Bharat Forge (₹671.7): SELL

GURMURTHY K
BI Research Bureau
The stock of Bharat Forge has been moving down gradually since November last year. Within this downtrend, the corrective rally that was in place since March this year found resistance just above ₹750 earlier in April. After falling in a few attempts to breach ₹750 decisively, the stock has come down sharply. It keeps the overall downtrend intact. The sharp four per cent fall so far this week has strengthened the fall. There is room for the stock to decline further towards ₹630 in the next couple of weeks. A further break below ₹630 will lead the stock extending towards ₹570 over the medium term. Strong resistance in the ₹695-700 region. Intermediate bounce to this resistance zone can see strong selling interest coming into the market.

Bharat Forge

Traders can go short at current levels. Add more shorts on a rise at ₹665. Keep the stop-loss at ₹702. Trail the stop-loss down to ₹665 as soon as the stock falls to ₹655. Move the stop-loss further down to ₹645 as soon as the stock touches ₹638 on the downside. Book profits at ₹630. The stock will have to rise past ₹705 decisively to ease the downside pressure. But that looks unlikely.

Note: The recommendations are based on technical analysis. There is risk of loss in trading.

US stocks' reaction mixed; 10-year US yield back to 3%

BLOOMBERG

Key for markets will be whether Fed Chair Jerome Powell's commentary contains any hawkish surprises that could stoke concerns about a US economic slowdown. The S&P 500 edged higher, while the tech-heavy Nasdaq 100 retreated. Treasury 10-year yields climbed to 3 per cent, the highest level since November 2018. The dollar fluctuated.

The Federal Open Market Committee is expected to raise rates by a half point at the conclusion of its two-day policy meeting on Wednesday, and also announce plans to reduce the size of its bloated balance sheet. The panel will issue its statement at 2 p.m. in Washington.

JPMorgan Chase & Co's chief Jamie Dimon said the Fed has moved quicker to raise rates as inflation hits the global economy.

The central bank could target inflation of 3 per cent or 4 per cent rather than 10 per cent, according to tightening monetary policy to the degree needed to ease annual price increases to its current 2 per cent goal, NBER laureate Paul Romer noted.

NSEL had single-handedly secured decrees/arbitration awards worth ₹3,534.46 crore against NSEL defaulters. Further, an amount of ₹760.31 crore worth of defaulters' liabilities has already been crystallised by the committee appointed by the Bombay HC. Proceedings for a decree against N.K.
