Ukraine deal 'close', hints US, but Kremlin not sure

MOSCOW

US President Donald Trump's outgoing Ukraine envoy has said that a long-awaited deal to end the war in Ukraine is "really close," even as Moscow insists major revisions are needed before any agreement can move forward.

Speaking at the Reagan National Defense Forum in California, U.S. Special Envoy for Ukraine Keith Kellogg described the effort to end Europe's deadliest conflict since World War Two as being in "the last 10 metres," adding that those final steps are often the most difficult. Kellogg, who will step down in January, said only two major issues remain unresolved - the future of the Donbas region and the Zaporizhzhia nuclear power plant, Europe's largest, currently under Russian con-

"If we get those two issues settled, I think the rest of the things will work out fairly well," Kellogg said. "We're almost there." He reiterated, "We're really, really close."

Russia, however, offered a far more cautious and tougher assessment. Following four hours of Kremlin talks between President Vladimir Putin, Trump's special envoy Steve Witkoff, and Trump's son-in-law Jared Kushner last week, Putin's foreign policy aide Yuri Ushakov confirmed that "territorial problems" were discussed. This is widely understood to refer to Russia's claim over the entire Donbas region, even though Ukraine continues to control roughly 5,000 square kilometres of it. Almost all countries recognise Donbas as Ukrainian territory, and Kyiv has repeatedly rejected ceding it. Ukrainian lin has suggested Kushner is now expected to lead the drafting of a potential peace Kellogg, a retired lieutenant general with combat experience in Vietnam, Panama and Iraq, described the scale of losses on both sides as "horrific," saying Russia and Ukraine together have suffered more than two million casualties, including both dead and wounded, since the invasion began in February 2022. Neither country releases credible casualty numbers.

Russia currently controls 19.2% of Ukraine, including Crimea, all of Luhansk, more than 80% of Donetsk, around 75% of Kherson and Zaporizhzhia, and small parts of Kharkiv, Sumy, Mykolaiv and Dnipropetrovsk

The latest negotiations come amid concerns in Kyiv and Europe after a leaked set of 28 U.S. draft peace proposals suggested Washington was open to compromising on Russia's key demands, including limits on Ukraine's military, a halt to NATO expansion. and acceptance of Moscow's control over roughly one-fifth of Ukraine.

Hegseth backs military strikes on 'cartel boats'

WASHINGTON

Defense Secretary Pete Hegseth defended strikes on alleged drug cartel boats during remarks Saturday at the Ronald Reagan Presidential Library, saying President Donald Trump has the power to take military action "as he sees fit" to defend the nation.

Hegseth dismissed criticism of the strikes, which have killed more than 80 people and now face intense scrutiny over concerns that they violated international law. Saying the strikes are justified to protect Americans, Hegseth likened the fight to the war on terror following the Sept 11, 2001 attacks.

"If you're working for a designated terrorist organization and you bring drugs to this country in a boat, we will find you and we will sink you. Let there be no doubt about it," Hegseth said during his keynote address at the Reagan National Defense Forum. "President Trump can and will take decisive military action as he sees fit to defend our nation's interests. Let no country on earth doubt that for a moment."

The most recent strike brings the death toll of the campaign to at least 87 people. Lawmakers have sought more answers about the attacks and their legal justification, and whether US forces were ordered to launch a follow-up strike following a September attack even after the Pentagon knew of survivors.

Though Hegseth compared the alleged drug smugglers to Al-Qaida terrorists, experts have noted significant differences between the two foes and the efforts to combat them.

Hegseth's remarks came after the Trump administration released its new national security strategy, one that paints European allies as weak and aims to reassert America's dominance in the Western Hemisphere.

During the speech, Hegseth also discussed the need to check China's rise through strength instead of conflict. He repeated Trump's yow to resume nuclear testing on an equal basis as China and Russia, a goal that has alarmed many nuclear arms experts. China and Russia haven't conducted explosive tests in decades, though the Kremlin said it would follow the US if Trump restarted tests.

The speech was delivered at the Reagan National Defense Forum at the Ronald Reagan Presidential Foundation and Institute in California, an event which brings together top national security experts from around the country. Hegseth used the visit to argue that Trump is Reagan's "true and rightful heir" when it comes to muscular foreign policy.

By contrast, Hegseth criticized Republican leaders in the years since Reagan for supporting wars in the Middle East and democracybuilding efforts that didn't work. He also blasted those who have argued that climate change poses serious challenges to military read-

"The war department will not be distracted by democracy building, interventionism, undefined wars, regime change, climate change, woke moralizing and feckless nation building," he said.
