MEDIA RELEASE

RELIANCE POWER ENTERS INTO A STRATEGIC PARTNERSHIP WITH CHINA DATANG

FIRST SUCH STRATEGIC PARTNERSHIP BETWEEN INDIA AND CHINA IN THE POWER SECTOR

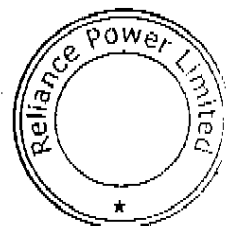

BEIJING, AUGUST 24, 2012: Reliance Power, a Reliance Group company, signed a memorandum of understanding to form a strategic partnership with China Datang Corporation (CDT) represented by the China Datang Overseas Investment Company (CDTO) for development and operation of power and energy projects in India and overseas markets. This marks first such strategic partnership between India and China in the power sector.

CDTO is a wholly-owned subsidiary of China Datang Corporation (CDT) and the major platform for CDT to seek a greater international role. CDT, with generating capacity of 105,896 MW, is one of the large-scale power generation groups in China. Its generation capacity is more than 50% of India's current generation capacity. CDT is a Fortune 500 company and among the top 50 companies in China.

The strategic partnership envisages co-operation in the following areas:

- For the Reliance Power's three coal mines in South Sumatra, Indonesia (Having two billion tonnes of Coal Resources)
 - development of Coal mines including investments in the mine;
 - development of transportation infrastructure for Indonesia Mines; and
 - off-take of coal from the Indonesian mines.
- Operations and Maintenance (O&M) services to power plants in India and other identified markets, including Reliance Power's own power generation units.

Commenting on the development, Reliance Power said: "This is an important milestone in our progress towards becoming India's largest private sector integrated power and resources company. We will benefit from this partnership in being able to draw from CDT's vast talent pool of experienced O&M resources. We will also be able to deploy best operating practices for equipment sourced from China and other global suppliers. The two companies share the vision of creating intrinsic value for all stakeholders, including customers, employees and shareholders through long-term relationships."

China Datang said, "Strategic Partnership with Reliance provides us a platform to expand our footprints in emerging markets like India and Indonesia, which hold enormous business opportunity for us. We believe this development is a key milestone in our journey to become a world renowned company with strong development capability, profitability and international competitiveness."
