Kuki farmer killed in armed attack in Manipur village

Express News Service
Imphal, June 9

A KUKI farmer was killed in an attack by armed miscreants in Lansan village in Manipur's Tamenglong district on Tuesday. The police said the attack happened around 11.30 am in the Kuki-dominated village.

According to the police, a group of armed miscreants opened fire towards some farmers working in a paddy field along the Imphal-Tamenglong road. Haogin Louvum, 55, was killed in the attack. A case has been registered and investigation is underway, said the police.

The incident was reported on the day 14 Kuki men, who had been held captive by Naga groups since May 13, were released. The 14 men had been abducted following a twin ambush at Kangpokpi and Noney districts, killing four persons including three church leaders and one Naga man.

On Monday, a Rongmei Naga man, Chunjanglung Panmei, 58, was killed in an attack in Pongringlong Part-I village of Kangpokpi district.

The incident occurred while Panmei, along with eight villagers, had gone to collect firewood from Kangpokpi forest.

Kuki Impi Sadar Hills, a Kuki body, alleged Louvum was killed by NSCN-IM Kamson group.

14 abducted Kuki men freed, no word on six missing Naga men

Sukrita Baruah
Guwahati, June 9

NEARLY A month after they were abducted and one aborted release attempt later, 14 Kuki men were released by Naga groups in Manipur's Senapati district Tuesday afternoon. However, a question mark still lingers over the location and fate of six missing Naga men, who are believed to have been abducted by the Kuki side.

The Naga groups have been hoping to use the 14 Kukis with them to force the other side to hand over the six missing Nagas.

A senior police official said the 14 Kuki men were released at Taphou Kuki, a village in Kangpokpi district, to which most of them belong, and that search is still on for six missing Naga men.

Taphou village headman Lenkhomang Chongloi said the 14 men were handed over to them by a team of police, security forces and the administration, and they were told that this was happening only an hour earlier. The Kuki headman said: "We thought the 14 had already gone, that we had lost them. So emotions are running very high right now."

On May 13, amidst the rising Kuki-Naga tension in Manipur, dozens of villagers were abducted by both sides in Kuki-Zo-majority Kangpokpi district and 14 Kuki hostages were released nearly a month after they were abducted by armed groups, in Imphal on Tuesday. PTI

Naga-majority Senapati district, respectively. Fourteen captives had been released by both sides after a day-long stand-off.

However, Naga groups in Senapati had continued to hold on to 14 captives, demanding that six of their missing people, who they alleged had been abducted by Kuki groups, be released first.

The Kuki groups have denied holding any Nagas, saying they released all their hostages on May 15.

According to locals, the Kuki villagers who had been abducted had stepped out of home on May 13 morning to gather firewood in the jungle, when the situation in the hills began to spiral due to the killing of three church leaders from the Thadou Baptist Association in an ambush at Kangpokpi.

In retaliation, the Kuki groups abducted over a dozen Naga villagers in Kangpokpi. This was followed by the abduction of over two dozen Kuki residents of Taphou. Chongloi said the 14 released men were undergoing medical check-ups. "An Army doctor has come. We will take them to civil doctors as well. We are thankful that they do not have any physical injuries, but we don't know what their mental and psychological condition might be like," he said.

United Naga Council (UNC) president Ng. Lorho told The Indian Express that the release had been facilitated by building consensus among the different Naga groups in Senapati. "The government has assured us that the status of our six men will be established and produced within a time frame. So, we are waiting now. We have made the first move on humanitarian grounds," he said.

In an oral statement made close to Taphou, he said, "We are honouring the commitment made by Honourable Home Minister Amit Shah ji through Honourable CM of Nagaland Dr Neiphiu Rio that the government will put all effort to trace and establish the status of the six Naga missing hostages."

Different quarters had been urging for the release of the 14 Kuki men, including Nagaland Chief Minister Rio, Meghalaya CM Conrad Sangma and different church groups. The Home Department of the Manipur government had also appealed to the UNC to facilitate the release of the hostages, stating that the case related to the missing men had been transferred to the NIA, along with continuing search operations.

With these appeals, there had been discussions to release them on June 1. However, this had led to tensions in Senapati with other Naga groups expressing discontentment over this potential release without the six men being located and rescued, and the UNC had called off the release citing "prevailing sentiments of Naga public".

Shiv Shakti Point soil chemically close to lunar meteorite that hit Antarctica

Anjali Marar
Bengaluru, June 9

DATA COLLECTED by India's moon mission Chandrayaan-3 has established a close chemical relationship between the soil found at Shiv Shakti Point, the landing site near the Moon's South Pole, and a lunar meteorite that had hit Antarctica's Allan Hills region of Victoria land about a million years ago.

