Being a site of historic importance it also serves as a place which lends help to tourists identify things to see and do of their own interest in the adventurous city of Kenai. The friendly and knowledgeable staffs here are those familiar with the area, who have been exploring its beauty all their lives. They can direct visitors to the local hotspots for fishing, hiking, wildlife viewing and lot more.

Being had a historical past this pretty Russian Orthodox Church in Kenai holds plenty of it which takes us back to 1800s. The church still holds services to this day, but it is also open for visitors to take a look around its blue domes and neat features which stands as a reminiscent of the Russian architecture and a reminder of the fur traders who worked and settled in Alaska. With a picture-perfect setting neatly surrounded by its own white picket fence the church stands proud reciting its past.

Water a wildlife protector Kenai beach

Watching the fishers and netters catching fish in the inlets of Kenai beach to spotting wildlife whales, bald eagles and seals makes Kenai beach an interesting place to visit. When the tide is out the kenai beaches becomes the best places to stroll and to view the rock pools and coastline, as well as the Alaskan Mountains in the distance.

Russian River

The Russian river and waterfall hike is a beautiful location to visit. One can see people fishing for salmon in the river and can also watch the salmon swimming upstream jumping over the rocks. The more adventurous hike of all time is to walk to the waterfalls. But one must be aware that this is

Ek Nath Shinde: Saga of never-ending pursuit of power

Ek Nath Shinde, once a senior minister in the Uddhav Thackeray-led Shiv Sena government, made waves in 2022 when he took the ultimate political plunge — a rebellion that split the Shiv Sena and which led him into the warm embrace of the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP). This power move not only resulted in the collapse of the Uddhav government but also paved the way for Shinde's ascension as the Chief Minister, albeit in a coalition, where the BJP held the reins.

Maharashtra's political landscape was forever altered, but was Shinde truly satisfied with his new role, or was it just the beginning of a grand-er ambition?

Fast forward to 2024, and the drama surrounding Shinde continues to unfold. Rumours swirl that the rebel Chief Minister still harbours dreams of a more Chief Ministerial future. Not content with the current arrangement, Shinde may well see himself as the rightful claimant to the top post, thanks to his audacious rebellion against Thackeray and his leadership of a faction that now claims the Shiv Sena's name. Whether his vision for the future can mesh with the BJP's larger strategic goals in Maharashtra remains a tantalizing question. But one thing is for certain: the political intrigue in Maharashtra has entered a new phase- one filled with internal power struggles, absences, and an ever-looming desire for the coveted CM chair.

Take, for example, the recent developments that have sparked fresh speculation. Last week, Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis called a crucial meeting to discuss some high-profile housing projects. Now, you'd think that the man in charge of the housing ministry — a certain Ek Nath Shinde — would be front and center, right? Wrong, Shinde wasn't just a little late, he was completely absent. And this wasn't a one-time blip. He had also skipped a key cabinet meeting called by Fadnavis earlier the same week. Now, absence might make the heart grow fonder, but in this case, it only fueled whispers of discontent among political circles in Maharashtra.

To add a little spice to the situation, the housing ministry is Shinde's baby. Yet, the person who showed up to represent him was none other than Minister of State for Home, Yogesh Kadam — a Shinde loyalist, sure, but the optics? Well, let's just say they're more 'turbulent' than the monsoon season in Mumbai. With two major meetings snubbed in the same week, it's safe to say Shinde's absence isn't going unnoticed. In a state where political alliances are as fickle as the weather, this absence certainly raises more than a few eyebrows.

The back-story is also worth revisiting. In 2022, Shinde's defection from the Shiv Sena not only fractured the party but also brought an end to Uddhav Thackeray's government. In the aftermath, Shinde was installed as Chief Minister, but the honeymoon was short-lived. When the BJP emerged as the dominant force in the 2024 assembly elections, the much-anticipated post-poll drama unfolded. Fadnavis, the former CM, was again made the Chief Minister, while Shinde — despite being the leader of the Shiv Sena faction — was left cooling his heels. Naturally, Shinde wasn't thrilled. His desire to be the Chief Minister didn't fade with the election results. Far from it. For weeks, Shinde made it clear that he wasn't exactly thrilled with Fadnavis' return to the throne.

The plot thickened when Shinde, who clearly had bigger dreams, demanded the Home Ministry — a high-profile post that would allow him to tighten his grip on power. However, the BJP, showing its usual penchant for keeping things tightly under control, rejected his request. Instead, they gave him the responsibility of a whopping 11 ministries, including Housing. And yet, as recent events have shown, Shinde's dissatisfaction with his current role seems to be growing, and some might even say, festering.

What does this all mean for Maharashtra? In a state where power is as transient as a political alliance, it's safe to say that Shinde's next move will be closely watched. While he may have secured a seat at the coalition table, the Chief Minister's office remains his Holy Grail, and he's not likely to give up without a fight. The question, however, is whether his power play will be enough to redefine Maharashtra's political future or if he'll once again find himself sidelined in the game of political musical chairs. Either way, it's clear: the power struggle in Maharashtra is far from over. The development is bound to be a thriller.

