Bengal sees sharpest rise in registered voters in border areas since 2002 SIR

RAVIK BHATTACHARYA Kolkata, November 21

BETWEEN 2002, WHEN the Special Intensive Review (SIR) was last conducted by the Election Commission of India, and 2025, West Bengal has seen a 66% increase in the number of registered voters – from 45.8 million to 76.3 million. Eighteen districts that comprised the state then, and ECI data shows that of the top 10 that showed the highest increase in the number of voters, nine districts border Bangladesh.

Different political parties in the state have different rationales for this — the opposition BJP says this is proof that "Muslim infiltrators" from Bangladesh are settling in India, while the ruling Trinamool Congress says it indicates the inflow from across the border of Hindu refugees escaping persecution.

The SIR is currently underway across the state's 23 districts (some larger districts were carved into smaller ones between 2002 and now).

According to data available with the ECI, the nine districts on the border that have seen an uptick are: Uttar Dinajpur (105.49% increase in number of registered voters), Malda Murshidabad (94.58%),(87.65%), South-24 Parganas (83.30%), Jalpaiguri (82.3%), Cooch Behar (76.52%), North-24 Parganas (72.18%), Nadia (71.46%) and Dakshin Dinajpur (70.94%). The only nonborder district in the top 10 is Birbhum (73.44%). Kolkata was an outlier, witnessing the lowest rise in voter numbers at just 4.6%. From 2,300,871 voters in 2002, the number rose to just 2,407,145 voters.

TMC spokesperson Arup Chakraborty said, "The sharp rise is due to Hindu refugees who have come from Bangladesh and settled in the border districts. The Hindu population in Bangladesh dropped from 23% (in 1951) to 8% (in 2022). They have not gone to China. Apart from small sections going to Assam and Tripura, the majority have come to West Bengal."

He claimed there is a false narrative being spread by the BJP of Muslim infiltration. "Such people have settled in Cooch Behar, Alipurduar and Bangaon, where the BJP has won with their votes... In Malda and Murshidabad, there is a sizable Muslim population, and we have won seats. However, our Chief Minister, Mamata Banerjee, does not believe in such religious divisions and is demanding protection for all," said Chakraborty.

Asked about Kolkata's relatively low uptick, Chakraborty said he isn't sure what explains the data.

Senior BJP leader and former state president Rahul Sinha called it an "alarming trend". "We have been saying this for years, and it's now being reflected in data. Seven districts bordering Bangladesh are in an alarming condition, and many are expected to become or will become Muslim-majority districts due to infiltration," he alleged. "This infiltration and creation of hubs is being planned. That is why data shows an abnormally high percentage of voters as compared to 2002," he claimed. CPI(M) state president and Politburo member, Md Salim, told The Indian Express that the inflow from Bangladesh is definitely a factor in the rise of numbers at the border districts. "BSF should have checked this. A sizable number of Hindu refugees also came in with others; that's why the Hindu population declined in the neighbouring country," he said. Regarding the low figures of Kolkata, Salim said there are various reasons. "Firstly, during the Left Front regime, we were able to develop small urban centres into towns. District towns were also developed. So people from villages did not directly come to Kolkata but went to these towns, like Barasat. We were able to develop rural areas. Secondly, I think a section of people have moved out of Kolkata... some may have settled in the suburbs too, if they haven't left the state. The birth rate (in Kolkata and the districts) is also a factor; it is not of a religious nature but due to backwardness."

IAMAI: Draft accessibility norms to impose cost burden on OTTs

IMPLEMENTATION OF PRO-POSED accessibility norms for online curated content specifically for persons with hearing and visual impairment will lead to a high cost of compliance in several cases, which may even surpass their revenue and make them commercially unsustainable, industry body IAMAI said on Friday.

The information and broadcasting ministry in October floated draft accessibility standards for audio-visual content made available by publishers of online curated content (OTT platforms) to ensure that such content is accessible to persons with hearing and visual impairment. The focus of these guidelines is not only on the content but also on the information and other support needed by persons with disabilities to enjoy such content.

The Internet and Mobile Association of India (IAMAI) said that the proposed guidelines by the Ministry of Information and Broadcasting (MIB), could severely affect regional and smaller OTT platforms, owing to the extensive operational, technical, and financial obligations they are likely to impose.