A new study led by a team of researchers from the Physical Research Laboratory (PRL) noted that the iron and magnesium-rich and aluminum-deficient soil found at the Shiv Shakti point came closest chemically to the lunar meteorite ALHA 81005 discovered in Antarctica in 1982.

Dwijesh Ray, lead author and PRL scientist, told The Indian Express: "The Chandrayaan-3 landing site occupies a compositional space between traditional ferroan anorthosite and Mg-suite lithologies (names of different types of rocks), and closely resembles the lunar meteorite ALHA 81005."

Both ferroan anorthosite and Mg-suite lithologies are typical lunar rock types composed of specific elements, like calcium and magnesium.

The lunar surface has suffered numerous micro-meteorite and meteorite hits in the past, as a result of which the regolith layers (the top layers) on its surface have a certain chemical composition. But the possibility of deeper lava and mineral layers mixing with the

The results highlight the compositional diversity that exists within the lunar highlands and demonstrate that different impact histories can expose and redistribute distinct crustal materials across the Moon. surface soil as a fallout of these events were not scientifically established yet.

The latest results have emerged from the data gathered by the Alpha Particle X-ray Spectrometer (APXS), a scientific probe onboard the Pragyaan rover on Chandrayaan-3, had landed on the Moon's South Pole in August 2023.

The APXS is designed to unravel the chemical composition of the soil at the Chandrayaan-3 landing site.

The PRL team, in a new publication in the journal Nature, described the soil at the landing site to be a mix composition of a number of chemicals.

Rajnath clears solar project on unused defence land in Sitapur

Amrita Nayak Dutta
New Delhi, June 9

DEFENCE MINISTER Rajnath Singh has approved the establishment of a 250 MW Solar Power Project with a Battery Energy Storage System (BESS) in Sitapur, Uttar Pradesh, marking a pioneering effort among several planned projects aimed at utilising thousands of acres of unused defence land across India for various green energy initiatives.

The Sitapur project will be developed on a vacant parcel of defence land measuring 850 acres, the Defence Ministry said on Monday. "This is the first-of-its-kind project undertaken by the Ministry of Defence (MoD), involving the development of a large-scale solar power generation facility with integrated BESS support on defence land," the statement from the Ministry noted.

The Ministry stated that the solar power project at Sitapur reflects the government's commitment towards clean energy, sustainability and reduction of dependence on conventional energy sources. It said that besides strengthening long-term energy security for the defence forces, the project is expected to substantially reduce expenditure incurred on procurement of conventional grid power for defence establishments, resulting in significant savings to the government exchequer over the life cycle of the project.

It noted that NTPC Limited is implementing the project through a competitive bid process to realise the most optimal energy pricing and savings for defence establishments.

COURT QUASHES DGCA'S SUSPENSION ORDER, SAYS IT'S ILLEGAL, UNSUSTAINABLE

'Got my life and dignity back': After 15 years, pilot hopes to fly again as HC restores licence

Omkar Gokhale
Mumbai, June 9

AT 46, Jeetendra Krishna Varma was flying all three aircraft types in Air India's fleet. Then, in 2011, his licence was suspended without notice or inquiry, and everything unravelled. He lost his job, his marriage, custody of his children, and spent years at his father's home in Gujarat because he could no longer afford to live in Pune or Mumbai.

On Monday, the Bombay High Court quashed the DGCA's suspension order, restored his licence, and noted that Delhi Police has not framed charges against him in 15 years and the authority never produced the "forged" marksheets he was accused of using to procure a flying licence.

Varma is 61 now. The age bar for pilots is 65. "Aviation and flying are in my blood," he told The Indian Express. "I want to resume flying and restart life."

"I'd never been to a court or police station and suddenly these things came up and I was a victim of a media trial. The hasty decision of suspension of my licence led to termination of my 22 years of unblemished service record. I was at the peak of my career at the age of 46 and was flying all three kinds of aircraft Air India had at that time and suddenly I lost everything. With this ruling, I have got my life and dignity back," he told The Indian Express.

The suspension not only ended his flying career but upended his personal life. Varma, who was earlier based in Pune, claims he lost his house, underwent divorce proceedings, and has not seen his children in 15 years. "My family members, including my siblings, and close friends supported me and without them it would have been difficult and I might have had to beg on the streets. I ended up spending over Rs 50 lakh (in the legal battle) in the last 15 years. It was very painful. You cannot change destiny; you have to face it. You need patience and must remain calm during the judicial process," he said.

