh, now take care of us. After which Shri Shivraj Singh Chouhan said that first of all we will assess the crop damage and soon we will provide appropriate compensation. We will ask the banks not to recover loans from farmers in times of crisis. We will not let be a shortage of fertilizers and seeds for the next crop. He said that the crisis is unprecedented, Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi is sensitive, we will work together with the state government to normalise the lives of the farmers. Shri Chouhan said that today he visited the farms of the farmers and enquired about their losses. The entire crops of the farmers .

Why India needs to prepare for 2028 and woo future American leaders to guarantee strong relations

The US presidential elections are now just two months away. American pundits' description of the election as the most consequential in US history is an exaggeration. The United States has weathered episodes of political polarisation before. The chants of "Lock Her Up" that Gen Michael Flynn led at the 2016 Republican Convention were nothing compared to Vice President Aaron Burr shooting his rival, Alexander Hamilton, on July 11, 1804. Beginning in the 1830s, disputes between north and south about slavery and abolition dominated by politics and often turned violent, culminating in the Civil War which, to date, was a deadlier conflict for Americans than either World War. Political polarisation marked the 1870-1900 'Gilded Age'. Party machines dominated regions, and political violence was frequent.

Culture clashes erupted in the 1960s against the backdrop of the Vietnam War as hippies challenged the dominant culture of the baby boomers. In the 1980s, yuppies represented a backlash against the communal, flower-power values of their parents. (Family Ties, a television serial that propelled Michael J Fox to stardom, worked to find comedy in the generational divide).

The pendulum of partisanship is again extreme today, fuelled by 24x7 news and the Internet as well as two candidates defined more by their partisan rancor than policy expertise, ideological consistency, or general competence. If Democratic nominee is the valedictorian (top-ranked student) of a high school summer school programme, Republican nominee Donald Trump appears at best the salutatorian (2nd-ranked student) of the special education class.

Sometimes, however, the backlash to partisanship and rancor enables political greatness. When Republicans went into their 1860 convention, the presumptive nominee was William Seward. His radical opposition to slavery polarised Americans, though Seward won the endorsement of liberal outlets like the New York Times. Seward had a tendency to throw fuel on the fire. Democrats largely blamed Seward's incitement for John Brown's 1859 raid on Harpers Ferry, Virginia, in which the militant abolitionist sought to seize the armory and free slaves. The raid ultimately failed and Brown hanged for treason. With passions running so high and Republicans fearing the never-Seward vote could deny them the presidency, they turned to the relatively unknown Abraham Lincoln, a gangly and well-spoken Illinois lawyer and one-term congressman who had, prior to the 1860 convention, failed even to win his party's support for Illinois' seat in the US Senate. Historians today rank Abraham Lincoln (1861-1865) as America's top president, above founding father George Washington (1789-1797) who established the precedent of leaders retiring, Thomas Jefferson (1801-1809) who both masterminded the Louisiana Purchase and slashed national debt, Theodore Roosevelt (1901-1909) who implemented progressive reforms domestically and an active foreign policy, and Franklin Delano Roosevelt (1933-1945) who shepherded the country through both the Great Depression and World War II.
