significant opportunity.
Business is also expected to flow in a separate acquisition of 197 Nov-226T light helicopters, which is an Indian helicopter manufacturer, Nov, will initially supply ready-built, then transfer technology to progressively manufacture in HAL.
In manufacturing aircraft like the Su-30MKI and the Hawk, HAL had monopolised most of the manufacturing work, relying on very little outsourcing. More recently, the manufacture of the Tejas Light Combat Aircraft (LCA) has seen HAL assume the role of "systems integrator" with a significant percentage of the supply chain outsourced to private aerospace industry. In the future, HAL envisages functioning exclusively as a systems integrator, with a private industry supply chain feeding in components, sub-systems, systems and in major assemblies like the forward, middle and rear fuselage.
