Dr. Mehta's Hospitals performs rare and complicated surgery on 56-year-old

Chennai, Sept 10: Dr. Mehta's Hospitals, one of Chennai's leading hospitals has successfully performed a rare and complicated surgery on a 56-year-old female patient from Chennai with a swelling in the front of her neck. She has been suffering with this complaint for the past 18 months. When the swelling restricted her from swallowing solid food, she decided to come to Dr. Mehta's Hospital. When examined, an 8x7 cm lump in the anterior part of the neck that moved with swallowing was found. Tests were recommended and the results showed her blood investigations were within normal limits. A CT scan was also undertaken, and it confirmed the presence of a 94x83x61 mm dense soft tissue mass in the thorax. CTVS Team was roped in and once again, a biopsy was performed to confirm the diagnosis. After necessary preoperative investigations, the patient was taken up for surgery, under General anaesthesia cervical thyroidectomy was done first and the neck lump along with thyroid gland was removed following which sternotomy using a power saw was performed and after intensive dissection the lump in the thorax was removed. Post operatively there was a good progress and hence the patient was discharged within a week. "The patient is recovering well and is expected to come in for a checkup shortly. If the swelling was not detected at this stage, the lump would have increased resulting in a serious condition for the patient. We advise the public to constantly keep checking for any abnormal growth in the body or any difficulty they experience and attend to it immediately. Ignoring such symptoms can result in severe consequences, said, Dr. Amilthan, Consultant, General & Laparoscopic Surgery, Dr. Mehta's Hospitals. Malignant transformation in Ectopic Thyroid Tissue (ETT) is typically quite uncommon, however frequent monitoring will be advised if the patient chooses to forego surgical intervention in order to identify any early indications of thyroid malfunction or malignant change, said Dr Amilthan.

Rotary Rainbow Project to support families of suicide victims

Chennai, Sept 10: A humanitarian project to support suicide victims in Tamil Nadu, has found instances of misreporting of cause of suicide, leading to erroneous reports that online games as reason of suicide in many instances. The Rotary Rainbow Project of Rotary International District 3232 and District 3201, an initiative to support the kin of suicide victims in Tamil Nadu, has been closely working with the families of suicide victims. They include the family of Kalimuthu, a constable of the Coimbatore armed city force, who took his own life in July, 2022. According to media reports, addiction to online rummy was the reason for his extreme decision. The Rotary Rainbow project has been giving counseling to Late Kalimuthu's wife, Thillai and also supporting her children's education. The immediate family has said that the burden of the depth trap is the real reason for the suicide and not playing online games. It was reported in June, 2022, that Nagarajan, a painting contractor who lived with his family in Manali, took his own life, because he was addicted to online games. Rotary Rainbow Project is supporting the family of Nagaraja and mentoring them by offering moral as well as financial support. The victim's family has also said that Nagarajan had to take this extreme step as he got caught in a debt trap. They also confirmed that his death had nothing to do with online games, as wrongly reported. Rtn PP Sridhar of Rotary Club of Chennai Infocity said, "The greatest gift of life is life itself. One of the most important ways to prevent suicide rates from growing is to recognize the real cause of these deaths and work towards finding a sustainable way of preventing them. Giving all suicide a singular misleading label will do a great disservice to humanity and to the victim's families."

Repos launches credit platform Rupos Pay

Erode, Sept 10: With its 2000+ partners and operations in 220+ cities across the country, Repos is the pioneer of the Doorstep Fuel Delivery industry in India. Under its fintech arm Repos has launched Repos Pay which is a 'first of its kind' Energy on credit Fintech platform to revolutionize energy distribution through its tech tool called DATUM. This launch ceremony took place last month in Mumbai and was graced by Shri Narayan Rane (Minister of MSME. Repos organised a city launch in Erode of its tech tool DATUM. The city launch was witnessed by transporters, OEM officers and bankers. Repos aims in the delivery of fuel (starting with diesel) to doorsteps through Datum by bridging the gap between supply and demand using this tech-enabled innovation. Repos' commitment to creating India's sustainable energy distribution ecosystem was further evidenced by this launch. Repos is committed towards the nation's growth by creating an ecosystem that facilitates the delivery of all forms of energy at the doorstep of end consumers with the help of technology. Small towns in India will write the next chapter of India's startup story and we at Repos are thrilled to support this momentum through the launch of Repos Pay. We have identified the expansive untapped market of fuel on credit and developed a platform to introduce a structured fuel financing and management mechanism. Repos Pay, powered by technology, caters not only to the credit needs of the fuel consumer but also acts as an efficient credit extension and management platform for lenders such as banks, NBFCs and fintech, said Aparajit Subramanian, Co-Founder & Chief Fintech Officer , Repos
