The move will also see a e in property registrations the area, which had declined by nearly 30 per cent, ar on year.

As many as 50 residential ojects, impacting about ,000 home buyers, received reather on August 18 when e government approved duction of the eco-sensitive ne around the Okhla bird nctuary. The environment inistry's draft notification, ued last year, was cleared the government today, ich said the eco-sensitive ne would be considered up 100 metres from the east-, western and southern boundaries and up to 1.27 km from the northern boundary of the sanctuary.

The projects were stuck after a tribunal order in October 2013 ordering a halt in construction in a radius of 10 km from the Okhla bird sanctuary and restraining authorities from issuing completion certificates within the eco-sensitive zone till clearance from the National Board for Wildlife was obtained. The tribunal also directed the Centre to demarcate the eco-sensitive zone around the sanctuary after considering fresh proposals from Uttar Pradesh, Delhi and Haryana. A final notification will be out within a week.

Once the notification is issued, the government will allow home buyers outside the zone to acquire occupancy certificates for their flats,