IADEA hosts Annual Art Educators Conference at Kalakshetra

Chennai, Feb 4: The Indian Art and Design Educators Association (IADEA) held their Sixth Annual Art Educators Conference at Kalakshetra Auditorium Hall on 31st January and 1st February, 2025 here in Chennai. The conference had over 80 art educators from Chennai, Madurai, Coimbatore, Erode, Ranipet, Jaipur, Delhi, Ajmer, and Bengaluru, attending the two day event. Several global and national experts came together to discuss current and future narratives encompassing art education for and alongside 100 school arts teachers.

The two days were punctuated with a number of interactive sessions and workshops anchored on diverse topics. In her keynote speech Dr. Jyotsna Tiwari, HOD, Art and Aesthetics of NCERT, Delhi, highlighted the integration of art in education: the vision of NEP 2020 and the way forward.

Sara Vetteh, Founder IADEA said, "In the future, every career will demand visually literate professionals—those who can research, think critically and communicate fluently using images and words."

The inaugural day concluded with the awarding of 2025 Camlin Art Teacher Excellence Awards to ten art educators. Awarded across five categories, the accolade celebrates the impact of art lessons and its significance in a student's learning journey.

Satish Veerappa, Managing Director, Kokuyo Camlin Ltd said "The Art Teacher plays a very important role in the growth of a child. In this way, art teachers contribute immensely to the creative force of a nation."

Silambarasan announces three new projects for 2025 on his birthday

On his 41st birthday, Silambarasan TR made an exciting announcement, unveiling three upcoming projects lined up for 2025. The actor will collaborate with three young and dynamic filmmakers—Ramkumar Balakrishnan of Parking fame, Kannam Kanna Kollaiyadithaal director Desingh Periyasamy, and Ashwath Marimuthu, known for Oh My Kadavule.

Notably, his highly anticipated collaboration with Desingh Periyasamy, originally planned as his 48th film and backed by Kamal Haasan, has now been elevated to mark his landmark 50th film. Furthermore, STR has announced his debut as a producer with this milestone project, titled

STR50.A Breakdown of the Three Projects:

Film #49 – Directed by Ramkumar Balakrishnan (Parking)

The first project, set to be Silambarasan's 49th film, will be helmed by Ramkumar Balakrishnan. The first-look poster, released on social media, features the actor gripping both an engineering book and a bloodied butcher's knife, hinting at an intriguing storyline. Sharing the poster, Silambarasan wrote, "Happy to collaborate with @ImRamkumar_B and @DawnPicturesOff @AakashBaskaran for my 49th film." Plot details and the full cast are yet to be revealed.

Film #50 (STR50) – Directed by Desingh Peri-

yasamy (Kannam Kanna Kollaiyadithaal)

This milestone project will be STR's first venture as a producer under Atman Cine Arts. Announcing it on social media, he expressed, "There's no better way to begin this than with my 50th film—a dream project for both me and @desinghperiyasamy. We are pouring our hearts into this!" The film boasts a stellar technical crew, including music by Yuvan Shankar Raja, cinematography by Manoj Paramahansa, and editing by Praveen Antony.

Film #51 — God of Love – Directed by Ashwath Marimuthu (Oh My Kadavule)

The third announcement confirmed Silambarasan's collaboration with director Ashwath Marimuthu, currently wrapping up Dragon starring Pradeep Ranganathan. Titled God of Love, the film will be produced by AGS Entertainment, with a striking new poster released to mark the occasion. With these back-to-back projects, Silambarasan

TR is set for a power-packed 2025, promising an exciting lineup for his fans.

Ajith fans expect best out of him: Aarav

"Ajith sir would always say - My fans expect something best out of me, and I shouldn't cheat them with dupes in action sequences" - Actor Aarav

The entire K-Town was thunderstruck by the one particular BTS sequence of the car toppling across the deserted highway of Azerbaijan. Those few moments left the whole industry in shock and escalated the commitment of the entire "Vidaamuyarchi" team to make sure that the scene brought out the best cinematic experience for the audience in the theatres.

Significantly, it was Ajith Kumar who safely controlled the Hummer, thereby ensuring that Aarav wasn't prone to any physical excruciations.

Actor Aarav recalls those moments stating, "It was a very well-planned shot, but something happened unexpectedly. However, what happened after the accident was something amazing. After thirty minutes, we decided to resume the shoot and completed the sequence. Ajith sir didn't want to leave me alone.. He drove me to the hospital and was relieved only after seeing the X-ray report. He hugged me and apologized, leaving me emotionally speechless as I witnessed his humanity. The very next day, he showed up well before the shooting began to ensure that the team wouldn't be using any stand-ins for the action sequence.. When I asked him, he said, "My fans expect something best from me, and I shouldn't cheat them with dupes in action sequences." At this point, I realised, why he has millions and billions of fans adoring him."

Vidaamuyarchi is all set for the worldwide theatrical release on February 6. The film is directed by Magizh Thirumeni and is produced by Lyca Productions Subaskaran.