On March 12, 2011, Varma was on a flight from Shanghai to

Jeetendra Varma, 61, says he will start from scratch, train again

New Delhi. At his hotel room in Delhi, he was summoned by police officers probing allegations of favouritism in issuance of licences by DGCA officials. He had been accused of paying certain amounts for a forged marksheet to obtain his licence. He was arrested along with another pilot and granted bail within a week on March 19.

Four days later, he wrote to DGCA seeking the suspension's withdrawal and release of his Commercial Pilot License (CPL). No reply came, and he approached the Bombay High Court in April 2011 through advocates Mohan Bir Singh and Rahul Jalan.

Although a criminal complaint was lodged against him in 2011 by Delhi Police for allegedly procuring a flying licence using forged marksheets, no charges were framed against him even after 15 years. His termination from Air India had earlier been set aside by the HC observing violation of fundamental rights and principles of natural justice and upheld by the Supreme Court last year, after which he re-joined the airline. But he still couldn't fly, as the licence remained suspended.

The bench of Justices Manish M Pitale and Shreeram V Shiras found that the DGCA had suspended his Airline Transport Pilot License (ATPL) without issuing a show-cause notice and without specifying the suspension duration. Justice Shiras, writing for the bench, observed that the authority had "conspicuously failed" to explain the basis of its decision. The court also rejected the DGCA's reliance on Rule 19, which applies only to persons convicted of contraventions under the Aircraft Rules. The DGCA argued the suspension was "neither arbitrary nor illegal and that it was passed on merits, based on the documents available on record". The court disagreed, setting it aside as "clearly illegal and unsustainable". The matter has been remitted to DGCA, which must give Varma an opportunity to explain his version and pass a reasoned order within two months.

Varma trained at the Airline Asian Academy in Orlando, Florida, and was issued a CPL in 1988. Over nearly two decades he accumulated close to 7,000 flying hours and eventually qualified for an ATPL.

"The age bar for flying is 65. I have only a few flying years left, so I have to start from scratch, but my passion is still alive. Technology and the way of training have changed in the last 15 years, so I'll have to work on that. I have to get my licence first followed by a medical checkup. Let's see what happens," he said.

West Bengal agrees to drop 'dham' from Digha Jagannath Temple name on Odisha's request

Atri Mitra & Sujit Bisoyi
Kolkata, Bhubaneswar,
June 9

THE BJP government in West Bengal on Tuesday announced that it would remove the word "dham" from the name of the Digha Jagannath Temple on request of the Odisha government.

This seeks to end the controversy that erupted over Digha temple's name, which had irked many religious and political figures in Odisha — the home of the 12th-century Puri Jagannath Temple, which has long been known as Jagannath Dham. Announcing the decision following a Cabinet meeting, West Bengal CM Suvenudh Adhikari said using the word "dham" for the Digha Jagannath Temple was not correct in accordance with "Sanatan culture".

"The previous West Bengal government has approved it as Sri Sri Jagannath Dham Cultural Centre. They technically made it a cultural centre, but inserted the word 'dham' in it. It has been built using funds from the public exchequer. I accept the request of the Odisha Chief Minister, and we will remove the word 'dham' immediately," said Adhikari.

The West Bengal CM said the complex would remain and that worship would continue there. BJP Puri MP Sambit Patra, who had gone to West Bengal with Odisha Chief Minister Mohan Charan Majhi's letter requesting that the word "dham" be dropped from the Digha temple's name, was present during the announcement.

The naming of the newly built temple at Digha, inaugurated in April last year by the Mamata Banerjee government, had been criticised by servants of the Puri temple, and the Odisha government had strongly objected to the new temple being called a "dham".

The Odisha Chief Minister, in a letter to his then West Bengal counterpart on May 6, 2025, had said that using "dham" for the Digha temple "dilutes the distinct heritage of Puri", and added that it hurt the sentiments and emotions of millions of pilgrims and devotees.

Majhi had noted the Puri shrine holds unparalleled religious, spiritual, and cultural significance, not just for the people of Odisha, but for millions of devotees across India and the world, and the name "Jagannath Dham" holds a unique and sacrosanct identity linked to Puri. Chairperson of the Shree Jagannath Temple Managing Committee, Dibyasingha Deb, also appealed to ISKCON, which manages affairs at the Digha temple, to persuade authorities to desist from using the word "dham" for the new shrine.
